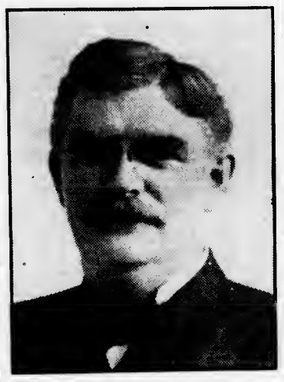
'NOTHER FIRE WEDNESDAY.

Fierce Blaze Badly Damages Elms House Barn.

THROUGH ROOF BEFORE DISCOVERED

Firemen Do Fine Work and Save Greater Part of Building. No Suggestion as to Cause.

When a barn with the loft filled with hay catches fire on the ground floor and the fire works its way through to the hay and burns holes in the roof before the blaze is discovered, firemen have to "go some" to save anything of the structure, to say nothing of preserving the greater part of the building. But that is what happened at the Elms House barn Wednesday afternoon. The alarm was rung in about 5.45 and the firemen had a stream on in just six minutes. The upper part of the barn was filled with loose hay and straw, and the blaze was coming through the roof in a half a hundred places when the fact that there was a fire became known. The fire was principally in the rear of the barn, and the first stream was put on there; a second was in a few moments taken in the window of the second story at the front and sent directly into the burning hay. It was only a few moments after their arrival before the firemen had the blaze under control, and the "all out" signal was sounded about 6.45. The boys got "right into it" and did a good and quick job. While the structure is a sorry sight the loss is not so large as at first appears. A new roof will be needed, and some new sheathing on the first floor, but $600 to $800 will make the damage good. The loss on personal property will not be more than $500 probably, and is confined to hay, straw, household goods, etc., stored in the barn. The loss is fully covered by insurance.



The fire was discovered by Albert Houghton, who is employed as hostler by Mr. Dunn. He returned from a trip with a team, and on driving into the barn was surprised to find the door leading to the rear part closed, he having left it open when he started out. On sliding the door back he found the place filled with fire. At the right was a small room occupied by Mr. Houghton as a sleeping apartment, the door of which he had left closed on going away; this he found open. Appearances are that it was in this small room where the fire started, though how and why is a mystery which no one can even attempt to guess. The condition of the room seems to indicate that the blaze was fiercest in two opposite corners. It spread through the open door and across the ceiling to the horse stalls, in which fortunately there were no animals; it burned through the partition and shot up into the hay, and was going fiercely when Mr. Houghton returned. One horse which was in another part of the barn was safely taken out, and all the carriages were saved.

The barn is located most advantageously for a bad fire. It is only about 50 feet from the hotel, while on one side is the Lynde block, not more than 25 feet distant, with a barn owned by G. S. Holden possibly 40 feet at the rear. All of these are wooden buildings. There was a brisk wind blowing at the time, but it was away from the other buildings, though the flames did not break out at any time in sufficient quantity to be a menace.

FOR STATE TREASURER.

A. P. Langtry of Springfield Union Candidate for the Position.

Albert P. Langtry, editor and publisher of the Springfield Union, is a candidate for the office of state treasurer, which position is to be vacant soon, it is understood, by the appointment of Treasurer Chapin to the position of savings bank commissioner, to succeed Pierre Jay. There is one other contestant for the position, which will be filled by the Legislature, and that is Senator Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville, in the 3d Middlesex district. Mr. Langtry has been a member of the Republican state committee for several years, and the last year its secretary; he has now resigned from that position and taken rooms at the Bellevue in Boston for the furtherance of his candidacy.

Mr. Langtry was born in Wakefield July 27, 1860. After a period in the employ of a Boston manufacturing concern he entered newspaper work as a reporter for the Brooklyn Union in 1882. He later became manager of the Brooklyn Times, and in 1890 was chosen business manager of the Springfield Union, later becoming editor and publisher. It is to be presumed that Mr. Langtry will have the support of the greater portion of the Western Massachusetts members of the Legislature in his candidacy. The Republican city committee of Springfield is out to "do" him however because of his support of J. B. Carroll, the Democratic candidate for mayor, in the last city election. With any who are familiar with the conditions at the time, this should help rather than hurt Mr. Langtry. He is perfectly competent to fill the position to which he aspires, is a genial, very likeable man, and has many warm friends in this section who hope to see him win out.

Probate Court Business.

At a session of the probate court in Springfield last Friday the following local business was among that transacted:

Administration granted in the estate of William Lewis, late of Monson, James Lewis of Stafford and Annie L. Hodge of Monson administrators.

Executor's account allowed in the estate of Amy L. Eaton, late of Monson.

Distribution of estate allowed in the estate of Eunice Lombard, late of Brimfield.

WARE VOTES LICENSE.

Some Changes in List of Town Officers. Appropriations Over $90,000.

The town of Ware, at its annual meeting Monday, voted license by a majority of 420, the vote standing, yes 804, no 384, after a year of no-license. The largest number of ballots ever cast at a Ware meeting marked the election Monday. Of the 1366 names on the list, 1290 were checked off, or over 92 per cent, besides the names of seven women who voted for school committee.

The following officers were elected: Moderator, Lewis N. Gilbert; clerk and treasurer, Edward P. Morse; selectmen, H. M. Coney, H. O. Packard and J. O. Deslauriers; overseers of the poor, Amie D. Girard, George Haley, and Samuel P. Rohan; assessors, for three years, Herbert F. Barnes; for two years, Edward M. McBride; school committee, for three years, George W. Dunham; board of health for three years, Dr. G. F. A. Spencer; auditors, Frederick B. Clark, A. B. Irwin; tax collector, F. W. Farrar; constables, John B. Beauchemin, B. W. Buckley, Manrice Fitzgerald, Thomas H. Rennison; cemetery commissioner for three years, J. H. Grenville Gilbert; water commissioner for three years, James A. Byrns; park commissioner, for three years, Charles C. Hitchcock; for two years, J. H. Grenville Gilbert; for one year, Edward J. Brannigan.

The business session of the meeting opened shortly before 2 in the afternoon. The usual number of routine articles relating to appropriations were quickly disposed of. There was general interest manifested in the article regarding the acceptance by the town of a gift of a public park by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grenville Gilbert to be known as Grenville Park. Judge Henry C. Davis moved to accept the gift and before it was voted the deed was read by George D. Storrs. The land, some 54 acres, included in the gift, lies between Church street and the Ware river, the central part being opposite the high school building. After unanimous acceptance it was moved by Judge Davis and seconded by John H. Schoonmaker that a vote of thanks for the generous gift be extended in proper form to the givers, and this vote was unanimously passed, all persons in the hall standing. Upon a motion by John W. Lambert, the moderator was directed to appoint a committee of three whose duty it shall be to see to the placing of a suitable bronze tablet at the main entrance to the park, subject to the approval of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert.

A committee of five was appointed by the moderator to take charge of the observance of the 150th anniversary of the town, which falls on November 25, 1911. The committee appointed is composed of Henry K. Hyde, J. H. G. Gilbert, F. D. Gilmore, E. P. Morse and James Dugan.

The committee on appropriations, numbering nine instead of seven as formerly, was appointed as follows: F. D. Gilmore; George E. Tucker, Joseph Dumas Jr., Henry K. Hyde, Daniel Nolan, J. H. G. Gilbert, P. J. Downey, George D. Storrs and Frank M. Sibley.

The entire list of appropriations is as follows: Contingent, $2000; town hall, $1000; police, $3900; salaries, $3600; street and public building lighting, $5825; military aid, $500; cemeteries, $700; special sum for purchase of more land, $800; water, $600; discount on taxes, $3700; library (besides the dog fund) $1000; Memorial Day, $150; interest, $2400; highways and bridges, (street railway and excise tax) $4555; paving, $500; relief fund for Grand Army, $100; sewer connections and maintenance, $1000; street sprinkling, $1800; board of health, $1000; schools, $34,500; poor, $7500; town debt, $10,830; preservation of shade trees, $1500; total, $90,960. Liquor license; Yes, 804; no, 384. Sprout land act,: Yes, 570; no, 61.

The selectmen met Tuesday afternoon and organized with H. M. Coney as chairman and H. O. Packard secretary. The present members of the police force, Manrice Fitzgerald, Bartholomew W. Buckley, John H. Beauchemin and Thomas H. Renulson, all of whom were chosen as constables at the election Monday, were re-appointed. Judge Henry C. Davis was re-appointed town counsel, Fred E. Marsh sealer of weights and measures, L. S. Charbonneau forest fire warden and inspector of petroleum, Dr. J. E. Kennely inspector of animals and Thomas Fitzgerald janitor of the town hall and lockup-keeper.

The assessors met Wednesday and organized with B. Frank Davis as chairman, Edward M. McBride as secretary and Herbert F. Barnes as treasurer.

The overseers of the poor met Tuesday night and organized with George Haley as chairman. Thomas Naylor was reappointed almoner and he will continue to act as clerk of the board. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Peeso were reappointed warden and matron of the almshouse.

JURY DID NOT AGREE.

Belchertown Woman Does Not Get the $300 She Brought Suit For.

After eleven hours' deliberation the jury in the case of Mrs. Rebecca Aker of Springfield against Albert W. Slate, executor of the estate of his father, Orrin Slate, late of Belchertown, failed to agree. The trial opened in the superior court in Springfield Tuesday morning; the plaintiff sued for $300. She claimed that she had been employed as a housekeeper for Orrin Slate for a considerable time before his death, which occurred December 27, 1905, and received as compensation $2 a week. She further claimed that he had promised her a bonus of $300 if she would agree to remain with him until his death. This she never received. Hence the suit. She said the promise had been made in the home of the old man's grandson, Harry L. Slate of Springfield. The son and executor of the will, and also the grandson, denied the allegations of the plaintiff. Both claimed that Orrin Slate also denied before his death that he ever made such a promise. Carroll & McClintock represented the plaintiff and Lawyer Dillon appeared for the defendant.

District Court.

The continued case of John J. Murphy of Wilbraham for assault came up for sentence last Saturday, when a fine of $25 was imposed and he was placed under $300 bonds to keep the peace for six months. One "drunk" was fined $5.

One "drunk" was fined $5 Monday morning and given one month in which to find the money.

Wednesday morning John Shepard of Monson pleaded not guilty to a charge of non-support preferred by his wife. He was found guilty however and the case was continued for one month in order to permit a betterment of conditions.

Yesterday morning one "drunk" was fined $5 and the case continued until tomorrow for payment.

D. J. Connor, employed at the telephone exchange, has been confined to his home on South Main street a part of the week with pneumonia.

MONSON TOWN REPORTS.

Figures Which are Given in the Various Departments.

PLEASING DECREASE IN TOWN DEBT

The reports of the Monson town officers have been received from the printers, and from them the following figures are taken.

The treasurer reports having paid selectmen's orders to the amount of $42 686 for town purposes, and has a balance of $2507 in the treasury. The town debt was decreased $4103 during the year, and is now only $27,097. The net cost of the town farm was $1083, the average cost per week for maintaining the inmates being $1 97. The income of the cemetery commissioners was $1111 and the expenses of this department $898, leaving a balance of $213. The net income of the water department was $2104, and of this $1600 was used to pay interest on water bonds, leaving $504 in the treasury.

The appropriations and expenditures in the several departments of town affairs were:

The bills due the town amounting to $2604, and accounts due from the town totaling $256.

The committee appointed at the last town meeting to investigate the matter of a sewerage system for the town has issued a printed report of its doings. The committee engaged William S. Johnson of Boston, a competent civil engineer familiar with sewerage matters, who has prepared a report and submitted plans. The plan contemplates carrying the sewage to a point beyond North Monson, where it will be cared for by a series of filtration beds. Full information and descriptions are given, and the proposed sewers are shown on a large map of the village, the streets being printed in black and the sewer pipes being shown in red. The whole is approved by the state board of health. The estimated cost is $108,675, but the system is expected to be amply sufficient for all needs of the next 30 years, with the exception of surface water, which is not considered under the plan. The total length of pipes is a trifle over 14 miles.

Senior Class Play.

The presentation of "The Rivals" by the senior class of the Hitchcock Free Academy last Friday evening not only sustained the reputation which the school possessed in the former days of its famous "exhibitions" when plays given on the professional stage were acted, but in achievement of different parts and evenness of merit surpassed previous performances unless that of the "Merchant of Venice" two years ago he excepted. At first it seemed almost presumptuous to attempt such an ambitious play as Sheridan's noted comedy, but Principal Kenney's belief in the educational value of what has become classic in the dramatic art above that of plays prepared for the amateur stage, and his knowledge of the capabilities of his material gave him assurance in the undertaking which the results fully justified. Four months had been given to the preparation of the play, which the pupils kept up with sustained earnestness and application under Principal Kenney's training with the result that they clearly interpreted the parts and presented them with ease and spirit. There was evident appreciation of the meaning of the lines throughout, with an entire absence of the artificial and declamatory, while some of the acting was much above that of amateur performances. The costumes were excellent, those of home production comparing favorably with those obtained at the costumer's. The giving of the play was an event long looked forward to in Brimfield and other towns that are represented in the attendance of the Academy, and the number present showed the interest that is taken in the school throughout the countryside. The places besides Brimfield represented in the attendance, which numbered about 300, were Springfield, Palmer, Monson, Wales, Holland, Fiskdale, Sturbridge and Southbridge, and many in the audience were alumni of the Academy. The cast of characters was as follows:

Sir Anthony Absolute,	Earl W. Williams
Capt. Jack Absolute,	Forrest J. Whittemore
Faulkland,	E. Stanley Parker
Bob Acres,	Charles M. Streeter
Sir Lucius O'Trigger,	Robert C. Sherman
Fag,	Michael H. Shanly

MAIN STREET PAVING.

Engineering Work Begun. Street Railway Will Help. New Water Pipes.

Work has begun in prepsration for the paving of Msin street, Engineer W. H. Brainerd having started the survey the first of the week. The problem is not an easy one on account of the condition of the street. There are numerous grades and levels within the distance to be paved—about two blocks—and the bringing of them all into a barmonious whole will requre some changes which are not easy to accomplish and satisfy the abuttors. The junction of Main and Commercial street presents perhaps the hardest problem, the latter street taking off from Msin at a sharp pitch at a point where the street needs raising from the present grade but is too high already from the point of teamsters who are obliged to haul heavy loads up it. Cnrhing will have to be put in at several places where there is none now, and the street will be so graded as to carry the water to both sides instead of to only one, as has been suggested.

Genersl Manager Page of the street railway was in town Monday consulting with the selectmen and Eugineer Brainerd to see what was wanted. There was a suggestion that a protest would be made against the expense, but not a word of this was heard from Mr. Page. Instead, he told the town officials that wherever improvements were being made the road was willing to do its share The kind of rails to be laid for the paving is not decided yet In some places a grooved rail is put in, hnt in others nse is made of a grooved brick which sets close inside the rail. The Palmer Water Company is to lay a new main of Iron before the paving is installed, and is also to see that all connections and service pipes from its main to the water takers along the street are in first-class condition. There are other private pipes throngh a portion of the section to be paved, and these will also be pnt in condition.

TOWN DOESN'T PAY NOW.

Individuals Will Hereafter Settle for Hearse and Opening Graves.

The cemetery commissioners have organized with L. G. Barker chairman and D. L. Bodfish secretary and treasurer. The board will make extensive improvements in the Four Corners cemetery this year and hopes to make decided betterments there before the end of the season. The board has, in accordsnce with the vote of the town, made a contract with D. E Marcy for the use and maintenance of the hearse; the price to be charged for its use within the borders of the town is to be $3 per trip, the same price which has been paid Mr. Marcy for motive power in the past. By the terms of the contract he will care for and repair the hearse for the above sum, and will make his own collections. It was voted to make a change in the price of opening graves, and the charge will in the future he $3 instead of $2; this will be paid by the lot-owner instead of by the town, as formerly, and of course applies only to cemeteries in charge of the town. The charge inclndes removing all surplus earth from the lot. In winter there will be an additional charge of $1 per foot for frost, in opening graves. There seems to be an impression on the part of some that these changes—whereby the individual instead of the town pays for the use of the hearse snd for opening graves—is dne to action on the part of the cemetery commissioners, but this is not so. The matter has been nnder discussion for some tims by numerous people, and the article was placed in the town warrant without any solicitation on the part of the commissioners.

NEW SCHEME FOR FAIR.

Executive Committee Has Full Charge. Vegetable Contests for Children.

The directors of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society have adopted a new method in the management of its fair next October. It has elected an executive committee of seven members which is to have charge of all arrangements for the fair; this committee is comprised of President Bradway, Secretary Chandler, Treasurer Cnmmings, C. A. LeGro and James Summers of Palmer, G. C. Flynt and F. D Rogers of Monson.

The executive committee met Monday evening and decided to have two stake races at the fair, one for 2 19 pacers and one for 2 25 trotters; the purses will be $500 each. They will close May 1, when the first payment of $5 will be due; the other payments come June 5, July 3, July 31, when the horses must be named, and Sept. 4.

Among other new matters in the premium list will be prizes for the best vegetables and flowers grown by pupils below the high school grade in the public schools. The society will not give or sell seeds, hut will permit the contestants to secure seeds wherever they wish. The nsual athletic events will be retained, and from the interest manifested by the several schools contesting last year there will he no lack of entries next fall.

The executive committee also voted to mark off into reserved seats, which will be sold by nnmbered ticket, the entire covered grandstand; the prices will be 35 and 50 cents, according to location; by this means sests may he secured in advance and the purchasers be sure of having them when they arrive on the grounds. The price for the bleacher seats will be 25 cents.

MAY SHORTEN HOURS.

Carpenters and Painters Said to be Contemplating Eight-Hour Day.

There seems to be a good prospect that a move for an eight-hour day will be made soon by the carpenters and painters of the town, and it is also possible that with the demand for shorter hours will come a demand for increased wages. The contractors locally have been paying carpenters $2 50 to $3 for a day of nine hours, with $2 25 to $2 75 for painters; a possibility of $3 25 for an eight-hour day is now facing the contractors, and incidentally the persons or corporstions which may have building to be done. The reason for this is said to be the large amount of work to be done by the Palmer Mill at Three Rivers and at the epileptic hospital and at the wire mill the coming season; the men on these jobs all work the eight-hour day with the high wages, and it is said the local carpenters and painters look with envying eyes at their more fortunate craftsmen, and are seriously contemplating emulating their example. Perhaps the fact that two churches are to be built this summer gives them more courage for the attempt, as in that event there will he plenty of work for all the local men.

Mrs. R. E. Cummings returned Sunday from the Wesson hospital in Springfield, where she had been for an operation.

Making Good as a Public Speaker.

Representative Ernest E Hobson of Palmer is in great demand these days as a speaker at Sons of Veterans' camp fires and public gatherings of the Royal Arcanum, and is receiving nnlimited encomiums from the papers all along the line He spoke at the 25th anniver sary of Charles Sumner camp, Sons of Veterans, in Gardner last Friday night, and of him the Gardner News the next day said: "Representative Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer, a member of the order and a member of the committees on judiciary and rules of the Massachusetts Legislature, was the principal speaker and showed himself of exceptional ability, receiving a splendid ovation for his excellent address." The Clinton Courant said last week of an address by Mr. Hobson before the Congregational Brotherhood: "His address was one of the most eloquent, convincing and helpful disscourses to which the brotherhood has listened this year. His subject was "Building Stones," which were the lives of good citizens and upright men, built into the temple of the state and nation."

Mr Hobson won another single victory in debate in the House on Tuesday of this week. His committee had made an adverse report on the bill to prevent unjust discriminstion in trade, being aimed at the trusts, with Mr. Hobson dissenting. He took the floor and in a forceful speech so swayed the members that the bill was resubstituted—132 yeas to 52 nays—for the report of the committee

The man fonud the fish in a pool of water caused by the overflowing of the river banks during the recent high water; the fish had evidently gone in while the water was at its height, but remained too loug and the receding water had sealed its fate by not leaving sufficient depth at the entrance to enable it to swim out. The man hit it on the head with the adz and then scooped it out of the water.

MICROBES IN THE SCALP.

The Latest Explanation is That Microbes Cause Baldness.

Professor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand of Paris, France, share the honor of having discovered the hair microbe.

Baldness is not caused through a few weeks' work of these hair microbes, hut is the result of conditions brought about by their presence. Baldness may not occur until years after the microbes began work, but it is certain to come sooner or later.

The microbes cut off the blood supply. They feed on the fatty matter about the root of the hair, through which the blood is obsorbed. Finally the fatty matter is wholly consumed, the food supply of the hair is gone and it starves and finally dies.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers; Beta Napthol is both germicidal and antiseptic; Pilocarpin, though not a dye, restores natural color to hair when loss of color was caused by disease. These curatives properly mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfect a remedy nnequalled for curing scalp and hair troubles.

We want everyone who has any scalp or hair trouble to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic which contains all these ingredients. If it does not grow hair on your bald head, stop your hair from falling out; cure you of dandruff; make your hair thick, silky, luxuriant; if it does not give you complete satisfaction in every particular, return the empty bottle to us, and we shall return every penny you paid us for it, without question or formality.

Of course, you understand that when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, we do not refer to cases where the roots are entirely dead, the pores of the scalp closed, and the head has the shiny appearance of a billiard ball. In cases like this, there is no hope In all other cases of baldness Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will positively grow hair, or cost the user nothing. Two sizes 50c, and $1 00. YOUNG LAD KILLED.

Febnine Gaouette Meets Death on Ra road in Greenwich, Ct.

Febniue Gaouette, 14, oldest son Mr. and Mrs. A N. Gaouette, was kill by a west-bound express in Greenwic Ct., Monday afternoon. He left his hon here March 16th and had been stayin with friends in Greenwich until Monda when he supposedly started for hom His parents received notice of his deat late Monday afternoon and the body wa brought here Tuesday. His stay in Green wich had been a pleasant one, he having written interesting letters to his people here and to some of his friends as late as Monday morning. He was a pupil in the Green street grammar school in the 9th grade, a member of the Epworth League at the Methodist church, and president of that society at the time of his departure. He was a bright boy with many friends who were much grieved to learn of his death. He leaves besides his parents, one sister, Gertrude, and one brother, Alfred N. Gaouette, who both live at home. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 30, and the burial was in No. 1 Cemetery.

Death of Leonard B. Charles.

Leonard B. Charles, 76, a well-known resident, died at his home in South Monson early Tuesday morning of heart disease He was born in Wales, Mass., but came to Monson early in life and received his education in the schools here. His first position was that of finisher in the Horatio Lyon mill; later he learned the trade of a stone-mason and was also employed several years in the R. M. Reynolds mill. In 1862 he enlisted in the 46th Mass. regiment and served one year. On returning from the war Mr. Charles was employed for many years in the Merrick & Fay straw factory. The last 20 years of his life he passed on his farm on the upper Stafford road, until he moved to his late home in the village several years ago. He was a member of G. A. R. post No. 155, and an attendant at the Universalist church for many years; in his death Monson people feel the loss of another of their much-respected citizens. He leaves a son, William A. Charles of Monson, three sisters, Mrs. A. S Pease of New London, Ct., Mrs. Eliza A. Greenwood of Machias, Me., and Mrs. Emma A Graves of Monson; also one brother, William A. Charles of this town. The funeral was held at his late home yesterday afternoon, Rev. Abram Conklin officiating, followed by burial in the No. 1 cemetery. The G. A. R. post attended in a body.

Big List of Voters.

The registrars of voters have added 77 new names to their list this spring, and the total number of eligible ballot casters is now 886, which is by far the largest the town has ever had. The majority of the new names are new residents or those who have neglected to be registered here. Some are young men who have recently reached the required age and will cast their first ballot at the coming election. The license faction has been instrumental in inducing a good percentage of the 77 to register, and it now looks as if the town will remain in the license column another year in spite of the opposing efforts.

Death of Former Resident.

Word has been received from California of the death of Alfred R. Barker, a former resident of this town, and student at the Academy. He originally lived in Wales but came to Monson early in life and received his education here. He was admitted to the bar and practiced law in this region before going West to live. Local people will remember him especially as a nephew of Jacob Barker, a former resident, who died here some years ago The lawyers of the deceased are looking for heirs in this vicinity.

Cut in Wages of Ellis Mills Employes.

There has been a cut of 10 per cent. in the wages of all the help in the Ellis mills Why the reduction was made has not been stated and it is hoped the original wages will be paid again as soon as possible. The same cut was made a few years ago but it was soon removed so that the help are confident the reduction will not be permanent.

...The suggestion of having the Monson ...library and reading room open for a few ...hours on Sunday has occasioned some ...discussion and many are in favor of it ...The library under the present schedule ...is open for the public a large portion of ...the week days, so that it does not seem ...feasable or necessary to the management ...to open the building on Sunday.

Mr. Sqnier studied at ...Andover Academy and Amherst College and has ...held pastorates in Plainfield, Newton, ...Northrop and West Roxbury. During the past year he has had a large pastorate ...at Fitchburg and the people there express much regret that he is to leave.

...The Century club closed a very successful season Tuesday afternoon with a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Frederic A ...Keeler. Officers for next year were elected and are: President, Mrs. Wm L ...Ketts; vice president, Mrs. E W. Capen; secretary and treasurer, Mrs A J Buffington.

...The subject for next year's meetings will be, "The Study of Musicians and Their Works." The topic for the season which has just closed was, "Famous Women and Their Work." The club has held 22 meetings, which have been very interesting and have done much to promote the social and literary life of the community.

...The first trolley express car run to Monson since the new franchise was granted was yesterday morning and it was welcomed with satisfaction by a large number of residents. Two trips daily will be made and goods unloaded at places of ...Monson business, before residences or ...where the consignee desires until June ...1st, when according to the new agreement ...the car must have stations for the systematic delivery of all goods. The service ...will be of great convenience to many who have missed it greatly during its idleness. ...One of the chief features is that goods can be delivered from Springfield in the morning and received the same day.

...The warrant for the annual town meeting ...on Monday contains many articles of ...interest to be discussed Among them is ...to see what action the town will take ...in regard to the elm tree beetle No appropriation is asked for and a chance reader ...would take it as a thing of minor importance but it has direct bearing on the future ...welfare of Monson; unless vigorous measures are soon taken the excellent collection of elms of which so many residents ...are proud will be disfigured and destroyed ...The primary expense lies in the purchasing of apparatus but after that, since ...only two sprayings yearly are needed, no ...further expenditures are called for and the ...permanent results achieved easily outweigh the initial expense.

...The fact that the Hastings bridge matter ...is not mentioned in the town warrant has ...become some surprise. The general opinion ...is that matters had been hurried along ...and the question would be sifted out in ...open meeting, but it is very probable that it will never be brought up before the voters in that way. The selectmen have carried out the vote of the town and the enabling act has passed the Legislature and received the governor's signature. These legally allow the town to unite with Palmer in building a new bridge if it should ever decide to do so. But the question will now, as is most generally admitted, be left to the state commission, who will decide Monson betterments, as was done several years ago in regard to the grade crossing near the Walter Green farm, when Monson had to pay a considerable sum for the construction of an underpass wholly within the town of Wilbraham.

BRIMFIELD.

Death of Mrs. W. W. George.

Mrs. Gertrude C. George, 35, wife of Walter W. George, died Saturday evening after a short illness Mrs. George was Miss Gertrude Cornell and was born in Cambridge August 2, 1873. Much of her early life was spent in the home of Eli Brooks of Sturbridge. While afterwards living in Warren she was married to Arthur S. Jones of that town, who died early, leaving two children by this marriage. She was married in January, 1897, to Walter W. George and their home had been in Brimfield. Besides her husband she leaves three children, Harlow E. and Hazel B., pupils in the Hitchcock Free Academy, and Grace Evelyn, two years old.

The funeral was held at her home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Samuel Eaton officiating. In his remarks Mr. Eaton spoke of her devotion to her family, her neighborliness, her kindness to those in need of assistance, and her helpfulness in the organizations to which she belonged. Mrs. George had a large circle of friends and the funeral was very largely attended, people being present from Springfield, Warren, Sturbridge and Fiskdale, besides Brimfield.

The Brimfield grange, of which Mrs. George was an active and efficient member, attended in a body, and there were representatives of the Alpha Rebekah lodge of Warren of which Mrs George had become a member when living in that town. There were many beautiful flowers including, besides personal tributes, a pillow from the grange, wreath from the ladies' auxiliary of that organization, of which Mrs. George had been president, pinks from Warren lodge and a large wreath of roses and calla lilies from employees of the Fred T. Ley Co. of Springfield with whom Mr George is associated as foreman. Among the flowers were remembrances from schoolmates of Mrs. George's children in the Academy and Sunday school. The bearers were Clarence B. Brown, George E. Hitchcock, Fred N. Lawrence and George W. Sherman, all members of the Brimfield Grange.

Mrs. George possessed a cordial disposition and quick sympathies and there are many people whom she had remembered in sickness and times of need. The stricken family have the sympathy of the entire community in their loss.

The theme of the pastor on Sunday morning will be suitable for Palm Sunday.

Miss Julia Hubbard and Miss Ruth Hubbard are spending this week in Boston.

Bancroft McNally of Worcester is visiting this week with his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George Stowell.

Charles L. Gardner and Bertha Frazier of Union, Ct., were married at the parsonage Tuesday by Rev. Samuel Eaton.

Miss Alice I. Sawin of Smith college was home with her parents for the past week, but Thursday went to visit a classmate in New York city.

Next Monday night the "Old Folks" will give their concert in the vestry of the church; an admission fee of 15 cents will be charged. Program: "Auld Lang-syne;" "Invitation;" "Jernsalem My Glorions Home;" recitation by Mrs. G. F Kenney; "Dost Thou Love Me, Sister Ruth;" "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne;" "Easter Anthem;" recitation, Charles A. Burleigh; "Sound the Lond Timbrel;" "Strike the Cymbal;" recitation, Rev. Francis S. Child; "My Gramma's Advice;" "Yankee Doodle;" recitation, Mrs. Streeter: "Consin Jedediah." A collation will be served at the close of the entertainment.

Cause of Fatty Heart.

The great danger from obesity lies in the liability of the fat to invade the cellular elements of the body, especially the muscles. This produces fatty degeneration of the muscular tissues, which greatly weakens and impairs their functional activity. When the fat invades the tissues of the heart muscles the disease known as "fatty degeneration of the heart" results, and the patient is in serious danger. Whenever a slight additional strain upon the circulation results from undue exercise, excitement or other cause the muscles interfere with the heart's action, and it is liable to cease beating. Anaemia and hysteria often are accompaniments of obesity. Because of the increased weight and difficulty of moving about such patients are prevented from taking an ordinary amount of exercise. Often, too, there are a lassitude and a positive dislike for muscular exertion of any kind.—What to Eat.

From Medicine to the Drama.

The earlier part of Victorien Sardou's career was beset with many trials and difficulties. His parents wished him to take up a medical career, and he began his studies with some zeal. The love of the drama, however, was far greater than the love of the pill box, and in the interval of the other work Sardou was busy upon a play. Life was a struggle for him, for he had little money, though he managed to get journalistic work to supplement his more slender income. His first play was a failure, and Sardou rushed from the theater vowing never to enter one again. He fell seriously ill, was nursed back to health by Mlle. de Brecourt, an actress who lived on a floor below, and from that time his fortune was made.

Mrs. Geo. H. Taylor, living at 18 Church St., Thorndike, Palmer, Mass., says: "In the fall of 1898 I used Doan's Kidney Pills and was so greatly benefited that I gave a statement for publication in favor of this remedy. I have no reason to change my opinion but on the contrary have even a higher regard for this preparation, as I have learned of several others who have been benefited by its use. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I was in a miserable condition. It was impossible for me to turn in bed without grasping something to assist me, and during the day I was never free from a dull aching through my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me from the very first and I continued using them until they disposed of all signs of kidney trouble."

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O is Used

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis Are Caused by Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. Uric O seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect autidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure Rheumatism only.

Uric-O is sold by druggists at 75c and $1 00 the bottle. A liberal sample may be procured by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Bldg, Syracuse, N. Y

Uric O is sold and personally recommended by Lynde & Gould.

WARE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grenville Gilbert sailed Saturday from Boston to Naples and will remain in Europe two or three months

D. Edward Packard has sold the Ware steam laundry to T. P. Strong of Burlington, Vt, who sold this same business two years ago to the former. Mr Strong has taken possession and will move his family to Castle street very soon.

William E. Dart, who died in Hardwick last week Thursday, was well known in Ware, where he sold butter and eggs for many years. He was nearly 80 years of age and had lived a long time on his farm a mile or more from Greenwich Plains.

The body of Mrs. Jason G. Newcomb, 88, who died in Townsend, Vt., Monday morning, was taken to Ware for burial in Aspen Grove cemetery Wednesday morning Mrs Newcomb was formerly Miss Caroline Croft, and lived on Water street in Ware 35 or more years ago.

The case against George Dubois, clerk at the Storrs House, for the illegal sale of liquor to Eugene Charron, which was continued from last week until Wednesday of this week, was again continued for a week. It is generally supposed that Charron, the principal witness, is now in Canada.

A pleasant family reunion was held at the home of Susan Ross on West Main street Saturday, the occasion being her 86th birthday. Her children from Worcester, Salem and Warren were present, as was also her grandson, Lester Ross of Springfield. Mrs. Ross is very active for a woman of her age and takes a great interest in the events of the day.

The body of Miss Sarah Delehanty, 45, who died in Orange, N. J., Saturday from cerebral hemorrhage, after two-days' illness, was taken to Ware Wednesday morning for burial in St. Williams' cemetery. Miss Delehanty was one of a family who formerly lived on Ragged hill in West Brookfield, but near Ware, until within a few months. She was a graduate of the Ware high school.

The annual parish meeting of the Unitarian society was held Monday evening, when these officers were chosen: Moderator, Charles E Stevens; clerk, James E. Allen; prudential committee, Charles E. Stevens, E D Howard, J. Gardner Lincoln; treasurer, Charles E Stevens; collectors, James E. Allen, John Fairfield, J. Gardner Lincoln; music committee, Mrs. John F Robinson, Miss Annie L. Breckenridge and James E Allen.

Mrs. W. C. Townsend was given a pleasant surprise last Friday afternoon by abont 40 women, who had joined the members of the family in planning a surprise for Mrs. Townsend in honor of her birthday. Mrs. George S. Marsh, in behalf of those present, presented a cut glass dish, bonquet of flowers and an elaborate birthday cake. Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Serilla Waterman, with Mrs. Marcia Olds and Mrs. Simeon Gates pouring. During a social hour which followed, musical selections were rendered by H. B. Townsend, Miss Ruth Gates, Miss Ella L. Townsend and Miss Elizabeth Nutting.

BELCHERTOWN.

Bakery Destroyed by Fire.

The bakery of J W. Jackson and house attached were totally destroyed by fire Monday morning between 3 and 4 o'clock. The blaze was discovered in the dining-room, but quickly communicated to the bakery, and the entire plant was consumed in a short time. E. L. Schmidt was almost overcome by the smoke, but narrowly escaped with his life. He saved $75 in money, and, besides his clothing and household goods, a large assortment of beautiful embroideries, the work of his wife. Last Saturday Mr. Jackson had in fresh supplies of sugar, flour and other necessary articles for the business, which brings the total loss up to a high figure. The insurance on the building and barn is $1000; that on Mr. Schmidt's furniture and personal belongings $600, neither amount covering the loss.

Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tufts celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage Tuesday evening at their home about two miles from the Center. About 80 friends and relatives were present, a number from out of town. Mr. and Mrs. Tufts received a purse of gold, a lamp, china and other remembrances, and some handsome flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Tufts were married in Granby, her maiden name being Miss Sarah M. Wilson. They have lived in Belchertown for 40 years. Their daughter and her husband, George Akers, make their home with them.

Mrs. Walter Temple and family have been guests of Mrs H. D Hoag Jr.

B Thrasher and family have leased the Arnold place on South Main street.

Mrs. Kittie P. Spellman and son, Curtis, are spending two weeks in Springfield.

The Sabin farm has been bought by Mrs. Marcella Curran, who held a mortgage on the place.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Allen spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Allen of Longmeadow.

Miss Lottie Forrest, assistant librarian, will spend the Easter vacation with friends in Boston and vicinity.

[illegible] It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors but each told me so different thing I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to get worse. Before the doctor said nothing would relieve my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. LETA DONOVAN, Box 299, Willimantic, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

MONSON'S ELECTION.

One New Selectman, Sherman Stebbins, Chosen.

TOWN REMAINS IN LICENSE COLUMN.

Sewer Proposition Postponed. Money for New Bridge. Sprout Lot Act Accepted.

Monson's annual town meeting was held Monday, resulting in one change in the board of selectmen, Sherman Stebbins defeating J. P. Herlihy by 53 votes in a six cornered contest. The town went license by 27, a majority of 12 greater than last year The sprout lot fire act was adopted, 270 to 82

The appropriation meeting was called to order by Clerk C. L. Peck, and C. M. Gage was appointed moderator. Officers not on the ballot were elected from the floor as follows: Tree warden, C H Stacy; measurer of wood and bark, O C McCray and F. L. Bliss; field driver, C H. Stacy; surveyor of lumber, J. S. Stewart. The reports of the town officers were accepted and it was voted that the money received from dog licenses be used for the maintenance of the schools. The present method of collecting the taxes for the ensuing year was adopted, and the salary of the collector settled.

J. S. Stewart.

The appropriations for sidewalks were passed over this year with one exception, and that was the sum of $40, which is to be used for a gravel sidewalk to be built on the north side of Park avenue. It was voted to furnish water free for the sprinkling of the streets, and the matter of night police was left to the discretion of the selectmen; $200 was appropriated for the painting of Memorial Hall. It was voted to install five new electric lights at the Quarry and $75 was appropriated for this purpose. A set of by-laws was adopted, and if they are approved by the superior court will become law.

The sewerage committee, consisting of F. Q. Ball, A. D. Norcross and Dr. P. W. Soule, submitted their report; it was accepted and the committee discharged. The report was a thorough one and gave evidence that much thought had been given to the proposition. Voters were provided with printed copies of the report, containing a map of the streets showing the proposed lines of sewer pipes. The engineer estimated the cost at $108 000, and that the system would be ample for 50 years to come. Senator Norcross said that this figure was too high and that it could probably be cut in half; the town might not grow as much in 50 years as had been estimated. Many were in favor of the installation of the system, but the matter was put over until a special meeting in order to give all a better opportunity of becoming acquainted with the project.

Sherman Stebbins.

Articles to see if the town would build a gravel walk on Thompson street and an addition to the Quarry schoolhouse were passed over. Similar action was taken on the proposed sidewalk on Stewart avenue. It was voted to appropriate $900 for a new bridge over the railroad track on Green street.

There was considerable controversy over the appropriation for figuting the elm-tree beetle, but in the end $500 was voted. The town will buy a machine and do its own spraying. The sum of $3000 was appropriated for highways, with the stipulation that $1500 of this is to be expended on the Stafford road for hardening. It was thought by some that the road to Palmer should be repaired, but it seemed likely that the latter will be cared for by the State Highway Commission, it being understood that they have agreed to survey it this year and it may be macadamized next year. Both roads are in bad shape and need attention.

O. C. McCray.

The full list of appropriations is: Suppression illegal sales of liquor, $300; discount on taxes, $1500; Memorial Day, $100;

$15,000 FIRE YESTERDAY

Narrow Escape From Extensive Property Destruction.

HIGH WIND THREATENS MANY HOUSES

Fire Starting in Junk Shop Burns Big Livery Stable and Gives Firemen Hardest Fight Yet, But They Hold It Well. Many Others Start.

The big livery barn of D. E. Marcy on Walnut street was wholly destroyed yesterday afternoon by a fire which started about 4 30 and, aided by a high wind, swept through the building with great rapidity For a time it seemed as though a good share of the town to the east must go also, for bits of burning wood were carried far by the wind, and no less than 36 buildings in the path of the wind are known to have been on fire at some time, the most distant being the large hardware warehouse of E A. Buck & Co., near the B. & A. freight house, a third of a mile distant. Good work on the part of the property owners and others extinguished the smaller fires as soon as they started, and the firemen confined the flames to the stable building.

The alarm was rung at 4.32 for a blaze in a shed in the rear of the Converse House block owned by H. D. Converse and occupied by E. Goldberg, junk dealer, for the storage of scrap iron, old papers and rags. A two-story barn occupied by him for the storage of tinware and a stable adjoined it on one end, while at the back was Marcy's stable, only about two feet away. At the left end of the shed was stored a quantity of empty sacks and rope, and in these the fire was blazing fiercely, aided materially by the high wind which eddied strongly in that locality, hemmed in by buildings on three sides, the open side being to leeward The firemen had a stream on the spot in exactly five minutes, but long before that the junk barn was a seething furnace and the fire had eaten its way through the shed and up the side of the Marcy barn and into the loft, going through the wooden siding almost as quickly as though it was of paper. By the time the firemen had a stream on, the upper part of the rear of the Marcy barn was full of fire inside.

In the meanwhile the stock, wagons, harness, etc., had been cleared from the Marcy barn and the front doors closed, thus shutting off a draft through the building and thus preventing the fire from burning as rapidly as it would otherwise. There was some delay in getting the steamer into the game of fighting the fire, for the men in the Marcy barn paid their attention to getting the stock and other property out and sent no horses for the apparatus. A team was pressed into service and the steamer located at the corner of Main and Walnut street, half a block from the fire, and soon had two strong streams under 120 pounds pressure pouring into the building. Additional hydrant streams were brought from Walnut street until seven in all were on the building on all sides. The magnitude of the fire and the fierce wind made it impossible for the firemen to get very close to the blaze however except behind it, though they worked in pretty close, especially on the front, before the flames ate their way through to the street there.

It was soon seen that the Marcy barn was doomed, but the greatest danger was not there. The high wind was carrying sparks, small and large, and even sizable pieces of burning wood were being carried and dropped on adjacent roofs and into back yards, in some cases nearly half a mile away. Bystanders readily gave assistance and by camping on roofs and making good use of hand chemical extinguishers, pails of water, etc., put out the fires as fast as they started. There was some lively work along this line however, for no less than 36 buildings in the line of the wind are known to have been on fire at different times, and without doubt there were others As soon as it was seen that the barn was doomed Chief Summers telephoned to the Wright wire mill for their hose and firemen, they maintaining a company of their own. When they arrived they were spread out in the path of the wind with instructions to keep a close watch on roofs and in back yards; a part of the hose they brought was put in use at once, the balance being held in readiness for use elsewhere if needed. Early in the fire it was suggested that help be asked from Springfield, but Chief Summers thought the local firemen would be able to hold the blaze to the Marcy barn; there was so much insistence however that he finally consented and Selectman H. W. Holbrook telephoned in. A steamer started via trolley in an hour after help was asked, and by that time the fire was under control and it was turned back at Ludlow.

In the meantime the firemen had been pouring water on every available part of the burning building and doing good work in keeping the fire inside, in which they were materially aided by the slate roof. Had it not been for this the end of the conflagration would have been a conundrum, as the high wind would have carried masses of burning shingles to great distances. With the falling in of the roof the men were able to get water more directly on the blaze, and in a short time had it deadened.

The work of the firemen elicited only favorable comments from the citizens and others who watched their efforts, many who have heretofore been inclined to be somewhat cynical. They worked with a coolness but system which could hardly have been improved upon, and the verdict is that they did "mighty well" to hold the limits which they did. Chief Gleason of Ware, who came down on an early car, stated that it was as good a stop as he ever saw; a party of Springfield firemen came out in an auto to watch the destruction of the town, and commented on the work of the firemen by a statement that the stop might be considered a credit to any company. Great credit should be given all citizens who assisted in the various parts of the town; had it not been for the efforts of these many buildings now standing would be in ashes "Everybody did well."

The fire had not been in progress long before the word was sent out that the Converse House, the Nassowanno House, Marcy's barn and six dwellings were burned and that the "whole town was on fire," and this was spread all along the line between Springfield and Worcester. About 200 people came from Springfield to watch the town burn, two large electric car loads came from Ware and the steam cars from Warren brought many others, while Monson, Wilbraham and other places sent generous quotas, only to be disappointed Those who came before 6, however, were treated to a thrilling though fearsome spectacle. It was a gruesome sight, the flames sweeping high in the air with a loud roar, while literally clouds of sparks and burning embers were being carried by the wind to distant points with the seeming almost certainty of trouble from them.

The loss is estimated at about $15,000, with $5000 insurance on the building and the same amount on the contents. The loss on the latter will be covered, as this is estimated to be about $1500, confined to sleighs, hay and straw, and harness; the horses and carriage were all removed safely. Mr. Marcy is located in the Nassowanno barn across the street, but is uncertain whether to rebuild or not; the barn cannot be replaced for much less than $10,000, as it was a very large structure and had numerous sheds connected, used for hitching teams. Goldberg's loss is between $300 and $400 on tinware, etc., with no insurance.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. There is little question but that it started in the section occupied by Goldberg, but how? Goldberg and another man were there about 4 o'clock, but left soon after; H. D Converse, with men and a team, were at work all day removing ashes and rubbish in that vicinity, and Mr. Converse left not more than 20 minutes, he says, before the alarm was rung; at that time everything was as it should be and there was no one about. The fire was discovered by John McBride, who went to the rear door of his barber shop, directly opposite the shed, and saw a big blaze on the pile of sacks inside; he seized a rake and attempted to pull over the heap of burning sacks, but was driven back by the rapid spread of the flames. Other persons came only a moment behind McBride and all agree that at first they saw no fire other than under the shed, with the exception of Assistant Chief Fuller, who says he found the lower part of the adjoining barn full of fire at the first. The flames soon made their way through the shed and spread with lightning-rapidity over the side of the Marcy barn, which had recently been painted. Aided by the wind they burned through the side of this building in less than two minutes and spread quickly through hay and straw There has been a suggestion that the fire originated in the Marcy barn, but this is disproved by statement of men who ran at once to get the horses out, they being unanimous in agreeing that there was no fire in the barn until it ate its way through from the outside. The barn occupied by Goldberg was burned Dec. 9, the fire originating in the interior, but the origin remaining unexplained.

An investigation this morning has satisfied Inspector James Anderson of Springfield that the blaze had its origin in the junk barn next the shed and worked into the shed from there. He is also of the opinion that "it was set, and set to go."

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY?

Followed by a Genuine Break Last Evening.

BUT THIEVES GET ONLY 39 CENTS.

Bank Block Visited Sunday Night But Without Results. Shaw's Market Last Night.

What appears like an attempt at robbery was discovered on the second floor of the savings bank block Monday morning At one side of the head of the stairway from Main street is a light shaft extending from the roof to the second floor with a skylight over the Goodes shoe store. The shaft is enclosed, but there are windows opening into it from the halls and from the office of Dr Roche, dentist Monday morning two panes of glass in the skylight over the Goodes store were found broken out, the fragments lying on the floor of the store. Slight marks on the woodwork of the window and on the plastering on the wall indicate that someone had tried to walk across the skylight but had broken through. The swinging window at one side, opening down into the shoe store, was left open all night, and if anyone had wished to enter the store that would have been the easiest way. On the opposite side from the broken glass were windows opening into Dr. Roche's office, and these had been left open; it seems most reasonable to suppose that whoever tried the strength of the skylight had these in view but failed to make the distance A couple of sheets of newspaper were spread on the floor outside the light shaft, but these give no clue as to how they came there or by whom.

Mrs Eliza Lincoln Keyes, 86, died Monday night at her home on Beacon st after a long illness. Mrs Keyes was born March 23, 1823, daughter of Warren and Dolly Lincoln, on Coy's Hill, the Lincoln Homestead, and was married September 5, 1843, to Danforth Keyes, who died December 14, 1897 Both Mr. and Mrs. Keyes could trace their ancestry through Revolutionary times, to the early Puritans about 1635. They moved into the village and built the home on Beacon street, moving into the new house in 1871. Mrs Keyes was a member of the First Congregational church for 70 years, was its oldest living member and was always interested in its welfare. PALMER NEWS.

INCENDIARY BLAZES.

Two Last Friday Night Which Were Undoubtedly Set, No Clues.

Two more fires fell to the lot of the Palmer fire department last Friday evening, although fortunately neither amounted to much. That was good luck however, for both were set, without the slightest shadow of a doubt.

The first call—in fact the only one rung—came at 8 48 from box 66 on South Main street, and was for a blaze in the rear of the long building known as the "Campbell" blacksmith shop, now owned by a New York woman The blaze was on the sill and up the outside casing of a window, the left one on the rear end. When discovered it had burned away quite a portion of the casing and was making good progress, although the flames had not penetrated to the interior. And therein lay the luck, for directly under the window there were unmistakable traces of kerosene, and in the corner less than two feet to one side, was a peck of shavings saturated with the oil. Evidently the incendiary had made his plans well, but had spilled some oil on the window sill, which, when he attempted to light the inside, canght and blazed up before he had time to ignite the plant inside. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. F. S. Hunnewell, who lives next to the building. Some of the firemen and citizens, by rapid work in tearing off burning boards, and by use of a couple of pails of water, had the blaze out before the apparatus arrived. The room into which the window opens is occupied by C. N. Ellithorpe & Son for the storage of cement, etc., and agricultural implements. The shavings were some left there by making some repairs.

A careful search was made in the vicinity, but nothing suspicious was discovered, and Chief Summers was starting for home when there was a shout, "Here's another one!" from a point nearer the railroad track. Michael Monahan, a street railway conductor living on Water street, in coming across lots from his home to Main street had seen a blaze in the rear of the old Dewey barn, used as a storehouse by the Flynt Building and Construction Company. This was also soon put out, though a few moments more would have developed a blaze which would have given the firemen a fight. Investigation showed that someone had pulled out the bottom of a loose board, tucked something inside and touched a match to it. There were traces of oil here also, but what else had been used had been all consumed before discovery. The location was well chosen being on the back side next the railroad track and lest likely of discovery until the fire had got well to going; only the fortunate passing of Monahan at the moment prevented a bad blaze. Another careful search was made about the premises and vicinity, but there were no clues to be had, and so far not the slightest indication of the identity of the incendiary has been found.

Monday afternoon the firemen were called out about 1.50 for a bad forest fire on and over the Dewey Hill northeast of the village. As near as can be determined the fire started along the path which is used as a short cut from the village to the carpet mill; the high wind carried it rapidly along and before it could be checked something like 200 acres had been burned over, the course of the fire being nearly to the north. Chief Summers and a large force of men fought the fire until 2 o'clock in the morning before they had it under control, stopping it just before it reached a valuable piece of timber.

While the men were hard at work on the forest fire the fierce whistling of a C. V. locomotive and an alarm from box 66 announced trouble near the C. V. freight yard. It proved to be on the roof of a building standing close to the track and used by the Flynt Building and Construction Company as a storehouse for tools, etc. A spark from a locomotive had started a blaze which was fast assuming dangerous proportions in the high wind; it was creeping up the roof at a brisk rate when it was attacked by a force of men with shovels, who ripped off the burning shingles and threw them to the ground, where the fire was quickly stamped out. The services of the department were not needed. The greater portion of the men were on the hill when the alarm was rung, and there was some rapid sprinting for the village, two of the men at least being "knocked out" for the time being by the violence of their exertions, though both were all right the next day.

On the return trip the party will leave Washington Thursday, May 6, in the morning, reaching New York in the afternoon and leaving on the 5.30 boat for Stonington; Palmer will be reached Friday. The trip to New York is made by boat because of the cheaper rate, the railroads having advanced their price since last year. The annual meeting of the Palmer Woman's Club will be held next Friday afternoon in the reference room of the public library unless notice to the contrary is given later. The dues for next year will be payable at that time.

That there will be a large attendance is already assured, there having been a large advance sale of tickets.

Shaw's market on Main street was entered some time last night and the contents of the cash drawer, 39 cents, taken. A few dates are missing, and the intruders evidently started to regale themselves on some jelly in glasses when they were frightened away. The exit was made by the rear door, but there is no clue to the method of entrance.

The childrens' Easter festival will be connected with this service, and there will be special Easter music by the choir of the mission. W. F. Waite is to begin at once the numbering of houses, preparatory to the installation of the free postal delivery. He will assign numbers to vacant lots, giving a number to every certain number of feet frontage. The department at Washington announces that mail will not be delivered at nnnumbered houses.

The services of the Baptist church in the Advent chapel Sunday will be as follows: Men's prayer meeting at 10 15, followed by morning worship and sermon at 10 45. E. at 6, evening praise service at 7, when the pastor will give a short sermon on "The Resurrection Life" and the Alexander gospel songs will be used.

Car No. 384 of the street railway, leaving Palmer at 2 15 Wednesday afternoon, made a "mess" of things where the line runs from private land into the highway near Walter Green's in North Wilbraham. As the car took the curve the forward truck left the track and plowed along for 40 or 50 feet, then settled down a foot or more into the soft sand. The passengers were given a scare but nothing more. Passengers were obliged to transfer around the spot for a couple of hours, until the car was back on the rails again.

The annual meeting of the fire district will be held in the district court room next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The warrant will be found in another column, the principal articles, besides the usual ones, being to see if the district will install a fire alarm box on Pine street, and a fire hydrant in front of the Commercial block on Main street. It is unlikely that there will be more than one ticket in the field, as it is understood that all the present officers are willing to serve another year and are endorsed by the firemen.

The street railway company is at work getting out lumber from its lot near Forest Lake with which to make repairs and improvements at that resort. The principal work will be at the theatre, where a number of new seats will be put in; some old chairs will also be removed and 200 new ones installed; an extensive addition will also be made to the stage. The attractions at the theatre will be furnished this season, as last, by the J. W. Gorman Amusement Company of Boston; the excellence of the shows last year is a guarantee of something equally satisfactory this season. The Lake will be under the management of William Rohan of Ware, as last year.

The school committee and selectmen will meet in joint session next Monday evening to fill the vacancy in the school committee caused by the declination of C. D. Fuller to serve after being elected. The only name heard in this connection is that of F. A. Upham of Three Rivers, who was defeated in the annual election in a three-cornered contest, the voters evidently preferring Mr. Fuller to Mr. Upham, but now that they cannot have Mr. Fuller there is no reason why Mr. Upham should not be chosen, and many why he should. He has served on the committee, has been a hard worker and displayed good judgment and ability, and has proved his worth in the position.

Prof. J. C. Monaghan of New York City will give a lecture in the opera house next Thursday evening under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Prof. Monaghan was formerly United States Consul at Holland and was for several years employed by our government in visiting foreign countries, gathering statistics as to their resources, and during the past two years he has revised this government's statistics and figures in that respect for ex-President Roosevelt. He knows the resources of this country, and, knowing also those of other nations, he is perhaps the best informed man in the United States to lecture on a subject such as he is to deal with here, which is "America, a land of unlimited opportunities."

The Greatest Success Known in Treating Rheumatism.

Uric-O Expels the Poisonous Uric Acid and Rheumatic Acid from the System, Insuring a Permanent Cure.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never free from the trouble. Uric-O seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure Rheumatism only

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould, and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1 00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Bldg, Syracuse, N Y.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sutcliffe Entertain Friends and Relatives.

About 60 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sutcliffe gathered at their home last Wednesday to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Sutcliffe have spent all of their married life in Monson and their friends here and elsewhere are many. A social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Many handsome gifts were left as remembrances of the occasion, including a profusion of flowers, many of the latter being yellow. Among the guests present were 10 grandchildren, and a group picture was taken of the party. Mr. Sutcliffe's only brother, William Sutcliffe, 82, and his only sister, Mary Green, 80, were also among those present. Of the 25 immediate relatives, 24 were in attendance.

Mr. Sutcliffe is 77 years old and was born in Manchester, Eng., coming to this country when 10 years of age. Mrs. Sutcliffe, who is 67 years old, was born in Orange, Mass. Both were living in Monson at the time of their marriage, the ceremony taking place in Wales. Mr. Sutcliffe has been prominent in town affairs, being a member of the school board for many years.

The Dresser-Woodward Recital.

Miss Elsie J. Dresser and Miss Lucy B. Woodward of Hartford, Ct., gave a recital in the Congregational church last Monday evening, assisted by Mrs Arthur D Norcross, soprano, and Miss Annie Krause, alto. A program of eleven numbers was rendered, all of which were greatly enjoyed by those present. The recital was opened by Miss Dresser, who rendered "Toccatta" by Mailly; Mrs. Norcross then sang "With Verdure Clad," which was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Krause sang "Allerseelen" and "Still wie die Nacht," giving a good interpretation of the German and pleasing all of her hearers. The last number of the program was especially fine, it being a "Concert" from "Stueck" by Weber. This was rendered by Miss Dresser at the organ and Miss Woodward at the piano. Great expression was shown by the artists and the combination tones from the organ and piano were exceptionally fine. Monson is a music-loving town, but no recitals have been held in recent years, and this proved a rare treat. It was formerly the custom to hold recitals every winter, and it is hoped they will be renewed this next winter. Miss Dresser is prominent in musical circles in Hartford, Ct., and Miss Woodward is organist at the Congregational church of this town and her skill at the organ is well known to Monson people. Mrs Norcross has sung in Boston and Worcester and has been in both the choirs of the Congregational and Universalist churches of Monson. Miss Krause possesses a strong and beautiful voice and is at present singing in one of the Congregational churches of Worcester.

Narrow Escape From Fire.

Monson had a fire scare yesterday morning about 8 30, and at first it looked as if a whole block might go. The roof of the old boarding house, now occupied by the telephone exchange, was discovered to be on fire. It was seen through the windows of the Business Men's club-room by Postmaster Seymour, who immediately 'phoned the exchange that their building was on fire. After doing this he rung in the alarm from box 15, and the department arrived in quick order. The flames began to break out in many places on the roof when the department arrived, and it is thought that it caught around the chimney. The building is very old and much inflammable material was stored inside. Some straw braid belonging to the straw shop was destroyed. The building was insured through the C. L. Peck agency. The roof will have to be repaired, but aside from that the damage is slight.

Death of William Beebe.

Monson lost one of its oldest citizens last Sunday morning in the death of William Beebe, who died at the home of Jesse P. Carew after an illness of Bright's disease. The funeral was held Tuesday morning, Rev. G. A. Andrews of the Congregational church officiating, and burial was in No. 1 cemetery. Mr. Beebe was born in Monson and had lived in this town all his life. He married Miss Louise Upham, who has been dead some years. Farming had been the principal occupation of the deceased and up to within a few years he owned a farm on East Hill. Mr. Beebe was well known to the townspeople and his genial and honest nature gained him many friends. Many beautiful flowers were sent by his friends. He leaves one son, Mark Beebe of Monson.

Mrs. H. I have no reason to change my opinion but on the contrary have even a higher regard for this preparation. I have learned of several others who have been benefited by its use. When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was in a miserable condition. It was impossible for me to turn in bed without grasping something to assist me, and the day I was never free from a dull backache. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me from the very first and I continued using them until they disposed of all signs of kidney trouble."

A FINE BIG STORE.

Public Invited to Inspect Forbes & Wallace Establishment in Springfield.

Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, have taken the occasion on their 35th anniversary in business, to invite the public to visit their store and inspect it from top to bottom. They have been keeping "open house" and have thrown open to visitors not only their retail salesrooms, but workshops, stockrooms and mechanical and operating departments, as they want everyone to go all through the establishment and see the workings of their great plant which are "behind the scenes." On application at the transfer desk guides will be provided to conduct visitors through the store, but if one prefers to find his own way about it is suggested that he take one of the elevators to the top floor and then walk down to the basement, inspecting the different floors as he goes.

The store of Forbes & Wallace is pointed out to visitors as the foremost mercantile enterprise of the city. The store is one of the most completely independent institutions in the city. Practically the only thing for which it relies upon outside sources is the merchandise it sells. It furnishes its own light, heat and power; makes the ice it uses; has a bakery which supplies its restaurant; a laundry which launders all the linen for the restaurant, lunch counter and the store in general; maintains a most complete delivery system, and employs 800 persons.

Probably no other enterprise has so great an influence as the Forbes & Wallace store in extending the trade of Springfield to surrounding country. It has advertised and gone after business outside the limits of the city in an aggressive and enterprising manner. The firm does an extensive mail order business, having hundreds of customers who do all their trading in this way, never coming to the store.

The observatory restaurant and its kitchens occupy the entire eighth floor. This is unquestionably the city's finest diningroom and it has grown rapidly in popularity ever since it was opened. It is kept open evenings until 8 o'clock and with its beautiful furnishings, fine service and the excellent music provided by the Philharmonic orchestra it is an ideal place for the evening dinner. On the seventh floor is the bakery, which supplies the restaurant, the lunch counter in the basement and the bakery department.

The sixth floor is taken up entirely by wholesale stockrooms, where the reserve stocks are kept.

The fifth floor is the largest wholesale salesroom in New England; here is also located the wholesale shipping room and the entry and billing room.

The entire fourth floor is devoted to the display of furnitnre

On the third are the general offices and the private telephone exchange with 60 odd stations scattered throughout the store and connected with the central service by 10 trunk lines. The picture gallery, carpet and rug department and piano warerooms take up the rest of the floor.

Besides the suit, garment and millinery salesrooms, the infants' store and the hair dressing parlors, there is a rest, reading and writing room on the second floor for the use of the public, also a finely furnished and perfectly appointed retiring room for women.

On the first floor are a great number of retail departments.

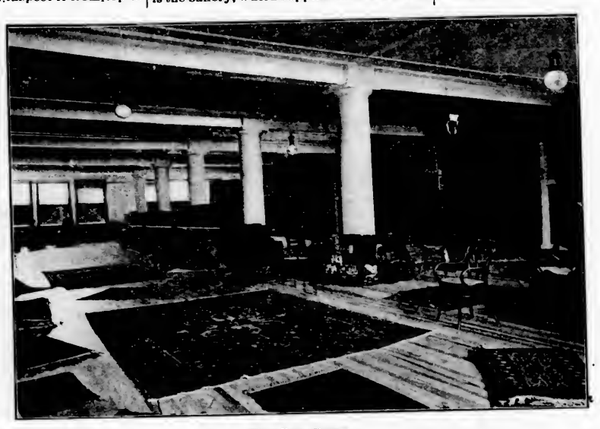
In the basement is the great house furnishing store, the pure food store, including groceries, bakery goods and delicatessen, the lunch counter, the receiving and delivery department and the power plant.

The immense suit, garment and millinery showrooms occupying the entire second floor of the Vernon and Pynchon street buildings and extending from street to street are really palatial and in the beauty and elegance of their furnishings are one of the show places of the city. The infants' store is on this floor and is as complete in its care for the wants of children as it is possible to make it. The linen store has won a fame which extends throughout New England. In the size and assortment of its stocks there are but few stores even in the great cities which can be compared with it.

The rug room, on the third floor, is considered one of the best arranged and best lighted in the country. A large and exceptionally well selected collection of rugs is carried here and shown on the latest type of display racks which bring hundreds of rugs within easy range of inspection, and the arrangements for lighting make it possible to show the rugs under any kind or degree of natural or artificial light required.

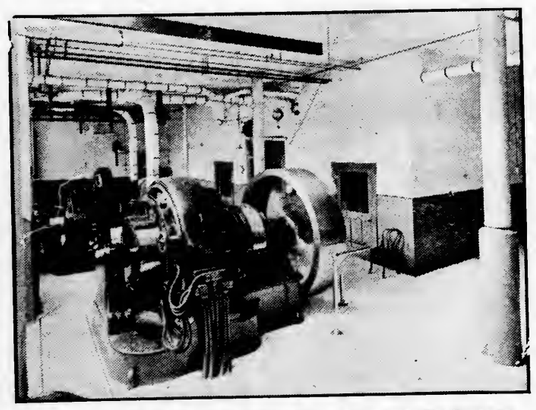
The bookstore is known throughout this region for the remarkable completeness of its collections. It is recognized as the most comprehensive in this region and is all the more noteworthy because there are very few book departments in department stores anywhere so thoroughly meeting the wants of the reading public.

Household Furnishings.



The furniture department, occupying the entire fourth floor, fills an important place in the house furnishing trade of this region. The drapery and upholstery departments are also notable for their complete stocks of artistic decorations.

The basement contains the china, glass, lamps, kitchen utensils and house furnishing supplies of like character and is notable for the careful selection and convenient arrangement of its stocks.



Among other departments not usually found in the department stores except in the great cities is the harness and automobile apparel and supply store which occupies the whole second floor in the front building.

The Power Plant.

The power plant is the largest private plant in the city devoted to lighting and heating. It occupies the entire basement of the old Pynchon street building and also extends a considerable distance outside, underground. It supplies the power for lighting (over 200 arc lights and 3000 incandescents are necessary to light the store), for heating, for the cold storage vaults and for running the machinery in the store. The power is generated by four large engines developing over 650-horse power, each direct connected to a dynamo generating a current of 110 volts. It operates three elevator pumps for the four hydraulic passenger and three freight elevators. These pumps have a capacity of 2000 gallons a minute and pump daily over 350,000 gallons of water for the elevators. The water comes from an 8-inch artesian well 570 feet deep, 500 feet being bored through solid rock and the supply is unlimited. The elevators are of the plunger type, the safest type known. The shaft, 110 feet long to reach to the top floors, has a travel depth of an equal distance into the ground, and when the elevator is at the top floor it is supported by a solid column of water which can escape only as it is pumped out. Accident is thus rendered impossible.

Minstrel Performance Next Week.

The minstrel performance to be given by the young people of St. Mary's church, Thorndike, will take place in the church hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. That there will be a large attendance is assured, as there has been a large advance sale of tickets. Those who are to take part—about 30 in number—have been in training under the direction of J. F. Luman for several weeks, and although it will be the first appearance in public for the most of them, they will undoubtedly give a good account of themselves. The principal feature of the show will be its originality. The songs and music have been carefully selected and of the order which will surely please.

The overture, which is bright and catchy, introducing in medley form the most popular songs of the day, has been arranged by J. F. Luman and Miss Katherine V. Holden. The costumes will be furnished by the Hooker-Howe Costume Company of Boston and will be elaborate. M F Hurley will be interlocutor; end men, bones, J. Dunn, P. Nagle, J. F. Luman; tambos, P. Cahill, D Brosnan and C. Dunn.

The olio or second part will consist of four special original acts, the first act being Jeremiah Lamery and his "Six Snubonuet Girls" in "I Wonder Why You Love Me So;" act 2, Miss Nellie Sullivan in character song "Somebody Ought to Tell Her Husband;" act 3, J. F. Luman in monologue and song "Broke;" act 4, the Misses Bengie and Chabbott in song and dance "Good Evening, Caroline;" the whole to concinde with a side-splitting after-piece entitled "Fun in a Restaurant," in which the principal parts are taken by Charles Dunn, John Dunn, Daniel Brosnan, Miss May Cavanaugh, Peter Cahill and Patrick Nagle.

The first part will consist of the following songs:

Medley Overture. Arr. by Luman and Holden
"Don't Take Me Home." P. Nagle
"The Girl I Used To Know." J. Lamery
Parody "Over On the Dumplin Side." John Dunn
"There Never Was a Girl Like You."

Not a Drop of Alcohol

What is a "tonic"? A medicine that increases the strength or tone of the whole system. What is an "alterative"? A medicine that alters or changes unhealthy action to healthy action. Name the best "tonic and alterative"? Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Ask your own doctor all about it. Never take a medicine doctors cannot endorse. *J. C. Without daily action of the bowels poisonous products must be absorbed. Then you have impure blood, biliousness, headache. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills for constipation.

SOME FINE FRESCOES.

The New Steiger Store at Springfield With Its Grand Staircase and Beautiful Paintings.

There is much to say about the Steiger store in Springfield, with its large addition and general re-arrangement. The handsome building which was opened in June, 1906, was hardly completed before it began to expand, and an addition which improves it superbly has been thrown open giving the store a sheer depth of 225 feet, nearly 100 feet wide in the rear, and perhaps it is all that can be said in a short article when we say that from any part of this great room any other part may be clearly seen, so widely generous is the space given to the great aisles and to each department.

The first thing that strikes you as you enter from the street is the great staircase 225 feet from you, but it is so strikingly beautiful in its proportions that you are immediately drawn to it. As to the departments, the most that can be said here is that the store remains what it began, "the woman's store," and that every department has been greatly increased because of this enlargement, while but three departments have been added, those of domestics, toilet goods, and linens, each being practically a store in itself.

A description of the great staircase and the fine fresco on either side is something that cannot be omitted, whatever regret one may have in telling the story, at being obliged to omit much attractive detail It sweeps up from the middle of a room nearly 50 feet wide, with a broad short flight ten feet in width, to a deep and wide landing, against the rear wall At either side this landing is round, reaching out over the floor below, and from it spring the twin staircases which reach to the second floor level. At the back of the first landing, or balcony, is a great mirror the full width of the main stair, while on either side of the mirror are panels done in beautiful green shades, with classic borders picked out in gold illuminated mosaic Above the mirror and side panels, and fully 25 feet wide, reaching to the ceiling of the high second story, is an immense show-case of three panels where beautiful gowns are displayed against a drapery background of empire-green velour. The Grecian scroll above these windows contains a large marble clock. All of the woodwork in this staircase is in beautifully treated quartered oak, and the balustrades are filled with an ornamented grill in copper-green shades. On the newel-posts stand beautifully designed electric lamps.

reach from it on either side on the rear wall are so novel in modern store-decoration that they nearly divide the honors. It is perhaps more just to say that they and the finely designed stair make a completeness which is notably good. The decorative scheme is of a procession moving from right to left and showing the costumes of Europe covering a period of over 400 years, from before the Reformation to the time of the French Revolution.

With somewhat unusual appropriateness the distant dates head the procession. Two panels are shown of a group of little boys in charge of their tutor a monk, and following them a group of little girls in their qualut, picturesque garments, in charge of a nun. Then follow the elaborate court dresses of the periods which make so picturesque and very attractive points in the history of the European peoples. There are the knights and ladies, the puffed and slashed sleeves of feudal times, the granges with their train-bearers and the bells and draperies of the French Empire when Napoleon brought it down.

This work is by Hans Gaterman, the well known decorator of Springfield, and the history of its development is the least feature Mr Guterman's in the city of Ulm on the Danube, Prof. Heyberger, a noted authority, and these figures come from a pageant held in the city of Ulm but a few years ago, in 1890, when materials participants were drawn from all royal and wealthy families of the German Empire. They came together to honor to the great city which for centuries was the leading market of the world for the production of silks, velvet and leather. Prof. Heyberger was the moving spirit in this colossal moving picture where over 5,000 people took part, and he directed his work by drawing and filling a complete picture of the grand parade There are literally yards and yards of it, and every figure is correct, from the point of personal portraits in many cases. Prof. Heyberger and Mr Guterman's aids, as pointed out. In the background the buildings of the ancient city, such as the City Hall 900 years old, and the Cathedral other buildings, is reproduced impressively in the background of Mr Guterman's fresco.

Altogether, this is a very fine proposition, staircase and pictures combined, and one is not disappointed when he emerges into the second floor and the gowns and suit department, with its beautiful furnishings, many commodious suit and fitting rooms, and the fine tone cast over everything by the floods of light from three sides above, softened by the tinted walls and the rich dark green carpet The third floor is devoted entirely to millinery, and it is safe to say that there is no such room anywhere in this part of the country. The fourth floor is, as formerly, devoted to men's, children's and infants' dresses and underwear. On the street floor at the rear, there is just approaching completion, a restaurant which, for beauty of conception, is a gem. This, again, is Mr. Guterman's work. The general color scheme is in soft blues and greens and design of both the panels and the mosaic floor being in the Roman It is an old style which for simplicity and quiet beauty, is wonderfully attractive and restful. There will be rows of small tables seating three each, and in the center five large tables seating from six persons each. At the left is the kitchen, and, if the capacity of this is overtaxed, which seems much to be unlikely, the broad staircase leads directly into the spacious basement, where a café can be installed.

The shoe department merits special attention. It is in the same location as one but is two-thirds larger and equipped in every way with the store. The fixtures are from floor to ceiling with shelves, beautiful order. There are oak revolving chairs along the heavy gray Wilton carpet on either side of the aisles, while in the rear is a special department, beautifully fitted, for children, with small chairs and tables for them, and large chairs for their mothers A novel feature is the narrow inclined foot-mirrors which run around the entire store behind the show cases. In front one enters directly into a rest and waiting room, some ten feet deep by the width of the store, separated from the main salesroom by a handsome some pillowed arch of carved oak. There is a desk and telephones, and a deep settle, and it is all exceedingly inviting

This is a brief description, but a complete story would be very long, the best way for you to get it is to go yourself on a trip that is well worth taking, with this end

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R. F. D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

A BRIDE SPRAINS HER ANKLE

While changing from one train to another a few days ago a bride wrenched her ankle very badly She was afraid she would be lame for some time for the ankle pained her and was swelling rapidly. One of her fellow passengers brought her a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. The Liniment stopped the pain at once and took down the swelling and next day her ankle was almost as strong as ever.

Mr. L. Rolland Bishop of Scranton, P., says:—"On the 7th of this present month, as I was leaving the building at noon for lunch, I slipped and fell, spraining my wrist. I returned in the afternoon, and at four o'clock I could not hold a pencil in my hand. I returned home at five o'clock and purchased a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and used it five or six times before I went to bed, and the next day I was able to go to work and use my hand as usual. I thought sure I would be laid up, and as we are busy I was very much worried. I cheerfully recommend Sloan's Liniment to all persons who may injure themselves in any way."

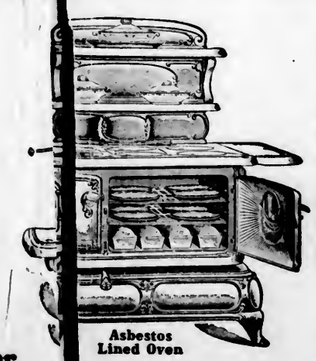
CAUSES DEBILITY

Here Are Facts Backed Up By a Strong Guarantee.



Debility is caused by catarrh. In our opinion, a person free from Catarrh was never troubled with debility. Debility can never be cured by medicine not designed to cure Catarrh. We positively guarantee to cure Catarrh, and thus cure Debility. In every case where we fail to effect a cure, we will not charge a cent for the medicine employed during the trial. Now surely no one should hesitate to believe us or to put our claim to a practical test under such conditions We take all the risk; no one else can lose anything by the transaction.

We make these statements and this offer because we know and have time and again proved that Rexall Muco-Tone will cure Catarrh. It is designed for that one particular purpose. It is not a cure-all prescribed to cure every disease that flesh is heir to. It is a specific. Rexall Muco-Tone is absorbed in the stomach and carried by the blood until it penetrates every part of the body, acting as an antiseptic, disinfecting, cleansing, soothing and healing agent It rids the system of all germ and poisonous matter, purifies and enriches the blood, rebuilds injured tissues, cleanses and invigorates the mucous cells, neutralizes the acids of the body, stops mucus discharge, tones up the entire system, promotes nutrition, increases body weight, and brings about a feeling of healthfulness that is lasting.

We have Rexall Muco-Tone in two sizes. Prices 50c. and $1 00. We urge you to try a bottle on our guarantee. Lynde & Gould, Druggists, Palmer.

Corner Stone of Congregational Church Unearthed.

LEAD BOX AND ITS CONTENTS INTACT.

Coins, Documents, Newspaper and Silver Plate With Inscriptions; Will Be Preserved.

Under the direction of H. G. Loomis, on Monday afternoon the corner-stone of the Congregational church, burned on the evening of February 1, was removed for the purpose of recovering anything that might remain of the record box deposited therein 62 years ago.

After the earth had been removed from in front of the stone it was easily tipped upon one side, the box being found intact. It was of lead, 5 by 8 inches and 2 inches in depth, and hermetically sealed; but for all this the enclosed papers were so damp that they required careful drying before they could be examined. The contents of the box consisted of three silver coins—a 5 cent piece dated 1847, a 10 cent piece dated, 1836 and a 25-cent piece dated 1834; two papers in manuscript; a copy of the Palmer Sentinel, dated Dec 17, 1846, and a silver plate covered with inscriptions. The writing on the document had become nearly unreadable, but enough could be deciphered to show that one of them alluded to the gift of the land by Alonzo N. Dewey for the purpose of building a church thereon, while the other seems to refer to the action and purpose of the church building committee. The Sentinel contained a very brief allusion to the building of the proposed church, and contained no local or personal items, as was the custom of that time. The silver plate is 3 by 4 inches and weighs 2¼ ounces. It bears the following inscription:

ERECTED
By an Association of Individuals
For the use of the 2d Congregational Church & Society of PALMER, For
The Worship of Almighty God,
FATHER SON & HOLY GHOST.

This corner stone was laid
May 20, AD 1847
BY THE
REV. ALFRED ELY DD, of Monson.

The inside of the cover of the lead box contains this inscription, scratched with some pointed instrument:

John S. Bailey
May 21, 1847,
In presence of
John A. Sqnier.

This was doubtless done as an evidence that due care had been preserved in depositing the desired articles within the sealed box, but the pnzzle is to nnderstand how Mr. Bailey and Mr. Sqnier gained admission to the box the day after it had been solemnly deposited beneath the heavy corner stone. Perhaps some wise modern Spiritualist can explain.

Attracted by the operation of digging about the stone, about thirty persons, young and old, remained to witness the finding of the box and to learn about its contents.

When the church was burned Mr. James Knox informed the church officials that the corner-stone was in a certain location, as he very well remembered the occasion of its laying and the position it occnpied. This was somewhat below the level of the visible fonndation stones, and its unearthing was left until the frost was out of the grond. The stone was fonnd exactly where Mr. Knox had said it was.

O. P. Allen.

MAX ROGERS.

The "Little Fellow" of the Rogers Brothers.

Max Rogers, the "little fellow" of the Rogers Brothers, snpported by Joe Kane, late star of "The Belle of New York" and other New York casino successes, who plays the opposite role, and the original New York Company, in his latest mnsical triumph "In Panama" will be the attraction at the Court Square Theatre next Monday. Mr Rogers is better fitted in his present role than he has been in any previous efforts. The sayings and parodies will convnlse you with langhter. The popular snbject of the day, Panama, affords wide scope for absnrd sitnations and comical sayings. While yon will not witness the attempt to dig the canal with children's pails and shovels, yon will see something more ludicrous in the supposedly ignorant German trying to run a Government. Max Rogers will not be the whole show in himself. The Rogers Brothers Company have been most carefnl in the selection of the snpporting cast, and better artists are seldom seen together in musical comedy. Miss Marion Stanley has been reëngaged as leading woman, Josephine Barrows and Miss Eileen Sheridan, considered two of the most beautifnl girls on the English speaking stage and who have been in Europe for the past few years, have been especially engaged for this production; Avita Sanchez, a native of Panama, is provided with a part particularly suited to her, Flo May, Sibyl Brennan, Nina Dn Bal and Ethel Fleming are also in the cast. The male contingent, headed by Max Rogers, consists of Joe Kane, George Lydecker, Phillip Leigh, Robinson Newbold, William Edmund, Frank Holmes, Henry Lehman, Alexander Kielman, and others will play less important roles. The above array of talent together with the large and carefnlly selected chorus, "Max Rogers" in "In Panama" should be a treat to all.

From the figures above, we compnte the total fire losses for the year to April 12th as $104,298, and the total value of the property exposed to loss as $337,150, making the total value of property saved throngh the efforts of the department $232 852.

We report that our apparatns is in good shape and our men are ready and willing to do their part. They give a lot of time at their meetings to rehearsals and schooling, and planning the placing of the various apparatns for different buildings.

Every member of the company has responded to a majority of the calls and the attendance and discipline at fires has been the best in the history of the department.

The men have shown great interest in their work, and we believe they have shown dnring the year that the increase in salary from $20 to $30 voted at the last meeting was warranted in every respect.

Our fire patrolman, Timothy J Crimmins, has given the district a diligent and conscientions service, and is entitled to great praise for the manner in which he has performed his duties and saved property from destrnction hy fire.

The Engineers wish to express the appreciation of the department to the citizens of the district for the coöperation at all times shown, and the help given in the putting out of fires.

Mention mnst be made of the efforts of the Wright Wire Company to coöperate with the department, and we wish to acknowledge the importance of the help that has been given, particularly at the wire rope mill fire and the fire at Marcy's stable. We wish also to report the receipt of a check for $100 from the Wright Wire Company, and a letter commending the work of the men.

The Prndential Committee has given a great deal of time and attention to the study of conditions in the fire district, and to them belongs much of the credit for improvement shown by the department during the past year.

In this line of additional equipment, we report the purchase of one thousand feet of donble-jacket hose which we expect will stand the strain required when the steamer is working. The same was bought from the C. C. C. Fire Hose Company of Canton Junction, Mass., and was a bargain at the price paid.

We have bought and placed six additional extinguishers in various places about the village, and their worth cannot be readily estimated when yon consider the number of fires that have been extinguished or checked by their nse.

The new coats and boots received have all been in use and are very much appreciated by the men.

Much-needed repairs have been made to the engine honse, and the quarters of the department very much improved.

The Engineers, accompanied by the Prudential Committee, visited the Massachnsetts Hospital for Epileptics, looking over their bnildings and examining their eqnipment, and snggesting the stringing of wire and placing of a box. The suggestions were carried ont, the state paying for the same. The Board has given considerable time visiting the buildings in the district, especially the hotel blocks and larger buildings.

We report that the department is much handicapped for want of horses to draw apparatns to fires. We see no opportunity for improvement, however, and believe that the perfection and development of the auto engines will in the near futnre solve onr problem.

Your engineers recommend as follows:

1. The purchase of additional ladders at no far distant date.
2. That racks be installed at the engine honse for the drying and cleaning of hose.
3. The purchase by citizens of hand fire extingnishers for the protection of their individual property.

We suggest fnrther that the engineers are always ready to give instruction as to the nse of the extingnishers, and on request will charge and re-charge the same free of expense to the owners.

We report the following inventory of apparatns now in nse by the department:

It was not largely attended, only 33 votes being cast, the greater portion of them by members of the fire department. The property owners showed a peculiar lack of interest, in view of the nnmerons fires dnring the year and the good work of the fire department.

F. L Gunn was chosen moderator. The old board of officers was reëlected, as follows: Chief engineer, James Summers; first assistant, C. E. Fuller; second assistant, E. B. Taylor; clerk and treasnrer, C

HOLYOKE BOYS ARRESTED.

Originated Forest Fire Saturday Afternoon.

ACCIDENT, HOWEVER, AND LET GO.

Lighted Dry Leaf Cigar and Threw Down Match; High Wind Started Fire At Once.

George Mauer and Ralph Hubbard, students in the Holyoke high school, were arrested in Palmer Saturday afternoon on a charge of violating the forest fire laws in having started a fire without permission. They spent a good share of the afternoon in the lockup, but were bailed out by their parents before night.

Chief Summers noticed, about noon, a fire in the woods near the head of Walnut street. He went to the spot and fonnd two lads fighting a fire which they were unable to control, even with his assistance. Other help was sent for and the fire pnt out. In the meantime the boys had departed on bicycles, but were headed off at the wire mill and brought back. They readily gave their names and told their story. They said they had come from Holyoke on a bicycle trip, bringing their lunch with them. After eating it Mauer rolled up some leaves in the shape of a cigar and lighted them; he threw the match down, supposing it to be out, but a blaze sprang up at once in the dry leaves. Both boys went to work on the fire at once, but it spread fast and they could not stop it.

After a hearing of the case in court Monday morning the boys were discharged, as there was no evidence that they intended to set the fire.

WARE.

Found Guilty of Assault and Battery.

Joseph and Leon Ziolbiewicz, brothers, were arrested Sunday and appeared in the district court Monday morning charged with assault and battery npon Wladyslaw and John Marcinek, two other brothers. The two former pleaded guilty and Judge Davis ordered each to pay a fine of $50 and also to recognize in the sum of $200 with sufficient snreties to keep the peace for six months. Neither were able to comply with the order and the two men were taken to Northampton by Officer B. W. Buckley. This was the result of a fight which took place on Water street Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock. What started the tronble is not known, bnt all who were in the honse at 23 Water street when the fracas started made themselves scarce, as nnmerons articles were being hurled about in all directions. Dr. D. M. Ryan, who attended the Marcinek brothers, fonnd it necessary to take six stitches in the face of one of them whose cheek had been cut clear to the bone near one eye. The other brother had several bad cnts in the back of his head. The arrests were made by Officer B. W. Buckley, who reached the scene shortly after the fight began.

Special Town Meeting.

A special town meeting will be called, probably for Wednesday evening the 28th. The principal reason for calling the meeting is in regard to the assessment of taxes. Usually an offset is figured of $9000 from liqnor license fees, based npon the receipts of the previons year, bnt as the town had no income last year from this sonrce no right existed to connt upon any snch offset this year before town-meeting. By holding a special meeting before May 1 and rescinding certain votes to raise and appropriate certain sums and then voting to appropriate them to the extent of $9000 from funds on hand it will do away with the assessing of that much upon the property to be taxed and materially lessen the rate. The matter of raising $1800 for street sprinkling will again come np, for while this amonnt was voted by a good majority at the town-meeting in March, it was not a legal vote, since it was passed nnder an article so drawn that not more than $1200 could be appropriated for snch a purpose.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Richard, 20, wife of Samuel Dubois of Indian Orchard, who died Tuesday morning of tuberculosis at the home of her parents on Ross avenue, was held in Mt. Carmel church yesterday morning at 8, and burial was in Gilbertville. Besides her husband, she leaves her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richard, and eight brothers and sisters.

Announcements have been received in town of the marriage on Monday in Peterboro, N. H., of Robert Paqnet and Miss Nellie Deming, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. Lee. The groom is well remembered in Ware as the crack third baseman of the team that represented the town in the Bi-State League three years ago. Last year he was in the nniversity of Vermont at Burlington, Vt.

The New England Telegraph and Telephone Company have been granted a right by the selectmen to dig a narrow trench across Main street from a point opposite the Barton block to the Storrs block. In this way the local telephone office will be able to change its quarters now in the Sagendorph block to the rooms formerly occnpied by Nenameseck tribe of Red Men. The heavy cables would be a menace to the other wires over Main street if carried across from pole to pole, so they will be put underground. The cables to the north of Main street, reaching the Storrs block by way of North street will also be kept off the high poles at the lower end of the street, and the pole nearest Main street is to be moved 18 feet np North street.

PALMER NEWS.

CLEANER BACK YARDS.

Fire Engineers to Prevent Accumulation of Inflammable Material.

The board of engineers of the fire district have in contemplation the preparation of a set of rules and regulations concerning the accumulation of rubbish or combustible materials in back yards, etc., especially in the business section Certain localities have been for months fire traps of the most dangerous kinds. Empty boxes and crates, old papers and rubbish of all kiuds, even piles of excelsior, have been for weeks allowed to lie close to wooden buildings, with the wonder that no match found its way to such inflammable matter. The frequency of recent fires, with the certainty that some were deliberately set and the feeling that others were, has caused an uneasiness in the minds of many who would like to see better conditions and less likelihood of a serious conflagration. Accordingly the engineers have taken the matter in haud and are makiug a selection of rules suitable to Palmer from those in force in other places. The authority for such action is found in section 34 of chapter 62 of the Revised Laws, which states that "The board of eugineers may make and publish such rules and regulations as provided in case of fire departments by sections 46 and 47." Section 46 provides that "They may prohibit owners or occupants of buildings within their town, or such part thereof as they may designate, from erecting or maintaining any defective chimney, hearth, oven, stove or stovepipe, fire frame or other fixture, deposit of ashes or whatever else may give just cause of alarm or be the means of kiudling or spreading fire. Whoever violates any such rule or regulation shall, for each offense, forfeit not more than twenty dollars."

Roundhouse Roof Falls In.

A portion of the roof of the Ware River railroad roundhouse on North Main street, wearied with its weight of years and lacking support by reason of decayed timbers, fell in about 12 15 yesterday morning. The building is a large one and the roof was composed of tarred paper and gravel, supported by timbers inside. Two locomotives in the house were damaged somewhat. The portion of the roof which fell was on the west side, but the walls of the entire structure were badly wrenched and it has been ordered that no more locomotives he put there; signs warning all persons away from the building have also been posted. A railroad official who came to Palmer yesterday morning to inspect the damage was heard to say that the structure was not worth rebuilding, and residents along North Main street in that vicinity certainly hope that the damage to the building is so great that the railroad will rebuild elsewhere in deference to the protests which have been made during the past year regarding the smoke and noise nuisance existing abont the premises. There will be an emphatic protest against rebuilding, and if this does not avail it is likely that the courts will he resorted to In an effort to prevent a reestablishment of the nuisance.

Three Forest Fires In One Day.

The firemen had their fill of forest fire fighting on Monday, three bad ones falling to their lot. The first was in the Forest Lake district about 1 in the afternoon, a Boston and Maine engine being responsible for a blaze which hurned over a considerable territory northwest of the lake hefore it could be controlled. The worst one of the season so far started abont the same time near Blanchardville from a spark from a Boston and Albany engine. It was rapidly making headway over the hill toward Palmer Center, with hundreds of cords of wood helonging to J. M. Allen only a short distance ahead, when it was stopped with the aid of a gang of 60 men from the B. and A. work train. About this same time word came from West Brimfield that there was a bad fire just over the Palmer line in the Mason district. Chief Summers was out of town, and Assistant Chief Fuller refused to send ont any more of the firemen; with the high wind prevailing he didn't care to leave the village unprotected. When the Forest Lake gang returned they were sent to West Brimfield and assisted in getting the fire under control.

Meeting of the Palmer Historical Society.

At the meeting of the society Tuesday evening, Mrs. Frank S. Brewer read an interesting and instructive paper on "Old Chester, England," giving a resume of its history, antiquities, traditions and present aspect, ending with a graphic account of the visit paid to the city and environs by herself and Mr. Brewer last summer. The paper was illustrated by a large collection of beautiful views of Chester, collected by Mr. and Mrs. Brewer last summer. After the reading of the paper, remarks were made hy Mr. Rathbone, whose home is not far from Chester, and by Mr. Brewer.

The curator reported these donations to the society: Cash capitalization, etc., of the American railways by Thompson, history of the 40th N. Y. regt. of vols. by Fred C. Floyd, history 10th Mass. hattle by John D. Billings, Our First Century by R. M. Devens, presented by Mrs. Ida V. Spaulding of Palmer, to whom a vote of thanks was offered; a copy of the Ulster Co. Gazette, published Jan. 4, 1800; a copy of the Hampden Patriot, published Jan. 28, 1824.

Boys to Raise Money for Church.

The boys connected with the Congregational church have adopted a novel method of raising funds for the new church building. They plan to gather as much of the waste paper of the village as possible, bale it and store it, and then dispose of it when the market reaches a good figure. The price for this material is much higher than it was a few years ago, and the hoys are confident that they can make a material sum. While the plans are not fully perfected yet, the boys are in hopes to secure a large number of "customers" among the business men and householders; if they can do this they will make systematic removals of the waste paper at regular intervals. And now that the building of fires of any kind in the open is prohibited until Decemher 1, this will afford an easy means of disposing of what might otherwise prove a decided annoyance to many families.

Mr. Upham for School Committee.

At the joint meeting of the school committee and the selectmen, held Monday evening for the purpose of filling a vacancy on the school board by the refusal of C. D Fuller to serve after having been elected, F. A. Upham of Three Rivers was chosen. Mr. Upham has been a member of the board for the past three years, but was defeated in the annual election by Mr. Fuller, whose name was used without his consent.

Don't Build Bonfires.

There does not seem to he a full understanding of the provisions of the "sprout lot act" adopted by the town at the annual town meeting. It provides, among other things, that between the first day of April and the first day of December, no person shall set a fire in the open air without permission of the forest fire warden, unless the same shall be on plowed ground and not less than 200 feet distant trom woodland. This prohibits the hurning of rubhish even in the back yard of a householder, unless permission has previously been obtained. Any person may make complaint of violations of the law, and half the fine goes to the complainant. Persons who have previously been in the habit of burning leaves and other rubhish and waste on their premises will do well to first get permission in the future.

Liquor Licenses Granted.

The selectmen viewed on Monday the places in which it was desired that liquor might be sold the coming year, and on their return from the trip granted the licenses as follows: First and fourth classes to E R Pierce & Co., M. E. Murphy & Co., E. W. & C. H. Burns and W. F. Dunn & Co., of Palmer; J. F. Loftus & Co., Thorndike; Michael Sullivan & Co., Bondsville; A. P. Grise & Co., Three Rivers The druggists' licenses were left over until a later date. The licenses as granted are to the same persons who have had them the past year

The town clock has stopped again. It was put in repair some time ago by A. E. Fitch, who has cared for it since, but has grown tired of putting in his time for the fun of it. The rain which fell in generous quanities all day yesterday and in a lesser degree all night did an incalculable amount of good. It is reported that something over two inches of rain fell, and the streams and ponds are full in consequence. The roads were washed somewhat in places, hut not very much. The greatest good perhaps, was the stopping of forest fires and the preventing, for a time at least, of any others.

A small band of gypsies passed through Palmer this forenoon, the women of the party making the usual appeal to tell fortunes for anyone who would stop to listen to them. Failing to be given an opportunity to display their skill, they then made an appeal for small sums of money, failing the production of which they had an unpleasant habit of applying vile epithets to their hearers. One of the women was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Northrop for begging and will appear in court in the morning.

99 Years Old on Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Griggs Moore, who lives at the home of her daughter, Mrs Sanford Booth in Dunhamtown, passed her 99th birthday Tuesday and received visits from neighbors and relatives in honor of the occasion. Mrs. Moore is in good health and is very industrious, spending much time in sewing and braiding rugs. She also reads, enjoying especially her weekly reading of The Journal.

Mrs. Moore was Miss Mary Griggs of Union, Ct., where she was born April 13, 1810. She was married to Dexter Moore of that town July 4, 1839 They lived in Staffordville and afterwards in Union, where Mr. Moore was killed in his sawmill about 25 years ago. Mrs. Moore has made her home in Brimfield with her daughter, Mrs. Booth, for about nine years. She goes about the house, and is looking forward to warmer weather when she can get out of doors and step upon the ground again. Among Mrs. Moore's visitors Tuesday were her son, Malone Moore, and his daughter, Miss Ethel, of Stafford Springs. She has another son, Emerson Moore, who lives in Sidney, N. Y.

In "The Golden Butterfly," by deKoven and Smith, which will be the attraction at the Court Square Theatre, Springfield, next Wednesday evening, there is one love-waltz song that occurs about a dozen times in the opera and is the motif. It is entitled "Do Not Forget Me," and those who have heard it declare it is deKoven at his best.

Little Willie. "Oh, Mr. Henpeckkee, won't you play something on the violin?" Mr. Henpeckkee. "Why, really, I would if I knew how." Little Willie. "Oh I guess you know how My pop says you play second fiddle to Mrs. Henpeckkee."

A word for Nero—"Nero fiddled while Rome burned!" exclaimed the student. "Well," replied Mr Growcher, "that's better than the custom many violinists have of practicing at a time when everything is nice and quiet otherwise"—Washington Star.

"Of course, she's pretty, but she doesn't look as if she had sense enough to know her own name." "She doesn't, half the time. You see, she's just been married to a Polish nobleman"—Philadelphia Press.

REAPING BENEFIT.

From the Experience of Palmer People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Palmer residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Otto R. F. Smith, farmer, living one mile out on Thorndike Road, Palmer, Mass., says: "In the spring of 1901 I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them beneficial in every way. In fact I was so gratified that I gave a statement in favor of this remedy. When I first began using it my kidneys were in a much disordered condition. My back ached constantly and I could hardly arise from a chair after sitting for some time. There was also a disagreeable feeling in my head and I was annoyed by a difficulty with the kidney secretions. I do not wish it understood that Doan's kidney Pills completely cured me, but they benefited me greatly. I know of others who have used Doan's Kidney Pills with the same excellent results, and I gladly give them my recommendation."

The Case of Major Iglehart

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

It was a queer case, that of Major Iglehart. He was neglectful of duty, slovenly in appearance and drank hard. His uniform hung on him limply, his coat turned green, his boots were muddy, and his hair protruded through a hole in his hat.

Charges for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman—drunkenness—were preferred against the major. They were about to come up for trial when suddenly the enemy came down on us. The colonel led the retreat, the lieutenant colonel following in close order. Of the field officers the major alone was at the front. But he was not the officer we had known. He was transfigured. He sat erect on his horse, his eye lighted with the fire of battle, and his orders rang out in a clear, ringing tone. It seemed that he had returned to the being he had been before some great sin or some great grief had blighted him.

He found the men in confusion, some flying, some gathering their weapons and accouterments, some making an effort at formation. The moment he appeared, out of the struggling mass a line developed, and those running to the rear came back and re-enforced it. Seizing a standard, he called upon us to follow and, charging, saved the day.

After it was over all reverted to its former status. The colonel and lieutenant colonel resumed command, and the major got drunk. But the charges were quietly withdrawn. Though the major greatly lowered the moral and social tone of the regiment, he must be endured. Everybody felt that way—the field officers because he could lead the men in battle and they could not, the line officers and the men because they must have some one to lead them when there was fighting to do. No one thought of advancing the major to the position of colonel. Such a colonel would ruin the regiment with the army. For a while we tried to treat him with consideration, but he was so shabby, so unsoldierly, in every way so degraded, that we soon gave it up and realized that our handsome colonel was still our commander.

And so it continued. When the colonel spoke to us, as he often did, in a pleasing and dignified manner, calling us "my boys," we cheered, but the first thing we knew we were following the major over breastworks or standing in line with teeth set, taking punishment. Every time there was fighting to be done he loomed up at the front, and when it was over he sank back into his habitual stupor.

Under our colonel the regiment acquired an excellent reputation for discipline and soldierly bearing. Under the major's leadership in battle we became known as one of the most gallant bodies in the army. Of course the regiment must be honored in some one's name, and it was impossible to honor us through the major. Therefore the colonel got no end of mention for gallantry and eventually was made a brigadier general. That let the lieutenant colonel in for the balance of the glory, all of which emanated from the major.

The major never made any complaint at the fact that all these honors passed over his head. He didn't seem to care. Nor did any one in the regiment object. We all felt that our services should have recognition and considered that honors conferred upon him would be no recognition at all.

At the last fight the major fought the army was held in check by a hill on which the enemy had planted artillery, and everything was at a deadlock. The general rode up to our regiment and asked for the colonel and lieutenant colonel in quick succession. Nobody could tell him where they were. He asked for the next in command. Some one told him that Major Iglehart was asleep on a fence rail near by. At that moment the major appeared. The general looked at him in despair. Nevertheless he gave him an order to take the hill.

The way the major walked us up that hill was a sight to behold. The general beheld it from below and when the hill was ours rode up and asked for the major. We showed him the officer lying on the ground with a bullet hole in his forehead. The general turned away sadly with the remark, "If he had lived he should have had a division."

We all knew more about that than the general. The major in command of a division! Absurd! Yet there was something about the clay he had left behind—his former self—that made us forget his second self and think of him as a major general. With that look on his face we buried him, fired a volley over him and forgot him till the next fight, when, having no one to lead us, we covered ourselves with disgrace and after several such episodes were mustered out of the service with dishonor.

But to finish about the major. The day after he was killed a letter came for him addressed in a woman's hand. Not knowing what to do with it, the adjutant concluded to consider it a dead letter, open it for the address of the sender and return it. It read:

My Darling—Today my son, which sel when you left us, believing you a guilty man, has risen, though, oh, how sad! Will has confessed. You may now assume your own individuality and come back to us. Doubtless, coming as a soldier from the front, you will have great influence in obtaining a pardon for him. Come to me, my love, and forgive me for believing you when you made that false confession. In life and in eternity your love, ALICE.

The letter went back to Alice endorsed, "Killed while glory dropped a wreath upon his brow." And that's the last we ever heard of the case of Major Iglehart.

Our Epoch-Making Closing Out Sale Now in Progress.

It marks the last milestone in our merry march to bigger and better things; the final stand—as it were—before inviting you to the auspicious opening of our new specialty shop for women

Everything Must Be Sold---Every Single Thing.

We would especially impress upon you the importance of reading every word of this announcement, for the statements which are to follow will tell briefly the reason for the tremendous reductions we shall make to dispose of our stock. When our lease expired several months ago we executed another lease for the handsome store at 387 Main street, and became a tenant at sufferance at our present quarters. Alterations were immediately begun on the new store, but unavoidable delays made it impossible to move before Easter, as we had anticipated. We made large purchases for the new store and were compelled to add them to the stock we had. Since then we have ordered a complete new stock for the new store. Consequently we must dispose of the stock on hand immediately. We won't haggle over prices—everything must be sold, bring what it will. We have already disposed of our fixtures and many shelves, tables and cases have been removed. We will have to do business on boxes and boards, but we shall depend upon the prices for your approbation. They will be most tempting—in many cases absolutely irresistible. Remember, if we are unable to turn this stock into money during the ten days of our final windup sale, we shall offer the stock to small dealers in small lots. The merchandise must be sold. To that end

Prices Have Been Cut Unmercifully

No matter how great the sacrifice, we have but one end in view, the quick disposition of the present stock; so that our new store may be new in every sense of the word. That we will be able to save you more than you can possibly earn is a foregone conclusion. We invite the skeptical to come in. We invite the particular buyer to come in. In fact, we invite one and all to avail themselves of this extraordinary money-saving opportunity.

The stomach and digestive organs are many times the cause of some disease which might have been prevented if these organs had performed their natural functions, and the great variety of symptoms which arise from a disordered condition of the stomach and liver, cause many people to think that they have some awful disease. A poor acting stomach and liver will cause headache, backache, nervous troubles, distress after eating, bloating, sour stomach, heart pressure, insomnia, loss of flesh, constipation and many other disagreeable feelings. If you are a sufferer of any trouble and your stomach or liver is out of order correct these troubles first, get the benefit of the food you eat, and your other troubles will many times correct themselves. Walker; recording secretary, Miss Bartlett; corresponding secretary, D. D. Hazen; treasurer, Mrs. William E. Bridgman; auditor, H. A Hopkins. The annual meeting of the society will be held the 28th.

Preferred Death to Rheumatism

Suffered Untold Agony For Many Years. Found Permanent Cure in Uric-O Treatment.

The following letter is one of thousands received at our office and should be of interest to Rheumatic sufferers.

Prof. C. J. Budlong, Phoenix, R. I., says: "For years I suffered untold agony from Rheumatism, and was unable to get out of bed without assistance. At times I was in fearful agony and was miserable and wanted to die My limbs were drawn up and badly swollen and I could just manage to wobble around with the aid of a cane or crutches Learning of Uric-O I purchased a bottle and began its use. I was benefited from the start and after using six bottles was entirely cured. I will gladly answer correspondence from rheumatic sufferers."

Uric-O is an internal blood remedy and it acts on the blood, muscles and kidneys. It is not a cathartic or poison and is recommended for one disease only, Rheumatism, in all its forms.

Commence a Uric-O treatment to-day and start yonrself upon the highway to perfect health and happiness.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould and by druggists everywhere at 75c. and $1 00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co, 271 Smith Bldg, Syracuse N. Y.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A. LeGro; auditor C. E. Fish; prudential committee, L. E. Chandler, W. E McDonald, C. L. Waid There was no contest and there were only two scattering votes, one for auditor and one for a member of the prudential committee.

Several important actions were taken It was voted to install a telephone in the engine house, to install an additional fire hydrant on Main street in front of the Commercial block, and to add one new fire alarm box, on Pine street. The salary of the chief engineer was raised from $150 to $200, that of the fire assistant from $35 to $100, and that of the second assistant from $30 to $75. All officers and men of the department received a raise last year with the exception of the chief engineer, and it was this year pointed out that under the old schedule the first assistant engineer was receiving less pay than the foreman of the steamer company. A committee of five was appointed to consider and recommend on the matter of salaries, with the above result. A fire patrol and fire alarm superintendent will be employed as usual.

These appropriations were made:

Salary of firemen,	$ 610
Engineer of steamer	75
Stoker,	50
Chief engineer,	200
First assistant,	100
Second assistant,	75
Clerk of steamer company,	10
Janitor of engine house,	80
Treasurer's salary,	30
Treasurer's bond,	10
Fire patrol,	250
Superintendent of fire alarm,	75
Water rent,	1,200
Contingencies,	450
Coal,	40
Telephone in engine house,	25
New fire alarm box,	100
Interest,	50
To pay loan,	1,030
Total,	$4,570

Not since the organization of the fire district has there been so comprehensive a report submitted to the voters as that presented by the board of engineers. It covered every phase of the department's work, and is given herein full:

MONSON MAN'S SUICIDE.

Body Found Lying in Meadow Monday Morning.

BOTTLE OF CHLOROFORM IN HAND.

Deed Evidently Committed Saturday Afternoon. Out of Work and Despondent.

The body of William Babbitt, 22, was found Monday morning lying in a meadow in the village of Monson, not a great distance from the main street of the town. The body lay face down, and clasped in one hand was a two-ounce bottle containing a small quantity of chloroform, while spread under the face was a handkerchief. The body was rigid, and there was evidence that death had ensued some time before. Associate Medical Examiner Jackson of Monson found that death was due to chloroform poisoning, a quantity of the drug having been swallowed.

The place where the body was found is in the rear of the residence of H. C Norcross on Cushman street, but hidden from the house by a small knoll. Mr. Norcross, while about the premises on Sunday, saw someone lying on the grass, but as this was not an uncommon occurrence in the summer thought nothing about it, even when evening came and the person had not gone. Monday morning he told his son, A. B. Norcross, what he had seen and wondered if the man was still there; they agreed to go and look, and found the body, recognizing it at once.

The deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Babbitt, long time residents of Monson, and lived with his parents on Pease avenue. He had been out of work for some time and was somewhat despondent. The last time he was seen alive was Saturday afternoon. Mr Babbitt was a native of Monson, and leaves, besides his parents, three sisters, Mrs. H. F. Miller of Monson, Mrs. Charles Ricketts of South Manchester, Ct., and Mrs G. F. Ball of Hartford, Ct.

NAMES OF STREETS.

List Adopted by Town at Annual Meeting. Signs Up Soon.

The new street signs have been received by the selectmen, and will be placed in position in a short time. While there have been more or less signs on the streets for years, they have been placed there principally by individuals and there has been no particular system or uniformity. The new signs are of metal and will be placed in conspicuous places on all the streets. This has been necessitated by the demand of the postal department at Washington that all streets be named and signs placed on them before the free postal delivery began June 1.

Knowing this, the village improvement committee of the Palmer Business and Social Club took the matter in hand, went over the ground carefully and submitted to the annual town meeting a list of names which was adopted. There are few changes in the new list from the names by which the streets have previously been known, the principal change being that there are now no "avenues," all which have formerly been known as such now being plain "streets." The committee made an exhaustive examination of old records in their work, and found that many of the street names had been acquired through usage, in some instances a name never having been assigned, and in others the original name having been displaced by one which had in some manner become associated with the street.

The list as adopted is as follows:

"DICK" IS ALL RIGHT.

Representative Hobson Making Enviable Record Down at Boston

Friends of Representative Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer, who is known as "Dick" to his intimates hereabouts, who have been watching his work for the First Hampden district at the state house have known that he has acquired an enviable prestige and is listened to attentively on the rare occasions when he speaks. Not only is he given the closest attention, but his remarks always have weight. Along this line "Practical Politics" had the following under date of April 17, last Saturday:

Rep. Hobson of Palmer is adding to his laurels in the Legislature every day. Four times this session he has dissented from the reports of the committee on judiciary on measures of importance and each time he has overturned the committee's report in the House. His address this week on the bill to allow judges to instruct juries on questions of fact on opinion evidence was one of the most masterly ever delivered in either branch of the Legislature. After that address there was nothing for the House to do but side with Rep. Hobson and kill the bill The House also sided with the young Palmer Legislator when he opposed the report of his committee on the Vahey anti-death penalty bill, the Hisgen, anti-discrimination bill and the Dow bill for a commission to determine causes of delay in civil actions.

Our Boston correspondent sent the following in his weekly letter, which appears in another place in this paper:

"Mr. Hobson of Palmer was called to the chair by Speaker Walker for a part of the forenoon session Wednesday, and the applause which was given him was a true index of the popularity which he enjoys among the members. He has well earned a reputation as one of the best speakers in the House, and he is of such good natnre that the members all like him. Yet he never compromises his principles for the sake of being a good fellow."

Some yearling stock kept under the barn were driven ont by smoke and escaped The barn is on the place formerly occupied by Mrs. George Allen and a year ago Ralph Shaw, whose mother owns the place, went there to live. WILL HELP RURAL TOWNS.

Steam and Trolley Roads to Exchange Freight Cars.

TRACK CONNECTION MADE THIS WEEK

Towns to Eastward of Palmer May Now Receive Freight in Carload Lots From Anywhere.

The towns to the east of Palmer,—Wales, Brimfield, East Brimfield and Fiskdale,—are to have a trolley freight service by direct connection with the Boston and Albany railroad at Palmer. In fact the connection has already been made between the tracks of the B. and A. and the trolley line at Tenneyville, where the trolley company has had a track which it used for the transporation of material when the line was built. Until recently—this week—the connection with the B. and A. had been removed, but was restored after a visit of inspection by trolley and steam road officials last Friday afternoon. The trolley road has a franchise permitting it to haul freight in trains not exceeding four cars, and has desired to exercise it, but the policy of the B. and A has been not to make exchanges of cars with any trolley line. Evidently there has been a change of policy, and now freight may be sent and received by these lines.

The change will mean much to the towns which have heretofore been obliged to make long hanls of heavy freight. The mills at Wales have for years been compelled to haul their coal eight miles from Palmer, over two long and steep hills, and take their finished goods to market by a haul in the opposite direction over the same road. By the new arrangement the haul will be reduced to about two miles, a material saving in cost. The auger shops at East Brimfield will also benefit in the same manner, though in their case the coal will be delivered at their door. The new arrangement should mean increased prosperity for the rural communities.

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, April 21, 1909.

Taxation reform to a degree not probable in any previous Legislature for a long time is probable this year. Two measures from the taxation committee this week give much promise. One of them was proposed last December at the annual meetiug of the Massachusetts Assessors' Association at the Quincy House. It proposes that the day for the annual assessment of taxes be put earlier, so that it will come April 1, instead of May 1. The states to the north of us have April 1, and the way our tax-dodgers work it is to have their domicile in Massachusetts on May 1, for the purposes of the New Hampshire assessors, say, so of course they are not liable to assessment up there on April 1 But by the time May 1 gets along in Massachusetts, their domicile is in New Hampshire, and of course their personal property cannot be assessed in Massachusetts By making the day for assessment here the same as it is to the north of us, these men will be caught somewhere Furthermore, Boston is likely to get taxdodgers who remove out of the city, but not out of the state before May 1, but are here April 1 The Boston assessors have voted unanimously to approve the bill, and they have sent a circular to the Legislature saying so and inclosing another circular by the president and secretary of the Massachusetts Assessors' Association approving the change If that scheme works, they will get millions more of taxable property.

Bnt the second proposition is much greater. It grows out of the work of the legislative recess commission two years ago, of which Prof. Charles J. Bullock of Harvard was the expert statistical member, and it is an effort to get the $1,500,000,000, more or less of personal property in the state which is guessed to escape taxation. Precedent is found in other states, and it is proposed to levy a so-called three mill tax, or $3 on $1000 on this sort of personal property. It works well in some states and has brought on the lists hnndreds of millions otherwise elusive of the assessors The fact is proved to be that many men are willing to pay their fair share of taxes, but our present law which taxes double an immense quantity of foreign corporation stocks is simply so intolerable, as these men see it, that they will not stand it, and the assessors are not sharp enough to find their property. When a conservative stock is yielding 4, or 4½, or 5 per cent and the tax takes off at a slice 1½ per cent as it does, reducing a 4 per cent stock to 2½, most holders refuse to see the justice. Bnt this proposition of taking off only one-fifth as much will permit many men to face the assessor and tell what they really have. Very likely the assessors will oppose the bill, for, on its face, it is a compromise which abandons an essential point. But the fact is that similar propositions in other states have brought much relief and have materially helped the situation. Every expedient has been tried in this state only to fail, and now the taxation committee believes it is time for something else. Hence it has reported the constitutional amendent which will permit the proposed law. It strikes ont the requirement that taxation must be proportional and empowers the General Court to make laws which are reasonable for the purpose.

Another report of the week is of high importance to all the citizens,—that of the committee on education for a reorganization of the state board. Nominally there is only one dissenter, Mr. Mellen of Worcester. But Messrs Gardner of Westfield, Barry of Chicopee and Senator Evans are not in favor of the plan and have reserved their right to dissent. Nominally the bill concedes the control of the situation to the present state board of education, for it says that four members of the present board shall be appointed on the new board, one member of the industrial commission, and four new persons from outside. But really the bill makes possible and almost certain a complete revolntion in the policy of the state, and anch would doubtless be the consequence if the bill should pass. Gov Draper is a very pronounced advocate of industrial education as distinct from the so-called broad culture which the state has made the basis of specializing. Here is how the bill would work ont in practice under a governor committed to that idea: One member of the industrial commission, as the bill provides, plus the four new outsiders to be appointed, with Frederick P. Fish, one of the present members of the board, who is strongly on the industrial side, would make a practical standing of the proposed new board of six industrials to three broad culture men, or a working majority of two to one. That would insure a radical departure from the policy of the state and would amount to a formal condemnation by the Legislature of the recent educational history of Massachusetts, in spite of the fact that Secretary Martin, the executive officer of the board, is friendly to industrial development, side by side with the broad culture, and he was the man who proposed the industrial commission to Gov. Douglas, whose creation seems to be worked for the overthrow of the state board of education itself. So queerly do forces operate in this topsy turvy world.

The committee on agriculture is very busy this week with executive sessions on the milk standard. There are so many points to consider that it must take a long time to work them out with satisfaction. It remains that the state board has advised that a year longer be given to trial of the present standard and it is possible that such will be the outcome.

For the first time this week there has been a debate and vote on one of the many proposed amendments of the Sunday observance law, and it went in favor of the relaxation by 82 yeas to 43 nays. The bill voted npon provides that ice cream, soda water, confectionery and fruit may be sold on the Lord's Day. The only article new on the list is fruit. The others have been sold since 1902 by authority of the law, by common victuallers, licensed innholders and druggists. It was said as one reason for granting the wider right that regular dealers in these articles, in order to get the advantage of the law, set up a little cook stove with apparatus for serving meals and so came under the common victuallers' head. One of the argument for the bill was that Rev. Herbert Johnson of Boston, a member of the Sabbath Protective League, favored it. The argument against the bill did not turn upon any special regard for the sacred character of the day, which would be violated by any form of commercial business, but it was put npon the ground that such extra Sunday work would be an injury to the persons who were required to do such additional work on Sunday and therefore they ought to be saved from the necessity. The bill has only one voting stage in the House a

GOOD WORK BY LAWTONS.

Palmer Carpet Mill Team Bowls Worcester Team Down and Out.

The bowling team of the Whittail carpet mill in Palmer rolled a return match with their brethren in the Worcester mill at Worcester last Saturday afternoon. They had things all their own way, getting all four points, of the score. The Lawtons—father and son—were responsible for much of the defeat, and the Worcester Telegram had the following account of the match:

With Charlie Lawton, the crack Western Massachusetts champion, at anchor, the Palmers walloped the Worcesters for four points on the Austin street alleys last Saturday afternoon before 150 fans. The teams represented employes of the Whittail carpet mills in the two places. The bowlers were the best attainable. The Worcester quintet, for some reason, failed to develop the usual speed. The Lawtons were the individual stars, both copping centuries in the first string. George Lawton carried off the honors for high single and total. After the match the Palmer team and rooters were guests of the Worcester men at a banquet at the Hotel Franklin. Charlie Lawton was the toastmaster. The score:

MUST BE NUMBERED.

Mail Will Not be Delivered at Unnumbered Houses, Department Says.

There seems to be a good deal of misunderstanding concerning the numbering of the residences of the village, which is now being done. It is announced that the free postal delivery will be inaugurated in Palmer June 1, but before that is done the post office department insists that the streets of the town shall all be given names, the names placed conspicuously at intervals along the streets, and that the residences be numbered. So strenuous are they about this (in order to secure proper delivery of mail) that they announce that under no circumstances will mail be delivered at houses or places of business which are not numbered. In view of this the selectmen have engaged W. F. Waite to plot off the land along the streets in the section to be covered by the mail delivery and assign numbers. This is being done as rapidly as possible, a definite number of feet being allowed for each number. It is the intention to affix to each dwelling or business place the number belonging to it, leaving the numbers assigned to the spaces along vacant lots to be placed on structures erected thereon in the future. There is no compulsion regarding the affixing of numbers to buildings; an owner may have them on or not, as desired; but if they are not on mail will not be delivered there. Mr. Waite, in his assignment of numbers, will have metal numbers which he will be glad to affix if the property owner wishes, and the cost will be small, eight cents a figure, or two figures for 15 cents. The owner may procure them for himself and put them on himself if he prefers.

OLD MARKERS FOUND.

May Have Been Over Graves of Early Settlers at Palmer Center.

An interesting find was made on Monday of this week by C. Christiansen on his farm at Palmer Center. While plowing in a field which has not been plowed within the memory of any of the present residents of that section, he turned up two grave markers, bearing the initials C. H. L. and W. H. L.

Speculation as to their origin and whose resting place they marked can be speculation only so far as can be gleaned at present. The farm on which the stones were found was owned by James Hill, and one of his near neighbors—the farms adjoined—was James Lamberton's, who is known to have lived there before and after 1727. The families intermarried, and it is possible that some of the Lambertons were buried beneath the spot where the markers were found. Against this theory is the fact that both stones have three initials, a custom which did not prevail previous to about 1800, though the nature of the stones—slate—makes it certain that they are quite old, as slate has not been used for such purposes for many years. No attempt has been made to explore the ground beneath the place where they lay.

COURT ROOM COLD.

No Heat For District Court. Lockup Also Without Caloric.

There has been much complaint recently of the frigid condition of the district court room on mornings when it was necessary to use it. Complaint has been made to the agent of the Worcester County Gas Company, lessees of the building, from which the court's quarters were leased by the county commissioners, and he has replied that his orders are not to build any more fires this spring, which means no more heat until cold weather next fall, although the contract with the gas company calls for the building heated whenever necessary. Yesterday morning the mercury was not much above 50, and Wednesday it was even lower. The lockup in the basement was included in the above-mentioned contract, and last Friday a woman was placed therein from 1:30 in the morning until 9 o'clock Saturday morning, there being no heat in the building. The quarters were decidedly chilly, and the woman complained of the cold. The matter has been reported to the county commissioners, who will undoubtedly take action.

FIREMEN MAKE RECORD.

Apparatus Ready for Use in Three Minutes From Stroke of Alarm.

The firemen made a record last Friday afternoon, when they had the jumper at the corner of Main and Walnut streets ready for use in exactly three minutes after the first stroke of the alarm. The call was from box 68, which must be getting pretty well worn out by this time, and was pulled at 4:17. The blaze was in a room on the third floor of the Walnut street side of the Converse House, and was started by an exploding lamp. An employe of the hotel lighted the lamp and left the room for a few moments, returning to find it full of smoke and fire. Members of the fire department were quickly in the room with extinguishers and had the blaze out before the arrival of the hose, which was not used or even coupled on. There was abundant evidence of the exploding lamp, broken fragments of it being found about the floor. The damage was confined to wearing apparel and a smoked room, and did not exceed $75.

Residents along North Main street have, since the establishment of the new water tank east of the village on the line of the Boston and Albany railroad, noticed a material decrease in the noise and smoke nuisance previously prevailing, the whistling at night being particularly disagreeable. East-bound freight trains now take water at the new tank, passing through the village without stopping, as formerly.

Residents along North Main street have combined to enter a protest against the rebuilding of the Ware River roundhouse, the roof of which fell in last week. The walls of the structure are so racked that if rebuilt they will have to come down to the foundations, and an effort will be made to abate the nuisance which has caused so much complaint in recent years—noise and smoke from the locomotives cared for there. The officials of the railroad have been communicated with in regard to the matter.

Miss Estella Allen and Charles T. Shaw, both of Palmer, were married in Springfield Tuesday afternoon by Rev. Mark Denman. The groom's niece, Miss Alice Jane Pasco of Springfield, was married at the same time to Archie Eugene Beebe of Bellows Falls, Vt., the double wedding taking place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Almon L. Pasco of Riverview street. There were no attendants and the double event was a very quiet affair, only a few intimate friends witnessing the ceremony. After a lunch both couples left for Boston and New York. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will live in Palmer.

The selectmen at their meeting Wednesday evening granted liquor licenses of the sixth (druggists) class to Fred S. Lovis and J. P. Lynde of Palmer, Lyman Keith of Three Rivers and John F. Shea of Bondsville. Pool licenses were granted to E. D. Tufts and J. P. O'Connor of Palmer, Xavier Belisle of Bondsville. It was voted to advertise at once for bids for the construction of the North Main street sewer in Palmer. A public hearing on the petition of the New England Telegraph and Telephone Company for a location on Converse street in the Depot village was appointed for May 3, at 7:30 in the evening.

The English sparrow is an interesting little fellow to watch—at times—and the places which he chooses for a nest are often peculiar. Perhaps as unusual a place as any is the one selected by a pair which have built on top of the weight which indicates the depth of water in the Boston and Albany's water tank opposite the Elms House on Main street. The weight is perhaps four by six inches on the top, and attached to a wire rope which runs up the side of and into the building; the weight slides up and down as the depth of water in the tank varies, being held in place by two wire rods at the corners. On the top of this weight the nest is built, the birds apparently enjoying their free elevator service.

Sorrow has come into the home of Rev. and Mrs. F. S. Brewer this week in the news from Turkey that Rev. Daniel M. Rogers was among the missionaries who lost their lives in the massacres there last week. Close friends of the family will remember the pretty wedding in the Congregational church May 29, when Mr. Rogers and Miss Mary P. Christie of Tarsus, Turkey, were married, starting soon after for the missionary field. Miss Christie was the daughter of Rev. Mr. Christie, a cousin of Mr. Brewer, and has occupied the pulpit of the church here, but has been for years located in the far East. Another daughter, who has frequently visited the Brewers, is a student in Mt. Holyoke college. Recent news is that Mrs. Rogers and her infant daughter were not at the scene of the trouble and are safe.

The ladies of the Congregational church will omit their usual May dinner this year and have a May supper instead. It will be held in the vestry of the Universalist church next Friday. In connection with the supper there will be the usual May sale, which will open at 3 in the afternoon; aprons of various styles will be offered for sale, with other articles, and a cook book which has just been compiled, containing over 300 tried recipes contributed by the ladies of the society. The book is attractively bound and so arranged as to lie flat, a decided improvement over previous books. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock, consisting of salads, cold meats, etc., price 25 cents. At 8 o'clock there will be an entertainment, when "Six Kleptomaniacs," the farce given so successfully at the Woman's Club guest night by local talent, will be repeated by request, with the original cast; the admission will be 15 cents.

There was a forest fire in town Monday, about 50 acres being burned over. It started from the brush that William Scott was burning next to the land he cleared last winter. He had secured the proper permission from the forest warden, but the wind blew the sparks over into the woods beyond. It required about two hours' work by the forest warden and his helpers before the fire was under control.

Carder, a veteran of the Civil War and they had lived in Brimfield for a good many years up to the time of Mr. Carder's death. After removing from Brimfield Mrs. Carder had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Stevens in Stafford Springs. Besides her daughter she leaves a son, Charles L. Carder of Somers, Ct. Mrs. Carder was 80 years of age.

It is of interest to Brimfield people and alumni of the Hitchcock Free Academy that Prof. Arthur A. Upham of Whitewater, Wis., State Normal School has been elected mayor of Whitewater. Mr. Upham is a former principal of the Academy and citizen of Brimfield and holds the warm regard of his pupils and townspeople. He married Miss Mary F. Woods of Brimfield and since removing from Brimfield in 1888 they have lived in Whitewater with whose social and civic interests they have been identified. Mr. Upham has been a leader in educational matters in Wisconsin, having lectured and written on educational subjects. He has established a summer school of which he is principal in connection with the normal school in addition to his regular work in the science department of that institution. A Case of Inflammatory Rheumatism

"Some ten weeks ago, a sudden pain came in my right arm," writes Mrs. Marguerite Rau, 623 Franklin St., York, Pa. "The doctor called it inflammatory rheumatism. For about seven weeks I doctored with different remedies without getting any relief. My arm was swollen from the elbow to the tips of my fingers and was all black and blue and looked as though there was something drawing at the elbow and as if it would break out. The pain was so great that I could not sleep. I finally bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and that gave me relief at once. I have used three 25c. bottles and am now using a 50c. bottle.

I feel that my recovery is due to Sloan's Liniment. It did more for me in three weeks than all the other doctoring I ever did."

Before it slips your memory buy a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. There are three sizes, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Every druggist carries it in stock.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

has yet to finish the passage of the House and go to the Senate and governor before it will become law.

One of the bills acted upon favorably which is said to have attracted about as much interest as any other before the Legislature is that to provide that inspectors and collectors of milk shall be appointed by the State Board of Health. Mr. Hancock of Brockton tried to have it amended so that the selection should be made every year and so that the compensation should be fixed by the local authorities. But he was voted down by 22 yeas to 46 nays and the bill was passed without a count to be engrossed.

This afternoon, for the second time this year, the House has acted like boys in dropping the public business in order to go to a baseball game. The Senate met the emergency by beginning its session at 12.30 so as to be through in time for the game. The House held its usual forenoon session and stayed till about 2 30 trying to get a quorum in the afternoon. But it could muster only 103, when 121 were necessary, and so they adjourned. They did not put the absentees on record by rollcall, or send the sergeant-at-arms to the ball ground to bring the absentees back, because it would have seemed to be mean business, would have exposed the mover to constant efforts during the remainder of the session to pay him back by defeating everything he wanted, and would have led to so many reconsiderations that little time would have been gained.

Gov. Draper's special message to the Legislature this forenoon, recommending the formation of a peculiar corporation to buy and hold the Boston and Maine railroad stock now held outside of the state, is the most remarkable step of the kind ever taken in the Legislature and is without precedent. It would seem, at first sight to show that the situation is far more critical than the average citizen had supposed, and that there was not such absolute cocksureness of the soundness and strength of the anti-merger position as has been assumed for the last three years that the matter has been an acute issue. This is a thing which will be watched closely.

State Forester Rane wants $150,000 for the gypsy moth work this year, including $15,000 for parasities, and he has put his case before the committee on agriculture to-day. The real hope of relief is in parasites, but much money must be spent to save us from being eaten alive while the parasites are growing and becoming acclimated.

LANDON.

Original.

"The Place of Contentment."

Far away from the din of the city—
Through the heart of the silent wood—
To a valley hemmed in by the mountains,
Here the scene of this story stood.
A valley of farm-lands and meadow
Stretching off towards the distant hills,
With a view of its cosey homesteads
And the land that the farmer tills.
A picture of rural conditions
In a frame-work of virgin trees,
Gave delight to the eye of the stranger
As a place of contentment and ease.

So 'twas known as the Place of Contentment,
As it stood in the village square;
With the natives its presence was welcome—
With its patrons 'twas courteous and fair.
"Just a home," said the owner who bought it,
"For a summer of easy recline;
Here I'll live with my family party
'Mid the oaks and the birch and the pine."
For the woods were nearby and in plenty;
The hills, too, were clustered around
This bit of delightful landscape
In a quiet New England town.

Now the town-folk were more than delighted
As they witnessed the work of repair
On the building they'd formerly cherished,
For it seemed that the "right man" was there.
And after the new decorations
Were completed with painstaking skill,
A hundred or more of the neighbors
Came in person and brought their good will.
Thus the season began with much splendor,
"In Contentment" were laudlord and guest,
Though afar from that country home-quiet
Whereof they had long been in quest.

There were troublous times in the kitchen,
And anger-ronsed days on the farm,
Taking place as a regular program,
Tho' with no thought or suggestion of harm.
And the days came along just as often,
And the help were permitted to go,
For with energies strengthened with wisdom
We always had two strings to our bow.
Still the name stands above the main entrance,
And all o'er the country 'tis known
As the "Place of Contentment" in Brimfield,
This same house that was bought for a home.

THE PEOPLE'S NEWSPAPER.

The Boston Daily Globe an Education in its Features.

Residents of all parts of New England realize more and more the necessity of having the Boston Daily Globe delivered at their homes. It is essential because it covers the news thoroughly, faithfully, cleanly and without bias. A reader of the Boston Globe knows what is going on in the world, his state, and in his town or city.

But the Daily Globe does much more than cover the news well. It is a liberal education delivered at the homes of New England at a merely nominal price. It is filled with interesting features, which aid the reader to become a more useful citizen. No better start can be made toward this end than the formation of the saving habit. The first step is to have a bank account, and the Daily Globe stands ready to place sums from $100 to $500 to the credit of enterprising boys and girls throughout New England.

The Globe's savings coupons are within the reach of all readers of the Daily Globe, and in addition to the cash prizes offered for them, there is a long list of baseball goods, cameras, hatpins, stickpins and cute up picture puzzles which are distributed weekly. No ambitions boy or girl in New England can afford to let this opportunity go by if real success in life is the goal.

The many features in the Daily Globe which for years have been helpful to thousands of readers are better and better each week The practical school for housekeeping conducted on the household page, the exchange of ideas in the Boys' and Girls' column, The Famous Gems of Prose, Your favorite Selection, choice bits of humor and daily puzzles, the serial story, the daily short story, all contained in the Daily Globe, in addition to the news, make New England's favorite paper a welcome visitor in every home.

Keeps His Word.

A traveling man stopped at a little town in Arkansas, and while there he made inquiries of the postmaster as to the integrity and honesty of a certain doctor who lived in the next county.

"What sort of a man is Dr. Briggs?" he queried. "Is he a man that can be trusted—a good doctor?"

"Well," answered the postmaster thoughtfully, "that depends. He's been doctorin' roun' here for some years now—ain't doin' much lately, though. Seems he was sent for to go to see ol' Mis' Henderson, what's been dyin' for goin' on thirty year. Ol' lady had the noo-raigy pretty bad. Doc' he gives her a dose o' laud'num, an' he says, 'Mis' Henderson, you'll go to sleep now, an' you won't be bothered with the noo-raigy no mo'.'

"She went to sleep; that was las' May, an' it's gittin' to'rds fall now. She ain't waked up yet, an' she ain't never been bothered with the noo-raigy either. As a doctor I guess Briggs ain't much, but he always keeps his word, sir—always."

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Palmer, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Palmer reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Joseph Fisher, living on Fox Ave., Palmer, Mass., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills gives me good reason to value them very highly. Off and on for some time I had pains in my hips and through the kidney regions. If I stooped and then arose quickly, sharp twinges would catch me in the small of my back. At times, I felt so miserable I could hardly work about the house and at night was often so lame and sore as to be unable to rest comfortably. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Lynde & Gould's drug store. They helped me from the first, and in a very short time my back was entirely freed of pain. I could do my work without becoming fatigued and was able to rest well at night. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to persons suffering in a similar manner." (from statement given Aug. 7, 1906.)

CURED TO STAY CURED.

On Aug. 14, 1908, Mrs. Fisher confirmed the above statement saying: "I have not used Doan's Kidney Pills since endorsing them in 1905, as the cure this remedy effected in my case has proven a permanent one. I am pleased to confirm my previous endorsement."

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

The Uric-O Treatment Expels the Poison from the Blood.

Don't neglect these warnings You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. "Doctor's Daughter"

Talk on the Stomach

The stomach and digestive organs are many times the cause of some disease which might have been prevented if these organs had performed their natural functions, and the great variety of symptoms which arise from a disordered condition of the stomach and liver, cause many people to think that they have some awful disease. The consequence of which is, that they do nothing for their stomach, but doctor for some other trouble. A poor acting stomach and liver will cause headache, backache, nervous troubles, distress after eating, bloating, sour stomach, heart pressure, insomnia, loss of flesh, constipation and many other disagreeable feelings. If you are a sufferer of any trouble and your stomach or liver is out of order correct these troubles first, get the benefit of the food you eat, and your other troubles will many times correct themselves. Stomach-Rite, the combined stomach and liver remedy has an unequaled record of many remarkable cures to its credit, and when you need a stomach remedy, get the best, a remedy that gives results, not promises, that's Stomach-Rite. One 50 cent box will quickly convince you of the true worth of this medicine. There is nothing just as good, insist on Stomach-Rite.

Very truly yours,

"Doctor's Daughter"

Special Town Meeting.

The warrant for the special town meeting next Friday night has been posted, and contains 12 articles besides the one relating to the choice of a moderator. The second and third are inserted for such action as will permit of $1800 being legally raised and appropriated for watering streets, the action taken at the annual meeting not being proper under the article as drawn. The next one is to see if the town will authorize the selectmen to lay out and construct a sidewalk with stone curbing on the easterly side of Castle street from Cottage to School street, and raise money for same The next two articles will give the voters a chance to decide whether they wish to ballot for a highway surveyor at the next annual town meeting, instead of having as now a superintendent of streets appointed by the selectmen. The next two are to see if the town will instruct the selectmen to repair the roadway and rebuild the bridge and abutments over Beaver brook, appropriating money for same, and to see if the town will instruct the selectmen to prosecute any person or persons who have caused damage to the bridge. Article nine asks for instruction to pay the amount found due from the town by the auditor in the grade-crossing case and for an appropriation for same. The next three articles are designed to give the town a chance to avail itself of $7500 to be received as liquor license fees and raise that much less by taxation. The plan proposed is to rescind the appropriation for schools of $34,500 and raise and appropriate for them $27,000 instead. The last article is to see if the town will instruct the selectmen to extend the Church-street storm water sewer to be constructed from Highland street to Grenville park toward the Ware river, to dispose of the water.

Death of Mrs. Stephen E. Newton.

Mrs Stephen E Newton, 76, died Sunday night at her home on the road from Ware to Greenwich village, near Hardwick Pond. The farm is within the town of Hardwick, but so much nearer Ware than Hardwick Center that the family has always been much more known in Ware. Mr. Newton has been very ill with a form of pneumonia for some time, and Mrs. Newton's end was probably hastened by her exertions in caring for him, since her heart was weak His condition was such that he was not informed of his wife's death. Mrs. Newton's maiden name was Tirzah Levina Pierce, and she was born in Barre. Mr. and Mrs. Newton were married in Ware on November 24 1849, or almost 60 years ago, and since then had always lived in the part of Hardwick known as district No 7 close by the same numbered district in Ware. The children surviving are four sons, Rollin of Newfane, Vt., Lewis and William of Springfield, and Elza, at home. The one daughter, who married the late Almer F. Richardson, died nearly 30 years ago. There are five grandchildren and two great grandchildren surviving. Mrs. Newton also leaves two sisters, Mrs. G. P Campbell and Mrs A. H. Cummings, both of Ware. The funeral was held Wednesday morning at 10 30 and burial was in Aspen Grove cemetery in Ware.

Death of Mrs. J Austin Cummings.

Mrs. J. Austin Cummings, 90, died Sunday afternoon at her home on South street after a week's illness with pneumonia. He was born in Moutreal In 1818 and enlisted in the 1st Vermont cavalry from Brattleboro, serving 18 months in the army of the Potomac. He was wounded in the left hand at White Oak swamp and lost three fingers. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

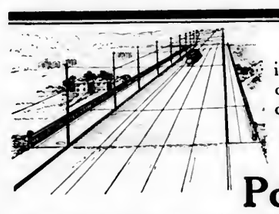
Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what these women say:

Camden, N. J.—"It is with pleasure that I send my testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, hoping it may induce other suffering women to avail themselves of the benefit of this valuable remedy.



"I suffered from pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman—and this valuable medicine shall always have my praise."—Mrs. W. P. Valentine, 902 Lincoln Ave., Camden, N. J.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles, and at last was almost helpless. I tried three doctors but they did me no good. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me well and strong. I hope all suffering women will just give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it is worth its weight in gold." —Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. 7, Erie, Pa.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

YOUNG MAN'S SUICIDE.

Irving Back Found Dying About 7 This Morning.

DRANK QUANTITY OF CARBOLIC ACID.

Had Been Ill and Despondent. Secured Position and Was to Go to Work Soon.

Irving Back, 24, committed suicide about 7 o'clock this morning at the home of his uncle, F. F. Marcy, on King street, by drinking carbolic acid. The young man was unmarried, and leaves a father, Charles Back, in Southbridge.

Young Back has been living in Florence and was employed in the silk mills there. On Monday he came to Palmer to visit relatives, and spent the first of the week with the family of D E Marcy, going yesterday to the home of F. F. Marcy. At that time he announced his intention of later visiting another uncle, H. P. Marcy, living close by. The young man was apparently all right about 7 this morning, but 10 minutes later was found dying. Medical Examiner J P. Schneider was summoned at once but the young man was dead when he arrived. Back had been in ill health for some time and somewhat despondent, but had secured a position at the epileptic hospital and was to begin duty there a week from next Monday.

MEN HEAR FINE TALK.

Ex-Gov. Utter of Rhode Island Speaks to Men's Leagues.

The Men's League of the Union church, Three Rivers, and invited guests, including the Men's League of the Congregational church in Palmer, and men from West Warren and Thorndike, listened to an interesting address by Ex-Gov. George H Utter of Westerly, R I, in the Union church Wednesday evening.

Frederick A. Upham presided at the meeting and called upon Rev. F. S. Brewer to offer prayer. Edward E Chapman of Ludlow sang several selections. Mr. Upham introduced Representative E. E Hobson as the first speaker. Mr. Hobson called attention to the fact that the day before was the birthday of Gen. U. S Grant, that silent man who was the strong right arm of Abraham Lincoln in bringing the war to a successful close. His life story is evidence of the great truth of which Americans like to boast, that no matter how lowly the birth, the man who has ability may aspire to highest honor. Grant listened to the knock of opportunity and conquered every foe save death, but what he did we also can do. Grant, who from his training might expect important assignments, was content even with a lowly position He was anxious to serve his country, not that he might attain honor for himself, but because he loved his country and wished to aid her. If we had more such men in public service today we should have better public officials.

Ex-Gov. Utter took for his subject, "The Manhood of Christ," and said in part:

It is a pleasure to come up here into central Massachusetts and speak to this body of men. Some time ago I spent four years as a student in a nearby college, and I find that those who get out of central Massachusetts are glad to come back again. Another reason why I am pleased to be here is that I am deeply impressed by the force of these men's clubs. They should be given credit for the great moral uplift that has come to the country in recent years. Whenever you can find a great moral growth it can be attributed to the coming together of men in gatherings like this. I am glad, he said, to speak on the same subject that I used at Worcester last fall. "The manliness of Christ." I have learned by experience in public life that the principles taught by Jesus Christ are essential to our development as a people. No one can see the American sovereign, yet the sovereign is with us all the time. He told a story of a German immigrant boy at Ellis Island who refused to believe that President Roosevelt was in reality the president because he wore no uniform. The uniform was to him the symbol of power. Jesus Christ's way to work was through men, and to-day people know him best through the lives of men who follow him. He taught the principles which are essential to the perpetuity of this country of ours. The two most important events of the last century were the freeing of the slaves and the Spanish war.

The strong must bear the burdens of the weak. Of those to whom much is given much will be required. It is the glimpses of life and the little things we see day by day that tell most of life itself. The speaker emphasized the importance of training. God uses one in the things in which they are trained. A man may serve best in the position in which God has placed him. Jesus Christ was a well-developed, healthy boy. He grew as boys grow to-day. We learn he grew in favor with God and man. Every man I knew in college, said the speaker, except one, went in the way in which his faith was set. If toward the east, he went that way, and kept at it. If toward the west, he also kept at it. Christ is often pictured as an effeminate man, but there was nothing effeminate about him. He was physically perfect. Would Christ ever have compared himself to the temple unless he was perfect? No. Jesus Christ must have been a perfect specimen of manhood. If you have a habit, said the speaker, that weakens you in body or soul, cut it out. No man can win favor with God and man and do those things. When a man abuses the temple of God he commits a sin against God.

Another thing that we often forget is the perfect home life of Jesus. What a mother he must have had, and what a father with whom he came in daily contact! At the wedding feast his mother said to the servants, "Whatsoever He Saith Unto Thee Do It." What higher praise could a boy have than that; and then his intimate connection with his Heavenly Father. Does your boy, when asked his idea of God, liken him to his own father? Again, Jesus Christ had nothing to do with the idle man He thought that honor in this world comes from work. There is no danger to our country from the man who works, but from the idle man. Jesus Christ was a companionable man and always stood by the man who worked. Another characteristic is loyalty. I like a loyal man. As they say in the West, "a man you can tie to." Jesus Christ was loyal to his friends, his church and state. He always attended her service and took part in the synagog worship when opportunity came. Every man who takes the name of Christ should also be loyal to his church. Again he was loyal to the nation. Answering the question of the lawyer, he said, "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's."

FAST TRAIN WRECKED.

Six Coaches of Western Express Leave Track Yesterday Morning.

SLIGHT INJURIES THE ONLY RESULT.

Broken Rail Lets Train Down on Curve, But Cars Find Easy Rest Against Side of Cut With No Serious Injury to Passengers.

A railroad wreck which had all the "makin's" of a fearful disaster, but which resulted in nothing more to the passengers than a general shaking up and a few cuts and bruises, none of them — with one possible exception — being even severely hurt, occurred on the Boston and Albany road about half a mile west of the Palmer station yesterday morning. Six cars left the track and, after running their length and about half more, toppled over on their sides and came to rest against the sloping side of the cut through which the train was running at the time. The passengers who were hurt received their injuries by being thrown about the derailed cars. Nineteen were hurt, the most seriously injured being F. A Casey of Billerica, Mass., whose right chest was bruised severely, so much so that he had trouble with his breathing for some time; the others suffered bruised muscles, slight sprains and cuts, but all were able to continue their journey or return to their homes in a couple of hours.

The list of injured:

William F. Corcoran, conductor of the train. Bruises and cuts by flying glass.

Mrs. I. N. Kerr, Providence, R. I. Bruises and cuts.

F. S. Moore, Pittsburg, Pa.

The train was No. 46, a Western train bringing sleepers from Chicago and other points, and was due in Palmer at 8.13. It was made up of an engine and two express cars, a mail car, smoker, day coach, buffet and baggage car "Salvins," sleepers "Hampshire," "Volga" and "Codrus," and a dining car, in the order named, 10 in all. The train left Springfield on time and all cars kept the track, breaking from the derailed cars, and ran an eighth of a mile before coming to a stop.

Inside the cars all was confusion. Passengers were not numerous, but were scattered through all the cars and were engaged in various occupations. Some had left the diner and gone forward to the smoker; others, who had taken the train at Springfield, were settled down to the long trip to Boston; some were at the tables in the diner and still others were only just out of their berths in the sleepers and were getting ready for the day's program. Their number was about 50 or 60. All were thrown about by the stopping and partial upsetting of the cars, but soon discovered that none were seriously hurt, although some of the women were inclined —with little wonder—to be somewhat hysterical. Those who were uninjured set about helping those who had received hurts and assisting them in getting out of the cars, egress from which was made by the doors.

It was not many minutes before help was at hand from the Palmer station, and physicians were attending to those needing their attentions, Drs. J. P. Schneider, S. R. Carsley, H. C. Cheney, S. O. Miller and M. B. Hodgkins being on hand. A car was provided and the passengers brought to the station, where such as were injured were given every attention. Their names were taken and all left for the east on the 9.42 express, which was run from North Wilbraham to Palmer on the north track.

The cause of the wreck was a broken rail, which is plainly shown in the cut. The break came at the east end of a rail on the left side of the track. The engine and four cars passed safely, but when the day coach reached the weak spot the rail crumpled and let the truck down, the balance of the cars following as a matter of course. Examination of the rail showed plainly that the break was not a new one but had existed for some time. The crack at the top is squarely in the center of the rail, and the portion broken off reveals rust and dirt of long accumulation along the sides of the break. In addition, the top of the rail showed that train wheels touched only the inside half of the rail's surface, that portion only being worn, the outer half bearing no marks of wheels, but being rusty and brown, in marked contrast to the smooth, bright inner half. A track gauge applied three rails to the west of the break, where the rails began to show wear on one side only, showed that the rails were over an inch wide at that point, while on the westbound track directly opposite the variance was only about three-eighths of an inch. The condition of the broken rail was noted by many of the passengers, who commented freely on its condition.

Broken rail, which caused wreck.

A better place for the wreck could not have been picked out. Had the event occurred a quarter of a mile in either direction a roll down a 50 foot embankment would have been inevitable, while an eighth of a mile east was a deep rock cut.

Immediately after the wreck a track gang was put at work clearing up the debris, putting in new rails and replacing the splintered ties. The wrecker arrived from Springfield about 10, and the crew went to work at once, but was hampered considerably by the necessity of keeping out of the way of the regular trains on the west-bound track, that having to be used for traffic in both directions. The gang kept at work all night and by noon to-day the damaged track was in condition for regular use again.

The news of the wreck spread rapidly in this section, and many came to view the cars. The near-by villages sent generous quotas, and large numbers came from from Springfield and by auto from other places.

There has been more heat in the district court room this week than last; the complaint of the officials to the county commissioners evidently brought orders to have a little fire built, for the room has been more comfortable since.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT.

Springfield Woman Killed at Warren Sunday.

CAR STRUCK RAILING AND SKIDDED.

Thrown Over Front of Machine and Skull Crushed on Heap of Broken Stone.

Mrs Florence M Mathewson, 38, of Springfield was killed by being thrown from an automobile about a mile west of Warren Sunday evening about 8 o'clock.

In company with her husband and Mr. and Mrs Harry Wright of Springfield, she had been to South Framingham to see her mother who was to sail soon for Europe. They were hurrying on their homeward trip on account of the rain. When about 300 yards west of the Cheney brook in Warren, where the state highway makes a sharp turn to the left, the hub of the rear right-hand wheel struck a fence protecting a culvert and the car skidded into an electric light pole 10 feet further on. The pole was broken off at the ground. The car continued on its way, the wheels on the right side plowing into the mud just outside of the hard macadam, until after running 100 feet the machine struck a pile of stones beside the road which had been blasted out at a point near by. Mrs. Mathewson, who was sitting on the right-hand side of the back seat, was thrown out when the car struck the stones and hit her head on a jagged rock. She was the only one thrown from the car or injured.

Dr. John E Dalton was hastily summoned, and when it was found that she had been killed, Undertaker James N F. Quinlan was notified. Medical Examiner E W. Norwood of Spencer gave permission for the body to be removed to Mr. Quinlan's undertaking rooms and upon examination it was found by Dr. Dalton that there was a compound fracture of the woman's skull over the left eye and that death was no doubt instantaneous.

The body was removed to Springfield Monday morning.

Baby Boy Drowned in Wilbraham.

A sad drowning accident took place in Wilbraham yesterday morning, when Harold, the little son of Mr and Mrs Bert Soule, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs Anson Soule lost his life by drowning in a brook near his father's home. The little fellow, who was between two and three years old, was in the lot where his father and grandfather were at work, and left them to return home. His father supposed he had reached home safely and his mother thought that he was with his father, so no anxiety was felt until the men returned to the house and found that he was not there. Going out to look for him they found his little basket on the bridge, his hat lying near, and a short distance away they could see his body under the water. Dr. H. G. Webber was summoned, but nothing could be done.

Eddy of Ware, who makes a specialty of the manufactnre of post cards of this class. The undeveloped negatives were sent from Palmer on the 11 15 electric car, reaching him at noon. At 2.15 the Journal received prints for use in making the cuts found on the first page in connection with the story of the wreck, and at 5.15 100 of the cards were received. The Boston and Albany railroad is contemplating a change in its tracks the entire length of the system, which includes relaying the tracks about 12 inches further apart. This is desirable on account of the large locomotives which have come into use in the last few years, and the unusually large freight cars. As the tracks are now laid there is scant room for two trains of the large cars or two of the bigger locomotives to pass; they can do it but the margin of safety is too small. With the proposed change at Palmer will come the removal of 18 inches of the eaves of the passenger station roof, as the cars strike it now at times.

BRIMFIELD.

Library Receives Gift.

Mrs. Sophie Foster Symes has presented to the public library a framed picture of her father, the late John W. Foster, and a copy of his valnable archeological work, "Prehistoric Races in the United States of America." Mr. Foster was a leading American geologist and was identified with Brimfield through his marriage to Miss Lydia Lyon Converse of that town, and he has an enduring memorial of Brimfield in the Common whose design he drew. The library already contained a copy of the important government publication, document No 69, published in 1850, Foster and Whitney's "Report on the geology and topography of the Lake Superior land district," and also Foster's "The Mississippi Valley; Its Physical Geography," which incindes sketches of the topography, botany, climate, geology and mineral resonrces of that section. Mr. Foster's earliest work was in metallurgy combined with geology, and he made valnable reports to mining companies on the Ohio coal field and the Lake Superior copper regions in the '40's, when the United States government instituted a geological survey of the Lake Superior region in 1847. Mr. Foster was appointed one of the assistants, and Prof. J. D. Whitney was his companion and associate A report of their investigations and conclusions made to the American Association for the Advancement of Science was declared by Agassiz to be among the grandest generalizations ever made in American geology. The government report possessed by the Brimfield library has added valne in the fact of its being an autograph copy presented by Mr. Foster to Samnel A Hitchcock, founder of the Hitchcock Free Academy. "The Mississippl Valley," was published in 1869, the year after Mr. Foster removed his residence to Chicago. The work took high rank as scientific authority and unfortnnately its plates were destroyed in the great fire. The book "Prehistoric Races" embodies the results of the author's investigations of the works of the mound-builders. Mr Foster was president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and president for three years of the Chicago Academy of Sciences. He was professor of natural history in Chicago University from which institution he received the honorary degree of LL. D. He also contribnted important articles to various scientific journals. It was while residing in Brimfield that Mr. Foster drew the plan of the improved common which was laid out in 1853, and which is the first example known of a town common thus improved by an association formed by citizens for that purpose.

Forestry Experiments.

Principal G F. Kenney of the Academy has added to his forest tract 1000 seedlings of white pine, 2000 of Norway spruce, 400 of American beech, 125 of catalpa and 35 of European larch, and has also planted the seed of white pine, red spruce and Norway spruce in seed beds Last year he set out 2000 white pines and 100 catalpas. A number of pupils have been getting practical experience in forestry by working with Mr. Kenney Saturdays, and his experiments are stimulating others to make a start in forest cultivation. Stanley Parker and Munroe Tarbell each obtained 1000 white pines and a quantity of seed with Mr. Kenney's last order, and Clarence B. Brown, Master of the local Grange, has set out 1000 pines and obtained seed Mr. Kenney hopes to have specimens of trees, including ornamental ones, planted at the south end of the Academy campus forming a school arboretum. In accordance with the plan of having the town library a center for the exposition of local enterprises and interests, the librarian has on exhibition there seedlings of the white pine a year old and two years old, Norway spruces two years old, and specimens of white pine and Norway spruce seed and cones, and also a catalpa seedling measuring about a foot and a half above ground and showing a thick fibrous root, which causes the tree to be such a rapid grower, about six inches long. This was raised from a seed planted by Mr. Kenney a year ago and represents about three months' growth as growth of trees does not continue beyond July. The public library is also gathering literature on the subject of forestry.

Mr. and Mrs. Melven Booth recently visited at the home of Stephen B. Tift of Union, Ct.

Mrs Ransom F. Smith and Miss Emma Stone of North Woodstock, N. H., have been spending several days in town.

Robert J. Streeter, a graduate of the Academy in the class of '07 and a member of Clark College in the class of 1910, was a member of the team which won in the debate with Bates college held at Lewiston, Maine, last week. Mr Streeter's associates were Philip D. Wesson of Worcester and Perlie P. Fallon of Groton. The question for debate was: "Resolved, That it should be the policy of the United States to effect a substantial decrease in immigration." Clark College had the negative side. Lester Parker, a graduate of the Academy in the class of '06 and a senior in Clark, is a member of the team chosen to debate with Tufts College.

Springfield Music Festival.

The seventh annual festival of the Springfield Music Festival Association will be held in the Court Square theater, Springfield, Friday and Saturday of next week, and the management promises the most brilliant festival ever given under its auspices. John J. Bishop, director of the music festival chorus, has been given free rein this year and he has secured the very foremost artists of the country and the result is the strongest list of artists ever engaged for a Springfield festival, including many of the highest salaried vocalists and instrumentalists now on the American concert stage.

The notable list of artists engaged is headed by Miss Geraldine Farrar, prima donna of the Metropolitan opera company, the highest salaried singer in America. Of hardly less fame are the two instrumentalists, Mr. Joseph Lhevinne, the brilliant young Russian pianist, and Mr. Leo Schnlz, recognized as the greatest 'cellist player in America. The other soloists engaged are all artists of the highest order Individually and collectively it is the strongest list of artists the Springfield association has ever engaged and every artist has been chosen with particular regard to their fitness for the part assigned. Mr Bishop has for months been drilling his chorus of 200 mixed voices and their rendering of the great choral work, "The Beatitudes" will be a notable event in Springfield's music annals. The junior chorus which was the novelty of the festival last year will again take part of the festival under John F. Ahern and they will sing at the public rehearsal Saturday morning. The Boston Festival Orchestra has again been engaged and these trained musicians will again be under the capable leadership of Mr. Emil Mollenhauer.

Not in years has a more attractive list of programs been announced for the festival. The best of classic and modern music has been drawn upon, in a variety and arrangement which should delight the popular concert-goer as well as the music critic. In the opening concert Mr Schulz, 'cellist, should be heard to the best advantage in the Lidner concerto and the two solo nnmbers, "Kol Nidrei," by Bruch, an old Hebrew melody, and "Elfentanz," the dance of the fairies, by Popper, are exqnisite bits of music. The orchestra will play for its big number the Beethoven symphony No. 3 in E flat major, "Eroica," op. 55 The second concert, Friday evening, will be given up to the singing of "The Beatitudes," Cæsar Franck's greatest work and one of the most beautiful choral works ever written. Saturday morning comes the second public rehearsal, with the singing of the junior chorus under Mr. Ahern, which will be to all intents and purposes a regular concert and one of the most enjoyable of the entire festival. Saturday afternoon comes the second orchestral concert, with Josef Lhevinne, pianist, soloist Mr. Lhevinne will play the great Rubinstein concerto No 5 (E flat major), op 94, which is conceded to be one of the very best things Mr. Lhevinne does, and in the playing of which he has probably received more lavish praise than in any other work in which he has been heard. Artists' night, Saturday evening, is given up almost entirely to opera music, and, with Miss Geraldine Farrar as the bright particular star, it should be one of the most brilliant concerts ever given in Springfield.

Resolutions on the death of Sister Gertrude George of Alpha Rebekah Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to server once again the links of our fraternity, taking from us our friend and sister, Gertrude George, in accordance with the tenets of our order the sympathizing hearts of the members pay this tribute to her memory, who so short a time since commingled with us in the discharge of our fraternal obligations.

WHEREAS, we no more feel the warm pressure of her hand or geniality of her presence for—

"As silently fall the petals.
When the roses their beauty shed,
So our Sister has answered the silent call,
And we whisper—The dear one is dead.

Therefore be it resolved that by the death of Sister George the Lodge has lost a devoted member and sincere friend.

Stiles—Coolidge.

A pretty wedding took place in the Congregational church Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Leonora Stiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stiles of Mechanic street, was married to Charles F. Coolidge of Hardwick, Vt. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George A. Andrews, pastor of the church, the bridal couple entering to the strains of "Lohengrin Wedding March," played by Miss Jennie Bray of Palmer. Miss Florence Bugbee of North Adams was maid of honor and Misses Esther Robbins of Worcester and Bessie Taylor of Providence, R. I., were bridesmaids. The best man was Ernest F. Ruehe of New York City. The ushers were F. P. Holdridge, Joseph C. Parsons, A. M. Walker and Luke W. Closson. The bride was attired in a gown of white messaline with a veil trimmed with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white lilies of the valley. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids' gowns were of blue messaline. The church looked unusually pretty, the color scheme being green and white; the decorations were in charge of W. H. Pease. Easter lilies, white carnations, and roses were used, with numerous palms, transforming the altar into a mass of green and white. Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party received in the parlors of the church, before a screen of laurel. Refreshments were served. At the close of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge left on their trip with the best wishes of their many friends. There were about a hundred invited guests at the reception, among them being a number of out-of-town people. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge received many handsome and useful gifts, including a fine collection of silver. The bride is well known in Monson, being a graduate of the Academy and an enthusiastic worker in the Congregational church. Mr. Coolidge is a draughtsman and is employed by the Woodbury Granite Company of Hardwick, Vt. He was employed for a time by the W. N. Flynt Granite Company of this town. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will reside in Hardwick, Vt.

Her death was not expected, and was a great shock to her many friends, by whom she was highly esteemed. She was an ideal neighbor and a devoted mother, and her loss will be keenly felt. She leaves, besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Catherine Herren, one brother, John W. Herren of New York, N. Y., and four children, Helen L., Oswald T., Esther T. and Alice. A pair of horses owned by Miss H. F. Cnshman started from the barn yesterday in an unceremonious manner and ran up Main and High streets into R. H. Cushman's yard. They were caught there and taken back. They had just been unhitched and were standing in the barn with a part of their harness on when they started.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Keyes, 70, a resident of Monson for many years, died at her home on Tobey avenue Monday afternoon. She was a member of the Congregational church and was well known and esteemed. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. W. N. Bowen of Willimantic, Ct. The funeral was held at her late home Wednesday afternoon at 1, Rev. G. A. Andrews officiating. Burial was in the No. 1 cemetery.

Some large cast iron pipes have been put in under the academy bridge to carry the surplus surface water down the street, instead of having it run down upon the tracks of the railroad. The water had undermined the sidewalk and some parts of the bridge was decaying. This is being done by the railroad, they having promised to do it earlier in the season, but it was left until this spring as the warm weather would make it easier.

The annual parish supper of the First Universalist church of Monson was held Tuesday evening, there being about 100 present. The reports of the different officers were read, and the church is in a prosperous condition. The current receipts are about $2700 and the expenses for the year amount to about the same. Rev. Abram Conklin gave an outline of the work done, while under his leadership the past three years. The ladies of the parish furnished an entertainment which was enjoyed by all.

The barn dance given by the Companions of the Forest Monday evening was enjoyed by a large number, many coming from the neighboring villages. Music was furnished by Donahue's orchestra of West Brookfield. Various kinds of costumes were worn, some of them typical of the country dress worn many years ago. The shy gawky country youth could be seen dancing with a buxom matron, while simpering maidens in sunbonnets were carried off their feet in the Virginia Reel by the "hired man." The prizes offered were won by the following: For the men, John Crowley first prize and John Colleton second; women, Mrs. Rose Gould first prize and Alicia Gough second.

His purpose was to get a delegation of boys to attend the Students' Conference to be held at Northfield during the week of July 4th. This conference is an annual event and students from all of the larger colleges and preparatory schools attend. It would be a good thing to have Monson Academy represented this year. The team will play Stafford to-morrow afternoon on the park.

The baseball team beat the team from the Suffield Literary Institute Wednesday afternoon on Flynt's Park in a good game, the score being 3 to 2. This team usually is a hard one to beat and great credit can be given to the coaching and practice of the team of this season. Taylor did good work as catcher and Rourke, the "star" pitcher, struck out 11 men. Rees did good work at the bat and Leahy made good as short stop. At the last game there were not more than 10 Monson people present. The team is doing good work and it is hoped that in the future the games will be better attended.

The Worst Cases of Rheumatism Yield to Uric-O.

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis are Caused by Poisoning Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism.

The following letter unsolicited is the advice of a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren.

Mr. Frank Howe, Baldwinsville, N. Y., says: "I spent hundreds of dollars with physicians, treating for Rheumatism, but seemed to grow worse instead of better. I was on crutches and in constant pain and became discouraged. A friend advised me to try Uric-O and I finally purchased a $1.00 bottle and commenced the treatment. I was greatly benefited at the start and after using six bottles was entirely free from Rheumatism and have never felt a return of the disease."

Anyone who doubts Mr. Howe's experience is invited to write him for further details.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould, and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N Y.

The Veiled Lady

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Dick Oglethorpe of Chicago hurried into a London railway station just in time for his train, jumped into one of the carriages, and the guard slammed the door. In ten seconds the train rolled out of the station. The figure of a woman—the only other occupant of the carriage—sitting by the opposite window appeared at intervals in the dim light. The train was running on a track below the city's level, in the shadow of stone walls, viaducts and buildings, and for a time it was impossible for him to tell whether she was young or old.

Six months before he had been jilted—at least so he considered it—and after vainly trying to recover from the strain that followed he had gone abroad for the benefit of his heart health. He was now so far recovered as to feel a slight interest in a pretty girl—a convalescent appetite, so to speak, that might be coaxed into hunger—and he wished the train would run out into the open fields, where he could get a view of his traveling companion. When the full light of day came in at the window he saw a lithe figure, clad in the habiliments of wealth and refinement, leaning back gracefully on the cushions; but, alas, her face was covered by a thick veil!

Oglethorpe was not only an American, but a native of the west, where conventionalism is below par. He had no intention to remain tongue tied shut up with a young lady and tried the usual method of offering rending matter whereby to make an acquaintance. His effort was successful, and they soon fell into conversation. The girl spoke in broken French and with a voice that indicated an affection of the throat. Young people of opposite sex must sooner or later fall to talking of love and marriage, and this couple was no exception to the rule.

"I judge," said the lady, "that monsieur has had an affair. It is that which makes him so hitter against our sex."

"I was thrown over without the slightest compunction."

"If I were to question the girl, perhaps she would say that it was she who had been thrown over."

"She couldn't say that. I'll give you the case in a nutshell, and I'm sure you will admit that my view is correct." With true American western frankness he gave an account of a love spat.

"And is that what you call being jilted?" asked the girl. "I think it was you who treated your fiancee shamefully."

"I? Treat her shamefully? What could I do?"

"You should have begged forgiveness for your heartless, inhuman action." She spoke the words warmly.

"Well, I like that! Sent about my business by a girl in a freak, and I must beg her forgiveness for sins that she herself had committed! You women have no sense of justice."

"No sense of justice! You men have no sense of anything. You say things to us women to torture us and wonder why we show our feelings. If I had been your fiancee I would have treated you exactly as she did. I think she was very lenient with you."

"Well, upon my word! Did any one ever hear the like of that?"

At this moment the train ran into the station at Dover. Oglethorpe asked the lady if she was going across the channel and when she said "Yes" escorted her on to the boat. The waters were boiling, as usual, and the couple agreed they would maintain a position on the deck to avoid seasickness. So they sat down in chairs, and Oglethorpe unstrapped a rug and threw it over her.

"So you really think that I treated my fiancee badly and she treated me as I deserved?"

"Of course."

"Well, I suppose I may as well go back home and eat humble pie."

He said this fancying that if he had made an impression she might show a bit of pique. She did not. If he could have seen through her veil he would have noticed that with every plunge of the boat she was getting whiter about the mouth and nearer a condition in which, far from feeling any amour propre, one doesn't even care to live. Not knowing the cause, her failure to reply irritated him.

"I'll see her married to Mr. McGinty at the bottom of the sea first," he said, with infinite spleen.

The girl quivered. With an effort she ran, tottered to the side of the vessel and leaned over. Oglethorpe followed and held her head. She was obliged to raise her veil to a level with her nose, but no further. Oglethorpe looked and started. When she got back to her seat he said:

"I'm going to see who you are if I die for it!"

"I don't care—whether you—see—or don't," came a hopeless reply.

He raised her veil.

"Great heavens, Amy! Can I believe my eyes?"

"I don't care—whether—you can or not."

"My poor, dear love! I have been a brute. Forgive me."

For reply she started again for the side of the boat. He held her head this time tenderly. When she returned to her chair he said pleadingly:

"Oh, Amy, tell me, am I forgiven?"

"Go—go—marry Mrs. McGinty—at the bottom of the sea. I don't care what you do."

Nevertheless, after reaching Paris, where the young lady joined her mother, the quarrel was made up, and all ended happily. She had known Oglethorpe from the first and had played him. GWENDOLIN ADAMS.

Crowding Him.

Mr. Pogson's three sons had married and gone to settle down in different parts of the country. One day he received this telegram from the eldest:

You have a grandson. Fine boy. Ten pounds. GEORGE.

Mr. Pogson answered it at once:

Good! Buy finest baby carriage you can find and send bill to me. FATHER.

In due time the bill came. It called for $35, and he sent his check for the amount.

A few weeks later his second son sent him this dispatch:

You are the grandparent of a fine boy. Not weighed yet, but a bouncer. HENRY.

To this he responded:

Glad to hear it. Buy good, serviceable baby carriage and forward bill to me. FATHER.

Promptly came the bill. It was for $25, and he paid it.

Ten days elapsed, and then came a dispatch from the third son to this effect:

You have another grandson. Large, fine boy. Named for you. ALBERT.

Mr. Pogson's response to this was as follows:

All right, but looks like crowding me. Am sending $12.50. Buy baby carriage with it. FATHER.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Palmer, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Palmer reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Joseph Fisher, living on Fox Ave., Palmer, Mass., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills gives me good reason to value them very highly. Off and on for some time I had pains in my hips and through the kidney regions. If I stooped and then arose quickly, sharp twinges would catch me in the small of my back. At times, I felt so miserable I could hardly work about the house and at night was often so lame and sore as to be unable to rest comfortably. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Lynde & Gould's drug store. They helped me from the first, and in a very short time my back was entirely freed of pain. I could do my work without becoming fatigued and was able to rest well at night. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to persons suffering in a similar manner." (from statement given Aug. 7, 1906.)

CURED TO STAY CURED.

On Aug. 14, 1908, Mrs. Fisher confirmed the above statement saying: "I have not used Doan's Kidney Pills since endorsing them in 1906, as the cure this remedy effected in my case has proven a permanent one. I am pleased to confirm my previous endorsement."

Helpful Hints on Hair Health.

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to someone else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush often produces the cause of baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat for the reason that many a hatband is a nesting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness we have a remedy which we positively know will cure these troubles, and we are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic It is the most scientific remedy for all scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness. We know this because of the results it has produced in hundreds of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will positively banish dandruff permanently, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, removes dandruff, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free healthy circulation of blood which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody in Palmer who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular Two sizes 50c. and $1.00 Lynde & Gould, Druggists, Palmer.

Impossible to be Well

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. You must pay attention to the laws of nature, or suffer the consequences. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. A sluggish liver is responsible for an immense amount of suffering and serious disease. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills. He knows why they act directly on the liver. Trust him. *J.C. STOMACH-RITE

A medicine of quality, a remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and allied troubles, that has proven its true worth; not an experiment. When you need medicine, why not get the best.

Read the following letters:

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
I had intestinal indigestion for 20 years. Suffered terribly most of the time and treated with a dozen different doctors, and used all the medicines I knew about, but nothing ever helped me until I used your Stomach-Rite tablets. I have used only one box of them, but can't say enough in praise of them. It is truly the most wonderful remedy on earth, and I honestly hope that all sufferers will use it and have the same results that I did. Truly yours with thanks,
MRS. ANNA W. BARRETT,
43 Lynde St., Melrose, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
I was troubled with gastric indigestion for 3 years, when I heard of your Stomach-Rite in Portsmouth, N. H. I have found it the best thing in the world. Nothing else I ever tried helped me one bit. Everyone should know just what your tablets do for stomach trouble. Yours,
MRS. W. F. JORDAN,
390 Merrimack St., Manchester, N. H.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
I am anxious to tell you what your Stomach-Rite tablets have done for me. I suffered with constipation and indigestion greatly, tried every other medicine, etc., for years, but I got no help whatever until I used your remedy. Sincerely,
MRS. ARCHIE F. EASTMAN,
28 Clinton St. Woburn, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
Since taking your Stomach-Rite my oldest son, nineteen years of age, is entirely cured of severe attacks of indigestion, and has changed from a sickly, delicate-looking young man to the picture of health. Long may you live. Yours gratefully,
MRS. CHARLES E. CLARK,
643 Park Ave. Woonsocket. R. I.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
I was troubled with indigestion for 4 years, and was so bad that at times I could hardly breathe. I was in a most terrible condition; in fact, did not think there was any help for me. I have only taken one box of your Stomach-Rite tablets, and my trouble has all left me, and I am feeling fine. I want to tell you and also thank you for your grand remedy.
MR. JOHN BURKMAN,
196 Shawmut Ave., Boston, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
For three whole years I suffered with nervous indigestion. I tried everything but got no help. Have now taken just three boxes of your Stomach-Rite and would recommend them to all as the most wonderful remedy for all forms of stomach trouble.
Mrs. ELEANOR WHITNEY,
67 Washington St., Whitman, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:—
I want to recommend your Stomach-Rite to all sufferers of stomach trouble. O, how I suffered with severe headaches, indigestion, and how all my food distressed me. I have taken only one box of your Stomach-Rite and it is really and truly wonderful—I can now enjoy all the food I eat, my headaches have all gone, and I want to thank you very much Gratefully yours.
F. H. HEWETT,
1485 Washington St., Boston.

But the best testimony for Stomach-Rite is Stomach-Rite. Insist on Stomach-Rite, and refuse worthless substitutes.

Very truly yours,

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, April 28, 1909.

John L. Billard seems to have the whip hand just now. His block of Boston and Maine stock has become an object of such suspicion that Gov. Draper sends a message to the legislature that it be not allowed to fall into the hands of any purchaser foreign and hostile to Massachusetts who may cripple the prosperity of the state. If the stock has such commercial possibilities then the foreign possible purchaser will doubtless want it. Massachusetts will want it and Mr. Billard can say to each: "You must bid higher." In consequence of the hearing held yesterday by the railroad committee, considering Gov. Draper's message, all sides agree that the message is all right, albeit they do not seem to understand exactly what may be done under it. The big men of the anti-merger side were there,—Charles H. Jones and Bernard J. Rothwell, representing the business interests and ex-Senator William B. Lawrence and Louis D Brandeis, representing the stubborn opposition during two years to the merger proposition,—and they agreed with the Governor. It is therefore now the function of the railroad committee to draft a suitable bill.

But the consequence of Gov. Draper's alarm over the danger that the Billard stock will fall into hostile hands is seen immediately in the conclusion that safety is only to be found in making the state the owner and so preventing the sale forever. Indeed, the Billard situation opens up an interesting vista of opportunity. If any holder or holders of a large block of railroad stock, whether of Boston & Maine, or New Haven, or Boston & Albany, can imperil the prosperity of the state by threatening to sell to hostile owners, why cannot such holders work up a scare any time they please and force up the price of their holdings? That would be a practical blackmailing of the state into buying the stock. But how is it to be avoided under the new policy? Hence this incident promises to mark an epoch in the relation of the state to the railroads. Advocates of state ownership are quick to seize the opportunity, and Martin M. Lomasney has put in, for Daniel J. Killey, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, a petition and bill for state ownership of the stock. Gov. Draper proposes a high degree of state regulation in his message to keep control of the Billard stock in the hands of a controlling corporation to be created by special act with special powers. So the railroad problem, in its broad aspects, is still before the Legislature in an acute form, and it looks still as if Billard, the New Haven and the Boston & Maine were masters of the situation, in spite of the fact that the state has compelled the New Haven to drop its trolley holdings and to keep clear of any suspicion of absorbing the Boston & Maine. To complicate the situation, politics is mixed up with it badly. Presumably, all the Democrats are antimergerities. Gov. Draper, in view of the protest of Boston business men, regardless of party, will hesitate, for political reasons, to throw cold water upon the anti-merger side, and it is impossible to consider the proposition as a pure transportation and commercial problem.

Speaker Walker has twice lately taken a decisive part in legislation. The other day he prevented, by taking the floor and making a strong argument against the bill, the passage of the bill for 80 cent gas for East Boston. Yesterday he gave his vote to make a tie and defeated, for the time only, however, the bill for direct nominations in Essex county. He shows no lack of courage to meet emergencies, but his critics in the House, who are sore for lack of getting committee positions, are preventing him from making a short session record.

By the death of State Librarian Caleb B. Tillinghast at the Boston Homeopathic hospital early this morning, Massachusetts loses an official who was remarkably efficient in his sphere. He made the state library, which must always be on a different basis from any other library, very useful and satisfactory to its many patrons. He made a specialty of collections of laws of all states and countries. By exchanges with the other states of the United States and with foreign state departments he kept in touch with all current legislation in all parts of the world. By watching his opportunities and buying wisely, he secured many valuable collections of the past, so that it is a fair proposition that no other library in this country has such extensive collections of the laws of all nations. It was his theory that the laws constitute in a peculiar degree the history of a nation. Hence there is in the Massachusetts state library an exceptionally favorable opportunity for the student who is collecting national historical materials. Personally Mr. Tillinghast was considerate of those in his service, courteous to those of the public who came to be served and was so well fitted for his position that he would have held it for life, even if his 66 years had been much prolonged. When I first knew him, he was city editor of the Boston Journal, and he was more thorough in avoiding beats against himself and in getting them on other city editors than any of the modern school are. He was very much disturbed by the recent attack in the House upon the library because it did not have a legislative reference department, an idea utterly impracticable in the form in which it was proposed. The effort reached its end in the Senate yesterday in a total fizzle, but the outcome came too late to work his recovery.

While it is too early to foretell the fate of the bill to incorporate the trustees of Massachusetts college, yet the unanimous vote of the House yesterday, without debate, gives it first class promise of going through the House. It had been passed for debate repeatedly, but its questioners seemed to have been satisfied by the time they had an opportunity to talk. The two dissenters of the committee are in the Senate, and it is there, if anywhere, that the bill will meet serious opposition.

Yesterday the House passed to be engrossed the Senate bill for the incorporation of credit unions. This is a new thing for this country, but it has some 25,000 practical illustrations in Europe. It owes its favor here to Pierre Jay, our recent savings bank commissioner. It is for the particular benefit of women and women without capital, but with good character, and it has operated for the material financial benefit of the members, as it is managed in Europe. Regulations are strict for borrowing, but the actual demonstration of the success of relying upon the character of borrowers who can put up no collateral but their honesty has made it advisable to try the system here. Mr. Jay has been enthusiastic and it has marked advantages over our present savings bank system in way of giving opportunities to borrowers.

From the committee on agriculture comes an appropriation of $150 000 a year for three years for the suppression of the gypsy and brown tail moths It is expected that $15 000 of this will go for experiments with parasites. State Forester Kane estimates that for each of these three years about $1,000,000 a year will be spent here in Massachusetts fighting the pests This is made up of about $300,000 from the national government, plus the $150 000 from the state, and what will be spent further by cities and towns, by individuals, and by the metropolitan district in its parks and boulevards. There is a growing appreciation of the destructive nature of the pest and the need of thorough action.

Fortunately for the honor of the state, the House has recovered its mental balance upon the subject of baseball playing, though there is the loss of one afternoon to be recorded. To day a plan was laid to have the House sit through in one session till 2 o'clock and then go to Lynn to the opening game of the New England series between the Lynn and Fall River nines Representative McCann of Lynn is president of the Lynn Club and sent invitations to the members But the Senate order, which was drawn yesterday, was carelessly left till too late. In the House the effort was made, as planned, but a large majority voted no and a large quorum was present for business in the afternoon, though Mr McCann was among the missing

It looks as if the judiciary committee, which has been hearing the question of inlected beef, would be favorable to the producers and butchers and would permit the sale of meat when it is absolutely certain that it is healthy Former Attorney General Fillsbury, who drafted last year's law, which has made all the trouble, argued before the committee that it was not reasonably open to the interpretation put upon it by Attorney General Malone He said that an animal might be diseased in horn or hoof, eye or ear, or tail, and yet be perfectly wholesome for meat. He said, amid laughter, that the present situation was an unfortunate and melancholy illustration on the way in which the highest executive officers of the state could be stampeded by a newspaper.

The committee on agriculture has been holding private sessions on the milk question, but has not yet reached an agreement upon a report. LANDON

Another thing that appeals to us is his chivalry. When the woman was accused before him he placed her behind his six feet of splendid manhood and bade him that was without sin cast the first stone No greater example of chivalry was ever given Christ has taught the world his principles; that woman is equal with man. Christ honors the successful man Dollars are not the only thing. If you are not doing as well as others, but are doing your best, you can claim success. Jesus taught by his terrible death on the cross that "It isn't the fact that you are dead that counts, but how did you die." The speaker then asked those present to accept as his rare companion, the man who was perfect, loving, loyal and self-confident; to do it for his sake, for God's sake and our own sake.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ills, including inflammation and congestion, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I can now say I am a well woman."
EMMA DRAPER.

Another Operation Avoided.

Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SCARLET FEVER CASES.

Several Discovered in Village of Three Rivers.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL TO BE USED

Light Cases Not Reported, and Numerous People Exposed. Origin of Disease Unknown.

It was definitely determined Wednesday that there were several cases of scarlet fever in the village of Three Rivers. There had been suspicions symptoms for a few days, but the uncertainty was wiped out Wednesday, and yesterday more cases were found. The total is some six or eight, with a good possibility of more to follow. There are three cases in one of the tenement blocks near the Athol station, the others being in private families. The board of health has decided to move those in the tenement section to the town's isolation hospital, as they have a right to do, in order to protect the other occupants of the building. Should other cases develop in tenement blocks these will also be moved; those in private families will not be disturbed, but the houses are and will be strictly quarantined. It is not known how the disease originated, but it is presumable that some worker in the Palmer Mill contracted it elsewhere and communicated it to the others who have it, as nearly if not all the patients are employed in the mill; they are of all ages, from young children to adults. Other cases are expected, as it has been determined that patients have been afflicted with the disease for some time, but as the cases were light and they were not sick enough to call a physician, knowledge of its existence did not leak out until after the possibility of spreading it among a considerable number

WARREN.

Mrs Adella H. Robbins of East street is the guest of friends in Swarthmore, Pa.

Warren Grange will be inspected this evening by District Deputy Grand Master F. N. Blutelle of North Leominster.

Henry Patrick of South Orange, N. J., is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs Albert B. Patrick on the West Brookfield road, convalescing from a broken leg he sustained about two months ago.

Miss Marie Loniae Anna Paquette, 20, died Wednesday at the home of her uncle, John W. Fonntain, on Main street in West Warren after a two-years' illness from rheumatism. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Paquette of Willimantic, Ct., and the body was taken to that place for burial Wednesday.

Clara Barton Woman's Relief Corps celebrated the 234 anniversary of their organization Wednesday afternoon in Memorial Hall. About 50 guests were present from out of town, including large delegations from North Brookfield and Leicester. All were disappointed that the department officers, who were expected, did not arrive, but an enjoyable program was provided and light refreshments were served.

Superintendent of Schools Parker T. Pearson, who closed four years' work in the local schools with the close of the spring term last Friday, was presented with a purse of gold by Fred W. Hilton, principal of the high school, in behalf of all the teachers of the town as a token of their esteem. The joint committee of Warren, Wales and Holland also adopted resolutions of appreciation.

Thomas McNamara, 65, died Wednesday night at his home on Nelson street from dropsy. Mr. McNamara was a native of Ireland and came to Warren when a young man and made it his home until 1886, when he went West for 20 years and traveled over many of the Western states. In 1906 he returned to Warren and made his home on Nelson street. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Matthew Mullen and Mrs. Mary Reynolds, both of Warren The funeral will be held from St Paul's church to-morrow morning at 9, and burial will be in Ware.

A robbery took place Monday evening in the Polish boarding house of Mike Furgal. During the evening a stranger came to the house looking for a lodging, and said he was going to work in town for a contractor. Tuesday morning he went out and has not been seen since. Wednesday Alexander Egiofski discovered that his gold watch and chain, valued at $35, were missing and Martin Banas had lost two gold rings. All the articles were in a bureau in the room occupied by the stranger. The case was placed in the hands of Constable St. George.

William Cohen of Fiskdale and Max Goff of Worcester were arrested Tuesday by Constable Joseph St. George for buying junk without a license. They were seen as they entered the town, and when interviewed admitted not having a license, but said they were not buying anything and were on their way to Fiskdale. Constable St. George was suspicions of them, however, and followed them up the Southbridge road. After they had gone about half a mile he caught them in the act of buying a bag of rags which they held in their hands. They were taken before Judge Henry Cottle at East Brookfield Wednesday morning.

The Warren milk car met with a slight accident Monday afternoon about 4 30 It was being switched on to the milkhouse track with a flying switch, when the brake failed to work and the car went against the bumper at a speed of 15 miles an hour. The impact was heard all about the village, but fortunately the car rebounded on to the rails, and the only damage was that the bumper was forced around one side and the rails were drawn out of place, one set of bolts being cut off and allowing the rails to slip on the sleepers. Barney Otis, the brakeman in charge, jumped, and Edward R. Thompson, who was riding beside, jumped to the platform, and both escaped injury.

The senior class of the Warren high school will return this evening from Washington, D. C., where they have been spending the week. The party stopped at Philadelphia, Pa., on the way down and in New York city on their way home. Those who went were: Miss Lonise Spencer, Miss Jennie Skipper, Miss Mabel White, Miss Mary Ennis, Miss Rose Fagan, William Shuttleworth, William Runyan and Stanley Crosby of Warren; Miss Susan Bill, Miss Nettie Allen, Miss Helen Clowson, Haroid Risley, Roger Reed, Arthur Stone and Oscar Robinson of West Brookfield, members of the class. The others in the party included Miss Helen Prouty, Miss Mabel Cunningham, Miss May White and Miss Marjorie E. Chase of Warren; Mrs. A E Gilbert, Mrs. Charles A. Blake, Mrs. Frank Dailey and Miss Nathalie Gilbert of West Brookfield; Miss Rachel Burdick and Miss Daisy Kenyon of Westerly, R. I.; James A. Howe of Belmont and Miss Ruth Bradley of Springfield.

DEATH OF J. F. TWISS.

Passed Away Early Yesterday Morning at His Home.

ILL SOME TIME WITH TUBERCULOSIS.

A Native of Palmer, Selectman Many Times, Well Known and Universally Respected.

John F. Twiss, 55, a native and long time resident of the town, selectman for many years and well known beyond the borders of his own town, died at his home in Three Rivers about 3 o'clock yesterday morning of tuberculosis, having been seriously troubled with the disease for several months.

John F. Twiss was born in Three Rivers June 23, 1854, the son of Francis and Mary Twiss, and lived all his life in the village in which he was born. After attending the public schools of Palmer he completed his education with a course in Monson Academy. In 1870 he took a position as agent for the New London Northern railroad—now the Central Vermont—at Three Rivers, remaining about three years, when he resigned and entered the employ of C H. Murdock as a clerk in his general store. A little later he changed to the store of Holden Brothers, and in 1875 opened a grocery store of his own. After five years, during which time he made a successful record as a merchant, he closed out that business and established a livery, which he had since conducted. Mr. Twiss was a Democrat in politics, and during the first administration of Cleveland was appointed postmaster of Three Rivers. He also held various positions of trust for his party. He has been elected one of the selectmen of the town fourteen times, and during the greater part of his service he was chairman of the board. In the discharge of his duties he was well known as a careful, honest, capable official, and was extremely popular with all.

Mr. Twiss was married in 1881 to Ellen M. Kerigan of Palmer, who survives him, with seven children, Frank, Mary, Belle, Nellie, John, Edith and Richard; one son, Joseph, died in 1890 Frank is an auditor for Swift & Co., and Nellie is a student in the Bridgewater Normal School. The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church in Thorndike, with burial in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery in Thorndike.

WILBRAHAM.

Mrs. B. J. Merriam and Mrs. G. R. Newhall of Brookfield have been guests of Mrs. L G Pease.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden of Swampscott have been guests a part of the week of their daughter at Wesleyan Academy.

A petition was sent to the county commissioners yesterday by 15 residents of North Wilbraham for the relocation of Wilbraham road in North Wilbraham. The road in question runs from the Boston road, so-called, to Maple street. It is alleged that the road is narrow and that the boundaries are ill defined.

The Methodist Sunday school has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Superintendent, G. W. Hulme; assistant superintendent, Miss Ruth Green; secretary and treasurer, Miss E. J. McGuire; librarian, A. H. Bosworth; organist, Miss Marjorie Phinney; assistant organist, Mrs. L. G. Bartlett. Miss Constance Stephens was elected superintendent of the infant department.

BELCHERTOWN.

Death of Charles Dickinson.

Charles Dickinson, 52, son of Francis and Panthea Woods Dickinson, died Wednesday afternoon at 2 of blood-poisoning occasioned by the amputation of part of his foot about six weeks ago. Mr. Dickinson was a prosperous farmer, and for a time followed the carpenter's trade, but of recent years lived a quiet, retired life. He was highly respected. He was born in the house in which he died, and leaves two sisters, Mrs. H. D. Hoag and Mrs. C. B King.

Miss Minnie Staddler was operated upon Saturday in a Springfield hospital for appendicitis.

Herbert F. Shaw has purchased J. W. Jackson's north end grocery and fruit store. Mr. Shaw has been for the past two years on a farm.

Stephen White, 88, died at the town farm Saturday of odema. Mr. White has been an inmate of the farm for about two years. He leaves two sons. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2.

BRIMFIELD.

Mrs. Florence Bliss Jeffries of Boston, formerly of Brimfield, has visited friends in town this week.

Mrs. Walter Newell and her two little girls are spending a number of weeks at the home of Mrs. Hubbard.

Mrs. Mary B Shaw passed her 84th birthday Monday and enjoyed the calls of friends in honor of the occasion.

At the regular meeting of the Grange Tuesday evening, three candidates received the third and fourth degrees of membership. They were Mrs. Hubert Booth, Miss Ella Parker and Mark Newton. The third degree was very gracefully worked by the women's degree staff, and the ceremonies were accompanied by tableaux on the platform of the hall representing domestic and harvest scenes. The literary program consisted of a piano duet by Mrs. Tarbell and Mrs. Garmes, a song by Mrs. Clarence Brown, a reading by Miss Tarbell and a song by Miss Lillian Stanton. There were remarks by Deputy Sawyer of Winchendon, who inspected the Grange and commended the work of the evening and the conditions and methods of the organization. Resolutions were read on the death of Mrs. Gertrude C. George.

CHURCHES HOLD MEETING.

Hampden Association Congregationalists at Thorndike.

LARGE NUMBER DELEGATES PRESENT

Encouraging Reports for the Year. Interesting Addresses by Well-known Speakers.

The Hampden Association of Congregational churches and ministers met in the Congregational church in Thorndike Wednesday. Thirty-two churches were represented by 29 pastors and 76 delegates. Rev. Dr. E A Reed was moderator and Rev. Seelye Bryant scribe.

The association was called to order in the morning at 10 30, prayer being offered by the moderator. Rev. John S. Curtis was elected assistant scribe. Rev W. H Dykeman of Westfield, Rev H. L. Bailey of Longmeadow and C. A. Brodeur of Westfield were elected a nominating committee to nominate delegates to the state association and candidates for corporate membership of the American board.

The review of the scribe showed that there were in the conference 46 churches with a membership of 11,483; 899 had been received into the conference the past year, the largest number since 1889; a net gain of 326, 295 more than the preceding year. Seven churches showed no additions and 14 none on confession. The Sunday schools showed a membership of 10,414, a gain of 189 Nineteen schools have home departments, two have missions, and 31 churches societies of Christian endeavor with a membership of 1693. The total benevolences of the year are $37,368, home expenses $146 025, of which $66,025 was paid for pastors' salaries.

The topic for discussion at the morning session was "Christian nurture." Principal C A Brodeur of the Westfield normal school spoke on "Christian nurture in the home." He said in part: Christian nurture incindes instruction, inspiration and practice. The Christian is the natural outgrowth of every normal home. By Christian nurture I mean that sort of nurture which leads every boy or girl to be fitted for manhood and womanhood and for all the highest duties of citizenship. Every home should have a religious atmosphere; this may or may not include family prayers. Whatever may be the family practice the atmosphere should be such as to be the ab'est and most potent force for the development of all that is highest and best Again, the father and mother must unite in definite religious instruction for the children. Fathers are all too indifferent to their responsibility for the training of their children.

There are various ways to bring about this development; we should discuss with the children those things that have to do with the higher life of the community The question of higher criticism should be freely discussed, also those things that concern the lives of those who have been potent in the history of the race. I like also, said the speaker, to emphasize the dignity of labor. There is a tendency to-day to look down upon the man who works; we ought not to educate our children to strive to get out of the realm of work into positions of ease; it also tends to give one a grasp upon the things religions. We must magnify the home,—make it the central thing in all the world. The father must chum more with his boys, must be with them in their reading and in their sports, and the mother must be with the children in the nursery. Another way to magnify the home is to have a family room where the family can gather to discuss things of mutual interest; nothing draws the parents closer together than a mutual interest in the welfare of the child. Then our children ought to be read to, if the right things are chosen for their use; we should make our children love the good. Our children must be given religions tasks, something to do for, and should have some part in the support of the church.

Rev. Dr. G. S. Rollins of Springfield spoke on "Christian Nurture in the Church." He said in part: The work the home is trying to do will fail unless there is in the home an atmosphere of love for the church. The time to begin the training is in childhood, that the child may grow up feeling that the church belongs to him as well as to father or mother. It is the privilege of the church and its great opportunity to lay its hand upon the children. Ninety-five per cent of the children who come into the church are those who have been trained to go to church rather than only to the Sunday school Christian people should be educated to bring their children to church. They should also be educated to have their children baptized. I believe in baptism in childhood because it works. Another important thing is to have a minister who loves children, one who must identify himself with the children, visit them at school and be interested in their concerns in every way.

Discussion followed in which Revs. F. S. Brewer, Richard Peters, Seelye Bryant, C. B. Bliss, F. W. Merrick and others participated. The afternoon session opened with a devotional service led by Rev. Samuel Holden.

At the business meeting W. F. Emerson of Longmeadow and E. H. Norton Jr., were elected delegates to the state association. Rev. J. L Kilbon and Charles L. Gleason were nominated as corporate members of the American board. The scribe stated that after January 1 the association was to be made responsible for the standing of the ministers. Rev. H. O. Hannum was admitted into membership of the association. The action of the executive committee recommending the sale of the French church in Springfield was ratified. The appointment of a delegate to the Silver Bay conference, the representative of the church building society and the question of a layman's missionary committee were left to the executive committee

Rev G. A. Andrews was the first speaker of the afternoon, his theme being "The devotional use of the Bible." He said in part: The misuse of the Bible for the substantiation of the doctrine must be held in part responsible for its present disuse in devotional study. The object of our Bible study is simply and solely to find God and to appropriate him into our lives. We must come to the Bible not with the desire to establish any pet theory of theology; we must come only as Christians, humble, teachable, eager for God. We must be our own critics of the Bible; not its intellectual critics, but its spiritual critics. What has inspired us, we may be sure has first been inspired by God. Some of the modern aids to the study of the Bible are to be commended, not merely because they help us to understand the Bible intellectually, but only because the MURDER AT HARDWICK.

Well-known Farmer Killed by a Drunken Pole.

STABBED IN LEG, BLED TO DEATH.

Assailant Was Making Disturbance at Grange Meeting, and Was Put Out by Goodfield.

William A. Goodfield, a well-known cattle and milk dealer in Gilbertville, was stabbed by John Gyratis, a Polish farm hand employed by Lewis Cleveland of Hardwick, in front of the Hardwick Hotel Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock, and died in the office of Dr. H. Z. Leach in Gilbertville shortly after. Gyratis was arrested.

Mr Goodfield was attending a meeting of Pomona Grange of Hardwick in the hotel. He had some disagreement with Gyratis, who was in a drunken condition and was making a disturbance in the hotel. Goodfield forcibly ejected Gyratis, who drew a knife and made five or six lunges at Goodfield. The latter, in an attempt to ward off the blows, raised his left leg, and one of the lunges inflicted a gash nearly five inches long, severing the femural artery. Those who witnessed the deed did not at first realize the extent of the injuries, for Mr. Goodfield jumped into his wagon without apparent effort and was taken to the office of Dr. Leach by William Burton of Gilbertville, who had accompanied him to the meeting. Mr. Goodfield collapsed before reaching the doctor's office, and died six minutes later from loss of blood.

Immediately after the stabbing occurred Constable M. N. Ayres of Hardwick was notified, and two of the witnesses caught Gyratis, who had attempted to run away and fought desperately when caught. He was placed in the lockup in Gilbertville.

Mr Goodfield was 31 years of age and owned one of the largest farms in the vicinity of Gilbertville. He was a large dealer in cattle, and did contract work for the town of Hardwick, being also superintendent of streets. He leaves one son, Raymond, eight years old.

Gyratis was brought into court in Gilbertville yesterday noon and arraigned before Trial Justice Dennis Healy of Furnace The witnesses summoned were William Burton and John Donaldson of Gilbertville, Frank Humphrey, John Neylon, Fred L Tinney and William P. Wesson, all of Hardwick. All witnesses were bound over under $50 bonds to appear at the hearing next Thursday. Gyratis was remanded to Worcester for further examination, and was taken to the jail in that city in the afternoon. Gyratis has a poor record in the district court. A couple of years ago, after a dispute with his employer, John Delargy, he picked up a pitchfork and chased Delargy into his house. About a year ago Gyratis was brought into court for assault on a Polish girl, who had her head split open by a club swung by Gyratis. The prisoner appeared cool when in court yesterday morning and expressed no regret for the deed.

ANOTHER FIRE ALARM.

But Fortunately Very Little Damage. Firemen Make Good Time.

After a breathing spell of several weeks the firemen were given a run Monday afternoon at 3 51 for a smudge in the Weeks House barn on South Main street. And that was all it amounted to—a smudge, but there was a lot of that. Smoke had been discovered coming from one of the large box stalls in the side-hill basement of the barn, and a small amount of fire was found by those first on the scene. There was a quantity of straw on the floor of the stall, but it was damp and there was more smoke than fire, a couple of pails of water and a few shovels of sand having it practically out before a fireman with a hand chemical arrived, and the finishing touches were soon added without the need of a hose stream. The "jumper" was on hand ready for use however in five minutes from the first tap of the alarm, and the steamer arrived with fire built in eight minutes. A depression in the straw of the stall where a man had evidently lain is a satisfactory explanation of the origin of the blaze, although first comers could find no one in or about the premises or vicinity.

Dies From Poisoning.

The seven-years-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Deroche of Ludlow died yesterday afternoon at 1, due to poisoning by chlorodine tablets. Her nine-years-old sister also ate some of the tablets, but was saved through the efforts of Dr. M. B. Landers. The children were sent to bed Wednesday night, and on their way to their room entered the room of an uncle and found a box containing 18 pills. The girls took them into the hall and the oldest girl says she ate four or five and the little girl ate the rest. Both went to bed and were found in the morning by their mother in a drowsy condition She was unable to account for it and summoned Dr. Landers, who discovered the reason for the condition of the children. Dr. Harrington was sent for and a consultation held, every effort being used to get the child out of the stupor, but she died at noon.

PALMER NEWS.

CATTLE WERE UNDERFED.

Long-named Society Agents Find Bad Conditions in Brimfield.

George Steinson of Brimfield appeared in the district court last Saturday on two charges—failing to provide proper shelter and protection for a cow, and failure to provide proper sustenance for 24 head of neat cattle. Steinson refused to plead and wanted three or four weeks in which to get ready for trial, but did not know just when he would be prepared. Neither was he certain whether or not he would engage counsel, although he admitted that such was among the possibilities. Judge Kenefick was willing to grant reasonable time, but could see no reason for a month's delay and the cases were set for trial this morning, bail being fixed at $100 and Steinson being allowed to go on his own recognizance. Later in the day information was given Agent Dexter A. Atkins of the long-named society which led him to pay a visit to Steinson's place later in the day, where he found conditions no better then before Steinson's arrest, and he was again brought to Palmer. His attitude at this time was such that he was required to furnish bail, which he could not do and was accordingly locked up. Agent Atkins stated that the condition existing at the Steinson place was the worst he had ever found. The animals were so emaciated that they were nothing but skin and bones, while one cow had been lying down for several weeks, with little or no attention.

The cases were tried in the district court this morning and the evidence as given by the officers brought out a deplorable condition of affairs. Agent Atkins testified to visiting the Steinson farm April 16, at which time there was one cow lying down in the shed, another in the barn and another in an open field, all sick or unable to rise. There were about 20 other animals about. There was no hay and Steinson said that he had had none for two weeks. There was some dried swale grass which had been fed the cattle, but it was of little value for nourishment; a sample of it was submitted. There was a very small quantity of meal, but not enough to amount to anything. Another visit the 18th showed the same condition, except that the cow in the barn had died, in his opinion from underfeeding. On the 24th he found the cow in the field in the same condition as formerly, too weak to rise; between visits there had been rains and cold weather; the cow was not covered, though there were some bags lying near. The cow in the shed had been dragged out of doors, and Steinson said he thought the sun and air would do her good; Agent Atkins recommended that she and the other in the field be put under cover and cared for. At this time there was some hay of good quality. May 1 the cow in the field was unable to raise her head,—which lay in a box in which there was some hay—or to hold it up when it was raised for her. He considered the condition of the cattle far below the average. Dr. M. H. Davitt of Palmer, a veterinarian, and G. H. Dyson of Worcester, another agent of the society, testified to visiting the cattle at times with Anderson and corroborated his statements.

Steinson denied many of the statements made by the agents of the society and Dr. Davitt, and stated that he had furnished generous quantities of hay and other feed; that he had cared for the animals to the best of his judgment and that their condition was only such as might reasonably be expected at the end of a long winter; they were in better condition than many, but not so good as some.

He was found guilty on three counts, but on agreeing to accede to all demands of the agents for the long-named society sentence was suspended until the 7th of June.

HISTORICAL'S ANNUAL.

Reports of Year's Work, Officers Elected, Social Hour.

In connection with its annual meeting last Tuesday night, the Palmer Historical Society observed its tenth anniversary in an informal manner. After the officers had made their reports for the year, several new members were elected and these officers chosen for the ensuing year: President, J. B. Stone; vice president, Mrs. J. C. Wing; secretary, Mrs. L. A. Hitchcock; treasurer, Mrs. L. E. Carpenter; curator, O. P. Allen; members of the council, in addition to the foregoing officers, Mrs. Anna L. Fuller and D. L. Bodfish. A committee consisting of J. B. Stone, O. P. Allen and Mrs. Abbie M. Wing was appointed to confer with Mrs. Ada W. Mead in regard to the placing of the sun dial, a recent gift of Mrs. Mead. The matter of the usual outing was left in the hands of the council.

Following the routine business, the anniversary was observed by several short addresses. Rev. F. S. Brewer spoke on the theme "What Does the Historical Society Stand For?" He spoke of the value of a historical society in any community, because it serves to draw attention to matters of permanent value, and fills a place not occupied by any other. He said that the study of history is a great aid to the imagination, a faculty without which no man or woman could ever attain to a position of power or influence.

O. P. Allen followed with a brief resume of inception, organization and results of the work of the society, showing that posterity would have much for which to thank its founders and promoters.

D. L. Bodfish closed by saying a few well-chosen words of approval of the work accomplished by the society, expressing a wish that some benefactor of the race might endow the society with a suitable home wherein its valuable relics might be housed, and where the members might have a meetingplace of their own.

After the adjournment, light refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. J. C. Wing, Miss Bertha Hastings, Mrs. L. M. Shaw, Mrs. S. H. Hellyar, Mrs. S. V. Gardner, and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

H. P. Cummings Construction Co. of Ware,	13,992

William Collins, who runs a bootblacking stand in front of the Commercial block on Main street, collided with a delivery team from Shaw's market Monday afternoon on Main street. Both were passing an electric car but on opposite sides, and as the car passed they turned sharply toward each other and came in collision. A few slight bruises only were the results.

POOR HORSE KILLED.

Taken From Band of Gypsies Tuesday. So Emaciated Couldn't Eat.

Agent Dexter Atkins of the long-named society came to Palmer from Springfield Tuesday forenoon and took from a band of gypsies which was passing through the town the poorest specimen of horseflesh he said he had ever seen. The animal was small, poor and so emaciated that it could not eat grass, the food dropping from its mouth when it attempted to eat. The owner objected strenuously, claiming he had paid $35 for the animal. "All right," Mr. Atkins said, "You keep the horse and I'll take you." "What you do the horse, kill 'im?" asked the owner. "Yes, I'll kill him," was the reply. "And me no go court?" "No, you won't have to go to court." "You kill the horse," and the owner couldn't say it quick enough. It was turned over to Otto Smith, who put it out of its misery.

While the band was passing through Main street the women paid the customary visits to the stores. The news that one of a similar band was arrested and fined for begging recently had evidently spread to this company, for as Deputy Sheriff Northrop sauntered along after one of them she turned to him and said, "You watch me?" He replied that he was watching her and that any attempt at begging would land her in the lockup, whereupon she decided that she'd give up the attempt to tell fortunes.

SHALL SCALES BE MOVED?

Question Which Brick Paving on Main Street Brings Up.

With the contemplated paving of Main street with brick has come the question what to do with the "hay scales," so-called, which have been located for a number of years in front of the Holbrook block, and there are many who are frank to say they should be removed to some other location. They stand squarely in the street, and if they are to remain a special and expensive sort of curbing must be built around them to protect the paving and prevent it from crumbling away and the passing vehicles from possible damage. The scales being in the street there is no method of fencing them in or from preventing teams from driving over them at will. Those who urge their removal point to the entire absence of authority for permitting such use of the public streets of the town, and suggest that every abutter might with reason claim an equal right. Conditions were vastly different when the scales were established there, but now that we are to have a modern pavement they think it time to have the scales removed. The selectmen have been asked to move in the matter, but have not as yet signified their intention of so doing.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

An Englishman's Impressions of Monson And its Surroundings.

Last summer Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Davis of England and son, Herbert, who at that time was art editor of the New York World, visited friends in Monson. While in this country Mr. Davis preached in several of the largest cities and is known in England as an earnest worker and an able preacher. He is editor of the "Free Churchman" of Stroud, and the following article on Monson was taken from this magaziue:

One of the interesting features of American travel is the trolley car. Not only are the cities splendidly equipped with the electric tram-car system, as we should call it, but the trams or trolley cars take you all over the country, worked by the electric over-head wire; and, running at a cheaper rate, constitute a formidable rival to the railroad You can go, for example, from Boston to New York by trolley, a distance of 266 miles. You are on the country roads all the way, and the pleasure of it is only a few degrees inferior to rushing along on your own automobile, as the Americans call the motor-car.

We wished to visit friends at Monson, Mr. and Mrs. Holdridge, friends of Mr. J. Bown, of Stroud, who had given us letters of introduction. Monson is a beautiful little town 80 miles from Boston. The electric trolley car whirled us along country roads bordered with charming residences standing in their own lawns and shrubberies open to the road, skirting or crossing considerable lakes, here and there pursuing a track through the forest with extensive views opening out to the right or left, or dashing through a village or town, whisking past the town hall or central square, and out into the country again. And at any point we stop to set down or take up a passenger. Here is Worcester, a fine city, with its town hall of grey granite and lofty clock tower, and its noble business streets. We change into the Palmer car, and again we are speeding through glorious country, sometimes looking down into deep valleys, peering into a secluded lake set in woodland, or winding our way through a half circle of stately wooded hills. At Palmer we change cars again, and another four miles brings us to the beautiful avenued Main street of Monson. It is wonderfully like the valley between Strond and Rodborough Hills. The town lies along the valley, which admits of two broad avenues, and, in its wider portion, of two or three other roads; and the houses, all of wood, charming in their varied design, with piazzas and well-trimmed lawns and gardens, give you the feeling that you are in a community that knows how to adorn its homes with taste and fill them with comfort. The public library is built of grey granite from the Monson quarries on the hill. The town hall has a statue of General Sherman; another statue of that favorite hero is reared on a graceful granite column in another part of the town near the free library, and pleasant houses peep down upon you from among the trees that clothe the hill sides. Here is a hat factory, airy, spacious and clean, employing about 200 people. The garden in front of the factory is brilliant with geraniums aronnd a central fountain. Here is a cloth factory. The old wooden building is being replaced by a new one of granite. There along the river darts a kingfisher. We watch him as we stand on the granite bridge. We pass the Cougregational and Methodist Episcopal churches, built of wood, with tall steeples, and painted white; the Catholic church, of granite; with the priest's house in on extensive and well-kept garden, the lawns descending in successive terraces to the street, and bordered by a brilliant hand of nasturtiums.

Death of Mrs. Catherine Murphy.

Mrs. Catherine M. Murphy, 79, an old resident of this town, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Sullivan on State street late Friday night. She was born in Ireland and came to this country 58 years ago, having spent practically all of her life in this town. She was one of the oldest Catholic residents, and previous to the building of the church, the meetings were held at her home. She was well known and highly respected. She leaves seven children, Frederic Murphy of Hartford, Ct., Mrs. F. W. Wilder of Maynard John, Henry, James, George and Mrs. Nellie Sullivan of Monson. The funeral was held in St. Patrick's church Sunday afternoon at 2.30, followed by burial in the Pearl street cemetery.

The bridesmaid was Miss Edna Jones, and William Moran, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Moran were generously remembered by their many friends with a large number of useful and ornamental gifts. Special Town Meeting.

The special town meeting held in the town hall last Friday evening proved to be an interesting one. The principal discussion of the evening was when article five was taken up to see if the town would accept the provision of Section 336 of Chapter 11 of the Revised Laws relative to electing a highway surveyor at the annual town meeting. B. F. Davis moved that the article be laid upon the table, but his motion was voted down. The discussion was opened by Daniel Nolan, who was in favor of accepting the provision. Others favoring it were Dr. G. M. C. Barnard, John Schoonmaker and James Buckley, while those speaking against its acceptance were George D. Storrs, who has just retired after serving 11 years on the board of selectmen, B. F. Davis and H. M. Coney. The motion was finally put and was carried, 130 voting for and 48 against the motion.

The other articles were rapidly disposed of. It was voted to raise and appropriate $1800 for street watering, rescinding a vote whereby this amount was improperly raised at the annual meeting The selectmen were authorized to lay out and construct sidewalks with stone curbing on the eastern side of Castle street northerly from Cottage to School streets. The town voted to instruct the selectmen to repair the roadway and rebuild the bridge and abutments over Beaver brook, approaching a sum not to exceed $800 for the same. Relative to the article to see if the town would authorize or instruct the selectmen to prosecute any person or persons who may have caused damage to this highway and bridge, it was voted that the board be instructed to investigate the cause of the damage and institute proceedings against any person or persons who may be found to have caused damage, if deemed advisable. It was voted to instruct the selectmen to pay the amount found due from the town by the auditor in the grade crossing case, and appropriation was made for this purpose. Under article 10 a vote taken at the annual meeting was rescinded, whereby $34,500 was raised and appropriated to schools, and under article 11, $27,000 was substituted, and under article 12, $7500 now in the hands of the treasurer, was appropriated to make up the difference. This money has been received since the annual meeting from license fees, but without this action by the town, the assessors, who began their duties Saturday, would not be able to consider it. The last article in the warrant was disposed of by the voting of $300 to extend the Church street storm water sewer to be constructed this year from Highland street to Grenville Park, through the park some 400 feet in the direction of the Ware river. Lewis N. Gilbert acted as moderator and fully 250 voters attended.

Mrs. John Deady, 70, died at her home on Cherry street Monday morning from heart trouble, being in failing health for some time Her maiden name was Bridget Dwyer, and she had lived in Ware a long time. She is survived by two sons, Hugh of Bangor, Me., and William of Ware, and two daughters, Mrs. George Stevens of Palmer and Mrs. Vincent O'Regan of Ware. Mrs. Lydia P. Dewing, 77, widow of the late William H. Newton, died Wednesday afternoon from diseases incident to old age, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Buffington, in Ware Center, after a short illness Mrs. Newton was a native of North Brookfield, and had lived in that town until two years ago. She leaves one son, William H. A. Newton of Boston. The funeral was held this morning at 11, and burial was in North Brookfield in the afternoon.

A meeting was held Saturday afternoon in the East Congregational chapel of those interested in forming a Congregational Baseball League. Those present included ministers and members of the congregations in the churches of this denomination in Belchertown, Enfield, Three Rivers and Ware, and the discussion over the matter lasted for an hour. It was decided to form the "Congregational Baseball League," with teams representing Enfield, Belchertown, Three Rivers and Greenwich, games to be played every Saturday beginning the 22d. Rev. Alexander Sloan of Enfield was chosen as president and secretary of the league, and the managers of the four teams will act as directors. The East Congregational church of Ware will not be represented in the league, but may organize a nine and meet the teams of the league during the summer. Those who would constitute such a nine did not care to tie themselves up to an all-summer schedule.

Green—"I told my wife last week that it would be necessary for us to economize." Brown—"What did she say?" Green—"She didn't say anything at the time, but the next day she bought me a box of bargain-counter cigars."—Chicago News.

"Where did I get it?" snarled the young millionaire. "That's a question that makes me hopping mad." "Papa won't ask it," simpered the fashionable damsel. "Have you still got it? That's all papa wants to know."—Pittsburg Post.

"I notice that you are prematurely bald," observed the inquisitive passenger. "May I ask how you lost your hair?" "I lost it by doing too much butting into other people's affairs," answered the other passenger.—Chicago Tribune.

THE PAIN MADE HER FAINT

"For almost four years I had a sore on my leg," says Mrs. Olive Hurd of Madison, N. H., "and this spring a doctor healed it up. I felt fine for about a month but had to be on my feet a good deal and above my knee came a swelling as big as my fist. It hung down and was red as if it had been blistered and so sore that I could hardly get around. The cords of my leg seemed to be stiff and the pain was so bad at times that it made me faint.

One of the neighbors told me about Sloan's Liniment so I got a bottle and put some right on. Next morning I could walk over so much better and I kept right on using the Liniment night and morning. It took down all the swelling, and the redness and soreness have gone too. I shall never be without Sloan's Liniment in the house again and will recommend it to all suffering friends."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Palmer People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Palmer.

Mrs. A. H. Moulton, living on Main St., Palmer, Mass., says: "I had been suffering from kidney and bladder trouble for some time, and was unable to get anything that would give me relief. My head aches a great deal and at times I was so dizzy I could hardly see. The kidney secretions were irregular and I was caused great annoyance by their too frequent action. Doan's Kidney Pills were then recommended to me and I procured a box from Lynde and Gould's drug store. I received such great relief from the first box that I continued using them and when I had taken the contents of three boxes, I was without a sign of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I am pleased to recommend them to other sufferers."

The Greatest Success Known in Treating Rheumatism.

Uric-O Expells the Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid from the System, insuring a Permanent Cure.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cnre for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else The only true way to cure Rhenmatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never free from the trouble. Uric-O seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure Rheumatism only.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould, and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Building, Syracuse, N. Y.

Refrigerators vs. Health

You never thought of tracing that last spell of sickness to your refrigerator, did you? And yet it is quite possible that the blame should be placed right there. Suppose you go right now and examine your refrigerator. See if the old style construction isn't all water soaked and ill smelling. See if the ice isn't melting pretty fast. See if the old galvanized or zinc lining isn't quite dirty and hard to clean. Then think of the

Think of the smooth, white porcelain lining, so easy to clean. Think of removable shelves and drain pipe. Think of the scientific air circulation it possesses, cutting down ice bills one-third. Think of its solid, substantial construction. Then, tomorrow, as soon as you can get down, come and SEE all these features and order a Leonard Cleanable—the finest refrigerator made. It costs no more than the "other kind":

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

"Doctor's Daughter"

SAYS: "Very few people appear to appreciate or understand the various symptoms caused by diseases of the organs of digestion. Almost always these symptoms are thought to indicate diseases of tbe heart, lungs, kidneys and other organs of the body, for the simple reason, that when the organs of digestion become diseased, the other organs of the body often become affected sympathetically, causing many erroneous conclusions as to the origin and nature of the disease.

The stomach and organs of digestion are to tbe other organs of the human body, what the roots are to the tree or plant, they supply the blood which keeps the body or plant alive. When the stomach and organs of digestion are strong and healthy and our food is well digested it will make rich, pure blood. Our blood is not the same all the time as you may think, but is constantly changing, and its quality and quantity will always depend upon the food we eat and digest.

When our blood is rich and pure it will prevent disease and heal all injuries. Young children having vigorous stomachs and good blood making powers, tbeir blood is rich and rapidly beals and restores their bodies after disease or injuries.

Indigestion often causes the skin and complexion to become rusty and dingy, sallow, faded and spotted, owing to the retention of various impurities in the blood, which ought to be cast off and dischsrged from tbe system by the action of the liver and digestive canal. No pathological fact is better established than tbat neuralgia, rheumatism and gout in their various forms and phases, are produced by the accumulation of uric acid in the blood and that they are the result of imperfect digestion of our food."

A noted physician has said:

"In nearly all cases of fatal chronic diseases of the heart, lungs, brain, kidneys, rheumatism, scrofula, etc., when the mucous membrane lining the stomach and intestinal canal is carefully examined, numerous traces of diseases will be discovered. Sometimes it will be congested, red and inflamed, and in many cases of long standing disease, tbickened and ulcerated, thus proving conclusively tbat fatal complications or diseases of otber organs were originally caused by chronic inflammation, congestion, thickening or ulceration of the mucous membrane lining the intestinal canal."

For the relief and cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and allied troubles Stomach-Rite is the best medicine and bas fully demonstrated its true worth in thousands of cases as tbe grateful users have testified. My father, Dr. John Wilbur, believed you should take as little medicine as possible but when you did need medicine to take only the best. If you would be healthy, eat good nourishing food and be able to properly digest it. Stomach-Rite assists the stomach and digestive organs, helps nature to do the work and brings a new life to tbe intestinal tract and cleanses the system of all impurities. If your food digests and your liver is active what health you enjoy—no indigestion—no constipation—a bright clear complexion, active brain, a good appetite and able to enjoy your food, truly life is then worth living—Stomach-Rite has done these things for many New England people, won't you let it do the same for you?

Very truly yours,

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, May 5, 1909.

Storm clouds are not as thick over the dome as they were at the beginning of the week. It seemed as if Senate and House would clash over the Norman White matter. But the sober members have seen all the time what utter folly the entire sensation was, and now the incident is in fair way to be smothered. The hot and unconsidered utterance of an excitable member of the House, taken up with more zeal for senatorial dignity than comported with the judicial settlement of the question, brought about the demonstration by the House in favor of Representative White. But the Senate laid the order suggesting discipline by the House over to Monday, and then referred it by rollcall of 22 to 11 to the committee on rules. The 11 wanted to kill it on the spot. Most of the others doubtless desired to smother it. The House postponed for a week an order looking to assertion of the right of free speech, which was put in as a defiance of the Senate. When it comes up the equilibrium of the bodies will probably be restored and then the entire matter can be killed, as it ought to be. There is evidence conclusive to my mind that the Senate order was approved by a majority of the committee on rules, consisting of President Treadway, Senator Shaw and Senator Dickinson,—Senators Potter of Worcester and Teeling of Suffolk being absent. Evidently the opinion of the committee on rules was that the Senate would rise up in his wrath against the House and adopt the order at once, thus administering a scalding rebuke to Representative White. But that belief was not realized and so the matter dragged along, but doubtless with far less trouble than if the order had been adopted. We are presumably near the end of the needless and foolish incident.

Business has been dispatched rapidly by the House this week Evidently the administration has seen that it was being fooled with by elements which would like to discredit it, and it seems to have got together, so that in a very smooth and imperceptible way, after a fashion, the machine has been turning off more business than ever. Speeches have been cut down to the unprecedented shortness of five minutes each, except in case of the opening on each side, which are given 10 minutes. The new rule just halves the time previously permitted. Then, too, new and obscure members have taken to moving the previous question in a way indicating that they have been prompted thereto. So the wheels are buzzing merrily and the calendar is reduced

Gov. Draper keeps in pretty close touch with the Legislature and the executive and legislative departments are working harmoniously. All together, they have not given much encouragment yet to the critics

The most perplexing matter remaining before the Legislature is the Boston charter, for that promises to make more trouble than the merger, City and state politics are involved and there are three distinct factions in the city to reckon with. These are the Democrats and the two wings of the Republicans. Of course the Democrats want to retain, as far as possible, the present form of the legislative department. There is one faction of the Republicans who wish to enact the scheme of the finance commission, abolishing the present city council of two branches and substituting a single chamber of nine persons. There is another faction which would retain the two-chamber system, and have for a lower branch a council composed of one representative of each of the 25 wards. There is a division over the referendum, and the dilemma has been met, not by giving the people a choice between a plan offered by the committee and the present system, but by giving them a choice between these alternatives of the committee. Thus the demand for a referendum is partially met, bnt the substance is very shadowy. There is a recall, or opportunity to vote upon the continusnce of tbe mayor after two years out of a term of four years. These are some of tbe points in the bill drawn by a snb-committee for the full committee. But it is certain, as the bill stands, that there will he a bitter contest.

Milk is one of the important matters still pending. The committee on agriculture has not yet agreed upon a bill. Three parties must be satisfied,—the producers, the consumers and the contractors. The latter are least in number, for they are long of purse and resourceful in inventiveness to find ways of getting whst they want The trouble is over the standard. Secretary Ellsworth of the State Board of Agriculture is strongly opposed to changing the standard which was fixed last year, for he wants it tried fairly. Many producers demand an entire sbolition of the standard. On the part of the consumers there is a demand that the standard be kept up, in order tbat milk of sufficient solid substance be given to them. It is possible that there may be reported a bill which will provide that where the milk is known to be of natural purity there shall be no prosecution. A proposition to that effect has been declared acceptable to an expert dealer in milk and one of the leading Essex county agitators bas said tbat sncb a system would be acceptable to him. Worcester county and tbe southeastern part send so much milk to Boston tbat they have a vital interest, while the western counties sre also concerned because milk transportation is from a much further distance than formerly.

"Everybody is asleep," says one of the best informed members regarding the merger situation. Gov. Draper sent in his message recommending a holding corporation to take oare of the Billard stock Norman White, as the leading anti-merger member in the Legislature, had been taken into confidence and into camp, apparently. Now comes some diplomacy, playing for position, or whatever it may be called. Gov. Draper wants the railroad committee to go ahead and draw a bill on the line of his message. "No, sir-ee," replies tbe committee, "not till we know something more about the case. We have not sufficient facts in our possession. Tell us more of wbat you know." "Not much," replies his excellency. "We won't budge," says the committee. Then the governor yields sufficiently to say that Attorney General Malone will prepare an administration bill which the committee can have as a basis for work But the attorney general does not know when he can have the bill ready In the meantime, "everybody is asleep," and the progress of events halts Mergerites and anti-mergerites have professed that they were satisfied with the governor's proposition, but, at the hearing on the message the anti mergerites showed that they are as persistent as ever and so the whole situation is up in the air yet

By a unanimous vote the House ordered to a third reading the amendment to permit the use of voting machines On the next stage nobody spoke against it, but the roll-call showed 153 yeas to 29 nays and four pairs on the second stage. It has yet to go to the Senate, but there is no reason to expect its defeat.

The bill to distribute the franchise taxes of corporations to the cities and towns where the property is located, instead of according to the residence of the stockholders, has been referred to the House ways and means committee, for it was found that it involved a loss of $575,000 a year to the state.

The House enacted this forenoon the bill to take out the word "labor" from the name of the bureau of statistics, in spite of the protest of labor men, including Meilen and Carmody of Worcester.

By 23 to 11 this afternoon the Senate has passed to be engrossed the House bill to make eight hours a legal day's work for all public employes. Efforts were made to amend it to cover particular points, but answer was made that all necessary points were covered by the bill as it stood, regarding emergencies, employes of state institutions where an eight-hour shift seems to be impossible, and other points. This action seems to make it certain that the bill will get to the governor. What he will do with it is the question.

The Senate has killed the House bill to require photographs or descriptions of drunkards to be filed with saloon keepers by persons who forbid the keepers to sell liquor to the drunkards It was thought to be too much of an advertisement of weak men and of family troubles and disgrace for such pictures and descriptions to be displayed publicly.

By the unanimous vote of the Senate, without debate, against Thomas L Hingen's bill to prohibit discriminations between places in the sale of articles and commodities in common use, the end has come for this year to the promising effort of the former candidate for the presidency to establish justice for his fellow men.

The House has referred to the next Legislature the bill to raise the number of people necessary for one liquor license from 1000 to 1200, with certain limitations It was said that the committee on liquor law never passed upon the bill as it was reported and the committee did not seem to care much for it. So it was sent where all doubtful projects are sent, when they do not care to defeat them outright.

$10,000 FIRE THIS TIME.

Bad Blaze in Commercial Block Tuesday Evening.

LITTLE FIRE BUT LOTS OF WATER.

Flames Play Hide and Seek in Partitions And Under Floors, Giving the Firemen Hard Fight.

A well-known business man remarked to Chief Summers of the fire department about 5 30 Tuesday afternoon, "Jim, we haven't had a fire for some time, have we?" "We sure haven't, and it's quite a relief," was the reply. Both failed to knock on wood and at 7 53 the hoodoo box—68—called the firemen to Main street, where vast quantities of smoke were issuing from the west front corner of the third floor of the Commercial block. The blaze, which at no time was very great, gave the boys a hard fight however, and it was only after an hour of strenuous work that they managed to get at the last spark and drown it out. The loss is estimated at about $10,000, the major portion of it from water.

The Commercial block is a large square wooden structure, built a good many years ago by the late Ebenezer Brown and the late C. D. Holbrook; it is owned by a son of the latter, A. W. Holbrook, and the E. Brown estate, the latter owning the west third of the building, which is three stories on Main street and four on Bridge street, Mr. Holbrook owning the rest. On the ground floor on Main street are the hardware store of the E Brown Co., a barber shop owned by W. J. Maguire, and the Sego lunch room, which occupies the east side and a room adjoining in the rear of the barber shop. On Bridge street is the market of E Trnesdell, and a store which had been opened that day for the cleaning and repair of clothing, under the management of George F. Emmons. Over the Brown Company's store and running the whole length of the building on both floors was a tenement occupied by J. P. Manning, clerk at the Converse House; in the Holbrook part of the building on the second floor were the lodge rooms of Court Palmer, Foresters of America, with a tenement at the rear occupied by W. L. King. On the third floor of this part were the quarters recently vacated by the Knights of Columbus. At the west of the Commercial block was a small two-story building, on the ground floor of which was the millinery store of Mrs. M. S. Langewaid, with a tenement above occupied by C. E. Walker. This originally had a shingle pitch roof, which had been replaced by tin, the half next the Commercial block being attached to it and raised so as to make a flat roof on that side, with vacant space between it and the shingle roof below.

The fire originated in a closet in the old Knights of Columbus quarters, next the Brown tenement, burned through the floor, then spread about seeking an outlet, which it found between the partitions and between the floor of the third floor and the ceiling of the room below. The floor timbers ran parellel with Main street and the fire raced along toward the west side of the block, then up into the narrow vacant space between the walls of the room and the Mansard roof, and thence up into the blind garret over the whole building. When the flames struck the side of the building they ate a hole through into the space between the shingle and tin roof of the smaller building, and were playing a merry game of tag all around out of sight.

The alarm was given by J. E. Rosenblad, who occupied the front corner room on the third floor of the Brown tenement. The room began to fill with smoke and he notified Mrs. Manning on the floor below that there was a fire somewhere but he couldn't find it; she at once rang in the alarm. He returned to his room, but it was then so full of smoke that it was almost impossible to enter. One of the firemen who happened to be in the building seized an extinguisher and turned the contents on the fire which by that time was coming through into Rosenblad's room from the adjoining closet. Another was also used but had little or no effect, as the fire was by this time raging all about the wall, having evidently been going some time. The firemen had a stream on the blaze in just six minutes from the first stroke of the bell, the first line of hose being attached at the corner of Main and Walnut streets and the hose taken up the front stairs and into the Knights' hall, where it was directed into the closet and through the partition into the room on the other side. A second line was attached at the corner of Main and Thorndike streets, this being taken to the second story of the small building and up through a scuttle where it could be turned on the fire between the two roofs above mentioned, and into the side of the adjoining Commercial block. Another line from this hydrant was run up on the roof of the small building and used to fight the flames back from that position. From the corner on Bridge and Water streets another line was laid to the rear of the Commercial block, taken up the fire escape and into the Knights' quarters, the stream first there being dropped to the floor below and taken into the front room of the Manning tenement, where it was directed through the ceiling into the fire raging there.

In some respects it was the hardest fight the firemen have had. There was very little fire visible, though the place was filled with choking smoke. The fire was all in the partitions and between the floor and ceiling, and hard to get at, especially after it had gained a hold in the Mansard roof and the garret. In these places it played hide-and-seek in a lively manner, breaking out in the most unexpected places at the most unexpected times. It crept down the west wall of the building and back under the floor of the second story until it began to eat its way through the ceiling of the hardware store almost directly under where it started, having gone around three sides of a square to get there. It was simply a case of chop holes and drown out every spark which appeared, and the boys did it all right, although it took a long time and much water. The smoke in the upper part of the block was thick and suffocating, and several of the firemen who first went into the Knights of Columbus quarters later got bewildered, although they knew the rooms perfectly, and had hard work to find their way out.

The exterior of the building gives little evidence that there has been a fire. The front west corner of the roof has a hole in it, but that is about all that can be seen, with the exception of broken windows, and to the casual observer comes the thought that the fire was not "such a much" after all. But the interior of the building, particularly that owned by the

Walter Todd Badly Hurt at East Cambridge.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM QUICK DEATH.

Car Backed Up When He Wasn't Looking. One Case in 10,000 Where Victim Escapes.

Walter Todd, son of James J. Todd of Pine street, had an almost miraculous escape from instant death in the yard of the Boston and Albany railroad at East Cambridge Sunday, being caught and squeezed between the bumpers of a car and engine. Todd is employed in various capacities about the Palmer yard and station, and on Sunday was working on the milk train on account of an injury to one of the crew. In the yard at East Cambridge a coupling between the engine and a car was to be made; when they came together the couplers did not catch and the car was "kicked" away a short distance; Todd turned to adjust the automatic coupler on the engine and as he did so the car rolled back upon him, catching him between the couplers. He called to the engineer that he was being squeezed and the engine was started up Todd was caught at one side of the abdomen and on the back at the other side of the body, but fortunately the car was about stopped when it reached him and the squeeze did not have the force of an attempt at coupling. He was at once taken to the East Cambridge relief hospital, where it was feared he might be injured internally, but the squeeze proved to be far enough to one side to escape damage to vital parts. He was brought to his home in Palmer Tuesday, and is expected to be able to sit up in a day or two more.

FOR THIRTIETH TERM.

Ware Fire District Sticks to Old Chief By Good Majority.

The annual fire district meeting was held in Ware Monday evening, with a record-breaking attendance. The great interest centered in the contest for the election of certain officers, and 622 men voted out of a possible 1220, including 192 French votes.

The old board was re-elected, with two exceptions. Thomas C. Gleason was re-elected chief engineer for his 30th term by a vote of 383 against 236 for Francis Skiffington. For first assistant engineer, Eugene McCarthy received 490 votes against 131 for Michael J. Riley; for second assistant, Edward J. Fallon was chosen with hardly any opposition. In the three-cornered contest for third assistant, Joseph Dupre received 240 to 195 for Hugh Gormley and 183 for Michael E. Fitzgerald. The only other fight was for prudential committee. James Anderson and Daniel E. Clifford was both re-elected, but the third member, Louis S. Charbonneau, was defeated by a new candidate, Aimee St. Pierre, the vote standing 312 to 300. The other officers chosen were: Clerk, John W. O'Neill; treasurer, John H. Schoonmaker; auditors, James E. Clark, William N. Newcomb.

The business part of the meeting was not taken up until long after 8, on account of the great rush of voters. Only on two occasions have such a number attended a fire district meeting, those being in 1905 when four different candidates ran for clerk, and a dozen years or more ago, when Frank Sherman made an unsuccessful fight to defeat T. C. Gleason for chief engineer. At the business meeting John W. Clark acted as moderator, and most of the articles were disposed of without opposition. The only argument arose when, under article 11, it was proposed to adopt the Australian ballot in the future. It was voted that a committee of three should be appointed to consider its advisability and to report in the future at a meeting to be called when the committee was ready. This committee was appointed by the chair and is George D. Storrs, James E. Clark and Henry F. Barnes. It was voted to improve the fire alarm system and $600 was appointed for installing an electric rather than a gravity system. The committee in charge consists of the three members of the prudential committee as chosen, the chief engineer and George E Tucker.

The appropriations were made as follows: Hose, $300; hydrant service, $1000; salaries of firemen, $2300; salaries of officers, $725; annual inspection, $150; incidentals, $1500, and the receipts from sprinkling. It was voted to authorize the maintenance of a pair of horses and driver at the engine house and $1275 was raised and appropriated for this purpose. The treasurer was authorized to borrow in anticipation of taxes a sum not to exceed $7000.

MURDERER'S SENTENCE.

Frank Sarno Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter Charge.

AND IS GIVEN MAXIMUM SENTENCE.

From 16 to 20 Years in the State Prison. Crime Committed Last December in Palmer.

Frank Sarno of Palmer, who on the evening of December 14 last stabbed and killed Clemente Giglio in the yard of the Central Vermont railroad in Palmer, in the superior court in Springfield Wednesday pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced to not less than 16 nor more than 20 years in the state prison. The trial began Tuesday on a charge of murder in the second degree. Wednesday District Attorney Taft held a consultation with James E Dunleavy, counsel for Sarno, and agreed to accept a plea of guilty to the lesser charge.

In explaining the matter to the jury Mr. Taft stated that after hearing the evidence of the day previous he was satisfied that he ought not to ask for a verdict for murder in the second degree. He said that it is always difficult to tell just how evidence is going to come out. He also said that there is sometimes a little distinction between the translation of little words. He mentioned the words "push" and "puuch," in which there is considerable difference in meaning. These were the words that there had been controversy over in the testimony of Dominique Barlocki on Tuesday.

Barlocki was the only one who saw the tragedy that resulted in the death of Giglio. He said that before Sarno had touched Giglio, Giglio had punched Sarno. The question arose as to whether the Italian word that Barlocki used might not mean "pnsh" as well as "punch." Mr. Taft also said that Barlocki, the witness, had been most unfortunate in that he had been confined for 75 days previous to the trial. He said, however, that the witness would be compensated for the time, and he asked that the court authorize the payment of $112 50 to the witness, $1 50 a day for the time that he had been kept confined.

Judge Henry A. King in prononncing sentence, stated that on the evidence already introduced the jury would have been justified in finding a verdict of murder in the second degree, and in imposing the maximum sentence said he believed something should be done to check the too ready use of the knife.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL.

Private Water Companies Put Under Supervision.

CONTROL STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Provision for Complaints, Hearings and Recommendations, Which are Sure of Adoption.

The move which had its birth in the town of Dedham a few weeks ago to put the private water companies of the state under the supervision of the electric light and gas commission has borne fruit in a bill which was signed by the governor April 26, providing for such supervision by the state board of health. The bill took effect on its passage, and is as follows:

SECTION 1. Upon complaint in writing relative to the service furnished in any city or town, or the charges therefor, made by any company engaged in the business of supplying water to such city or town or to the inhabitants thereof, signed by the mayor of the city or the selectmen of the town, or by fifty customers of the company, and filed in the office of the state board of health, said board shall notify the company by leaving at its office or place of business in such city or town a copy of the complaint, and may thereupon, after notice, give a public hearing to the complainant or complainants and to the company, and shall require the company to furnish such information in its possession as may be necessary to determine the matters involved in the complaint, and after the hearing may make such recommendations concerning the reduction, modification or continuation of such charges for service, or concerning improvements in the quality of the service or extensions of the same, or concerning other matters in the premises, as the board shall deem just and proper. Any such recommendations shall be transmitted in writing by the board to the company complained of, and a report of the proceedings and of the result thereof shall be included in the annual report of the board, together with a statement of the action, if any, taken by the company upon the recommendation.

It will be seen by this bill that communities have the means of securing a hearing on any fancied or real grievance they may have with the company (if it is a private one) which supplies them with water. The question of rates, quality of water or any other matter pertaining to the service may be taken up and gone into in detail by the petitioners. It may be noticed that the bill provides that only "recommendations" may be made by the state board of health regarding changes in the service or conditions, but that such recommendation will be regarded by the company affected in the light of an order as evidenced by the workings of the railroad commission in similar instances; the railroad commission has power to recommend only, but no railroad has yet been found which disregards the suggestions of that body; a recommendation is equivalent to an order, and the result is the same. At the hearing which was held before the Legislative committee in the matter, the Town of Palmer was represented by D. F. Dillon.

PALMER NEWS.

SCHOOL FIRE DRILLS.

Inspection Tuesday by Board of Engineers Showed Fine Results.

The board of engineers of the fire district paid a visit of inspection and experiment to the several school buildings of the town Tuesday, their object being to learn just how effective the fire drills which the schools are supposed to have at times have become, and what chance pupils have of getting out safely and expeditiously in case of actual need. What they found satisfied them that there would be little danger of loss of life in case of fire in any of the school buildings of the town.

Taken all in all, the finest record, from every standpoint, was made by the Palmer grammar school, where the last of 375 scholars, all in line with almost military precision, was out in 1 minute and 30 seconds from the stroke of the bell. There was no haste, no confnsion, but a perfect understanding of what was expected and an obedience to orders which reflected great credit on both teachers and scholars. The high school, with 110 scholars, was emptied in 1 minute and 20 seconds. The Thorndike school made the best time, the 180 scholars there getting out in 35 seconds, very much as a swarm of bees leaves a hive; it was mighty good time, though. At Bondsville the time was 1 minute and 15 seconds, the scholars numbering 220. None of the schools had knowledge of the test, and none of the teachers had been warned. The Three Rivers parochial school has not been having fire drills, and so the teachers and pupils there were coached as to the method of procedure; then the 125 scholars got out in 40 seconds. The Three Rivers grammar school was closed on acconnt of scarlet fever.

The Scarlet Fever Cases.

Only two new cases of scarlet fever have developed in Three Rivers since last Friday, one in a family where there was previously a case, and one other case in another section of the town. Three patients were removed to the isolation hospital last Friday, and the school has been closed this week. What another week may develop is uncertain, hut the board of health hopes that the worst is now over.

LOCAL BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Plan to Have Teams in All of the Villages, With All Local Players.

A plan is on foot to have a local baseball leagne in Palmer this season, the teams to nnmber four, one from each village of the town, the players all to be local men with the exception that each team may hire two outside players. A meeting to discuss the proposition was held at the Converse Honse Tnesday evening and the situation fully gone over. It was decided to have such a leagne, and E. D. Tufts of Palmer was chosen president, with A. Henrichon of Three Rivers vice president and J. J. Conway of Bondsville secretary and treasurer. There is to be a board of directors to consist of the president and the four managers as soon as they are chosen. It was decided to have the season begin Memorial Day and end Sept. 11 with two games each holiday and one Satnrdays, a total of 18 games. The schednle of games will be arranged by the board of directors. Each team will pay its own expenses and take the full gate receipts on its home grounds. A meeting of those interested in the formation of a team in Palmer will be held next Monday evening at the Business Club's rooms, to which everybody interested in baseball is invited. It is proposed to rnn the team without any appeal for financial assistance.

$10,000 Fire This Time.

Brown estate, tells an entirely different story. Over the Manning parlor, where the fire swept along to the side of the building, the cross timbers are, some of them, burned half in two; and up on the third floor, where the blaze got in between the wall and the roof, there is nothing but a shell left, the slate on the roof being responsible for keeping the fire from breaking ont and within bounds. There was practically no fire in any of the rooms, it being confined almost wholly to the concealed spaces.

The loss, nnder these conditions, is principally by water, and the losers, other than the owners of the building, are: J. P. Manning, household goods soaked by water, burned by sparks and damaged by falling plaster and burned wood, no insurance; W. H. King, household goods damaged by water, no insurance; C. H. Walker, household goods damaged by water, no insurance; Mrs. M. S. Langewald, millinery stock damaged by water and removal, no insurance; E. Brown Co., hardware stock damaged by water; D. E. The value of the building and contents is put at $28,500, on which there was $19,450 insurance. The small building and contents is valued at $4000

Persons who have inspected the inside of the building, the starting point of the fire and noted how and where it worked, are giving the fire department a large measure of credit for the good work done. In this they were materially aided by the ample supply and good pressure of water. Four good fire streams were used, there was plenty of water and an even pressnre.

The origin of the fire is only to be gnessed at, and one man's gness is as good as another's. There is no question but that it started in the partition in the closet at the side of the old Knights of Columbus quarters. This closet was only about two feet wide by 12 or 15 long, divided about the middle by another partition. The start of the fire was on the floor either in this cross partition or in the partition between the closet and the Brown tenement at the junction of the cross partition. It was not on the floor of the closet, as seemed apparent at first; a careful investigation disproves this snpposition What the cause was is only to be conjectured If it was of incendiary origin, as has been hinted, the person who did the work must have gone into the Knights of Columbus quarters, broken an opening into the partition and applied a match.

The selectmen are considering the advisability of having the electric cars stop at Harrison avenue, as they do now at the corner store. It is granted by all that it is a dangerous spot, due to the abrupt pitch of the street, and that there have been no accidents in the past is due to the care exercised by the crews on the cars.

Mr. Wheeler is an enthusiastic worker and takes great pride in the public schools of the two towns. His ability as superintendent has been well demonstrated in the past.

Nichols of Springfield gave two readings, Henry Billings rendered two violin solos and Miss Freida Rand gave two vocal selections.

Some changes have been made at the local telephone exchange. A new switchboard, making three in all, was asked for. Officials came from Boston and looked the exchange over and found that some lines were over-crowded, and others did not have their full quota of subscribers. The board decided that only two switchboards were needed and that changes should be made to even up the work on the different lines.

The trees are beginning to leave out and it is time for something to be done in regard to the elm tree beetle. At the last town meeting $500 was appropriated for the purchase of a spraying machine and to pay for the spraying of the trees. It is thought by many that it would be advisable to secure someone who has had some experience in the work, who would be able to do more for the money to be expended than one who was unexperienced.

Stock Players at Court Square Theatre.

The season of the Cook stock players at the Court Square Theatre in Springfield will open next Monday night, with David Belasco's original production of "The Warrens of Virginia." Frank Keenan is to play the part of General Warren, which is one of his most famous roles. Mr. Keenan is an actor of wide experience and has played a wide variety of roles. He is best known as a character actor, and as Jack Rance in "The Girl of the Golden West" he divided honors with Blanche Bates. This will be the only opportunity to see the "Warrens of Virginia" in stock, as it is to be withdrawn and played in high class theatres next season. Supporting Mr. Keenan will be his daughter, Frances Keenan, who has been cast for the part of Agatha Warren. Miss Keenan, who has been a member of the Page stock company in Washington, has also played leading roles in the Keith & Proctor stock company in New York. Another special engagement is that of Minette Cleveland, who has been a member of the John Craig stock company. Richard Storey, Doris Kelly and Roberto Deshon of the original cast have been engaged to play the parts of Bob, Betty and Corporal DePoyster. Other members of the cast include Burt Walters, Saidie Williams, John Milton, George Nichols, William Phinney, Royal Tracey, Allen Dinehart, Mathilde Deahon, and Douglas J. Wood, the latter being one of the cleverest juvenile leading men in the country. For this engagement, although he offers a Broadway star, a Broadway success, (for the first time in Springfield) and a Broadway production, Manager Charles Emerson Cook will not advance the regular stock prices, which will be 75, 50, 35 and 25 cents for evenings, and 50, 35 and 25 cents for the three matinee performances, which are to be given on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

The Violet Hat

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

It really was a beautiful hat, big and velvety and loaded with violets, and Theodora's new calling gown was of white broadcloth, and her hair was just the right shade of yellow to set it off, and the hat was just what she needed to wear to the hospital tea.

"I simply must have it!" said Theodora.

"I think you are very foolish not to buy it," remarked Cecilia Ray, who was with her.

But Theodora resisted the temptation.

"I'll go home and count up my pennies," she said. "I'm living on an allowance now, and last week I spent everything I had for that jeweled buckle."

But Cecilia was not listening.

"I'm going back," she said, "and ask Mme. Ashe to put that hat aside. If you decide not to take it, I shall."

Theodora laughed.

"If you buy that hat first, Cecilia, I'm your enemy forever."

Cecilia made a little grimace.

"Oh, you'd make up," she prophesied confidently. "We've quarreled before, Theo."

But she went back, and Mme. Ashe agreed, smiling. "No one else shall see it," she promised.

But two hours later, when Cynthia Albright had tried on every hat in the place, the complacent milliner brought out the violet beauty. "It's as good as sold," she said, "but if neither of the ladies takes it you may have it."

Cynthia tilted it over her eyes. "It's a beauty," she sighed, "and just what I want for the hospital tea. I'll come in again tomorrow."

"No one else shall see it," madame promised.

But when, after school, Mazie Marchmont, having taught all day, hurried into the millinery shop Mme. Ashe had gone to a belated lunch, and one of the languid young ladies who served her customers unearthed the violet hat and tried it on Marie.

"It suits you exactly," she said, standing off and surveying the pretty girl in the shabby gown.

"Oh, but the price!" Mazie objected. "I simply can't afford it. Take it away. It's too tempting." For she was thinking how it would brighten up her old crape afternoon gown and how she would like to look her best with Jerry Arnold home for the holidays and sure to be at the hospital tea.

"Show me something cheaper," she said, with a sigh. But, while the languid young lady supercilliously got out toques in green and picture hats in blue and tailored hats in brown, Mazie's eyes went back to the velvet beauty.

"It is the only thing that is really becoming," she said, and she tried it on again and noted the simplicity of it, the curve of the brim against her burnished hair and the way the violets were massed on the crown.

"But I can't have it," she said as she took it off. "I'm sorry, but none of the others suits."

As the languid young lady started to put it back into the box there swept into the shop a regal individual, all rustle and perfume and glitter, and she pounced at once on the violet hat, and before Mazie had finished pinning on her veil the hat was sold.

When the regal individual had swept out again Mazie said to the girl, "Oh, just let me have one more look at it." And the languid young lady, unbending graciously in the glow of a good sale, smiled and said: "It's much more becoming to you. You are younger and prettier."

Mazie laughed and blushed, and suddenly her eyes were lighted by an idea, and she rushed out of the shop and into a big department store, and the next hour was spent in buying velvet and a hat frame and violets.

At 5 o'clock she hurried to Cecilia Ray's in time to meet Theodora and Cynthia, who, with Mazie and Cecilia, were to serve on Mrs. Ray's table at the hospital tea.

Cecilia took them into her own luxurious sitting room, and they had tea and muffins in the glow of pink candles.

"And, now, what shall we wear?" Cynthia asked.

"Our very bestest," said Cecilia.

"My bestest isn't much," said Mazie bravely. "I've made over my mauve crape and put some touches of gold on it, and it doesn't look bad, but it isn't fine by any means."

Cynthia smiled at her. "You are prettier than any of us, Mazie Marchmont," she said, "so you needn't worry."

Mazie smiled at them lovingly. That was the dear thing about these three rich friends of hers in the days of poverty since her father's death—she had never been left out of any of their pleasures.

"Shall we wear hats?" Theodora asked.

"Of course," said Cynthia.

And then there was dead silence.

For each girl was thinking of that violet hat—Theodora how it would perfect her white broadcloth, Cecilia anxiously anxious to look her best, Cynthia reveling somewhat conceitedly in the effect her high bred loveliness would have on certain haughty Harvard seniors, Mazie seeing herself beautiful in Jerry Arnold's eyes.

Presently Theodora went on somewhat hurriedly, "I shall have to buy a new one."

"So shall I," said Cecilia.

"It's an awful bore," Cynthia drawled, "but I shall have to get a new one too."

But Mazie Marchmont said nothing, and that night when she went home she kissed her mother and inquired, "Did the things come from the store, mother, dear?"

And mother dear answered, "Yes, but what in the world, Mazie?" and Mazie laughed and said, "I'm going to trim a hat."

And just at that moment Theodora called up Cecilia and asked in an awful tone, "Did you buy that hat?"

Cecilia retorted: "Of course not. I wouldn't do such a mean trick."

"Well, of all things!" said Cecilia Ray.

And so, when the day of the hospital tea arrived, Cynthia wore a white lace picture hat, and Cecilia's was rosy with pink plumes, and Theodora was charming in a pale blue one with an aigret.

Mazie was late. "Poor little thing!" said Cecilia. "It's too bad she can't have pretty things like the rest of us."

"I love her for her independence," said Cynthia. "She is so dear and contented and uncomplaining. But everybody is so dressed up today that I am half afraid to see her in her old"—

But Theodora interrupted her. "Look," she gasped, "look!" And, following the direction of her eyes, they saw coming toward them down the length of the luxurious room the violet hat.

"And that," murmured Theodora, "is the creature who bought my hat."

"Why, it was the hat I tried to buy," said Cynthia.

"Well, of all the things!" said Cecilia Ray. "It's Mazie Marchmont!"

They watched her triumphant progress through the rooms, and when she came up to them Jerry Arnold was in her train.

They pounced on her. "Where did you get that hat?" they demanded.

For a moment Mazie hesitated, for fastidious Jerry Arnold was at her elbow.

"I made it myself," she confessed at last sturdily.

"What?" they gasped in consort. "Why, it is exactly like the one at Mme. Ashe's."

"That was sold," Mazie told them, "to a gorgeous lady who smacked of the stage."

"Who saw it sold?" Cecilia demanded.

"I saw it go,

chanted Mazie and flashed a glance at Jerry Arnold.

He smiled back at her. "Who ever heard of a schoolteacher trimming a hat?"

"Behold the scholarly result," and Mazie made an elaborate courtesy.

Then they all laughed so gayly that a half dozen bored Harvard seniors came over at once and asked for tea.

In the hubhub that followed Jerry said to Mazie.

"I wish you would give me the right to buy all of your hats, Mazie."

Mazie opened her eyes very wide and asked, "Are you asking me to marry you right here in this crowd, Jerry?"

Jerry flung up his head, and his eyes shone. "I'll shout it from the housetops if you'll let me."

"Little boy," Mazie's voice was steady, but her heart was beating violently, "what would you do with a wife? You haven't finished college."

"But this is my senior year," he asserted, "and after that my money is my own, and if I want to buy your hats for the rest of my days it's nobody's affair but mine."

"And mine," Mazie reminded him as some one came up for more . . .

"Look here," he whispered as she dangled her tea ball over a pale green cup, "can't you slip behind that Japanese screen presently, where we can become engaged decently and in order?"

Half an hour later, when Cynthia asked, "Where's Mazie?" Cecilia pointed to the screen.

"She's over there with Jerry Arnold," she said. "I can just see the top of the violet hat."

Cleveland's Baking Powder

Very Lucky.

The following is a genuine essay by a ten-year-old boy:

"My life has been a very lucky one. When I was three years old I fell downstairs and cut my head. When I was five years old I was looking at some hens, and a dog bit my leg. When I was eight I went with my brother in the trap, and the horse fell and threw us out of the trap; my brother lit on his feet, and I lit on the horse's back. Last year I was playing, and I ran into a surrey and cut my eyebrow, and it has left a mark. One day I went into the slaughter house, and a big sheep ran after me and knocked me down. I have had a happy life."

This cheerful acceptance of what are usually regarded as the ills of life reminds the writer of an old schoolfellow who took part in the fight at Elandslaagte at the beginning of the South African war. After the engagement he was taken to the hospital at Pietermaritzburg. As soon as he was able he wrote home and sent his people the tunic he had worn in the battle.

"You will see," he wrote, "that there are eleven bullet holes in it, but I was awfully lucky. Only six of them hit me."—Cleveland Leader.

Ben Franklin's Keenness.

Two incidents recall the keenness and the thoroughness—the great twin abilities, to see and to utilize—of Ben Franklin. One day he chanced to observe a lady in the possession of an imported whisk broom. With his usual interest and careful consideration he examined it as a novelty. He discovered on the brush of the broom a seed, which he carefully removed. Presently he planted it, and the growth from this seed was the first crop of broom corn in this country. Again one day when Dr. Franklin was walking by Dock creek he saw stuck in the mud a wickerwork basket, which had sprouted. Carefully he fished out the basket and carefully took it apart. He gave cuttings to his friend, Mr. Charles Norris, who planted the twigs in his garden, where they grew to great size. They turned out to be yellow willows and, as Fr[illegible] had foreseen, proved of great co[illegible]ial value.

Luck.

"Do you believe there is anything in luck?" asked the young man.

"Yes," answered the home grown philosopher. "There is a lot of intelligence and perseverance in it."—Exchange.

I was never free from a dull bearing-down pain in my back and suffered from spells of dizziness and chills. My back ached intensely and I had a feeling of lassitude and loss of appetite. STOMACH-RITE

Does not promise you imaginary things, but it gives you new proof every day of just what it has done.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I suffered greatly with stomach trouble and constipation. I dieted and used many remedies, but got no help until I used your Stomach-Rite tablets. They gave me a good appetite and my friends have remarked how much better my complexion is and what good color your tablets have given me. I thank you, O so much, Doctor's Daughter, and wish others would try Stomach-Rite.
MISS MARY WARNOCK,
217 Bennington St., East Boston, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I hadn't taken your Stomach-Rite tablets two weeks before I saw great results and I wouldn't be without them for the world. I had gas in my stomach nearly all the time, heart trouble, acute indigestion and constipation in a bad form before I used your remedy. Respectfully,
J. M. WILSON,
No. 6 Foster St., Lynn.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I was sick for years with indigestion, but after taking 3 boxes of your Stomach-Rite I feel like a new man and think life worth living. I recommend Doctor's Daughter Stomach-Rite tablets to all.
MR. EDWARD HAMMOND,
138 Vernon St., Rockland, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I was troubled with gastric indigestion for a long time, in fact, many years, have tried so many remedies, but they did not help me, but your Stomach-Rite has not only done wonders for me, but my daughter has also used them for nervous indigestion, and we both wish to thank you for such a remarkable remedy as Stomach-Rite and wish you all the success you so richly deserve. I am truly yours,
MRS. E. T. HODGDON,
150 Berkshire St., Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
Having taken your Stomach-Rite, it gives me great pleasure to recommend them to all who have stomach or liver troubles. Very truly yours, JOHN J. KELLY, 24 Plain St., Stoughton, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I have used just one box of your Stomach-Rite tablets for dyspepsia and want to recommend them to all sufferers. Yours,
MRS. J. E. BAILEY,
590 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
Your Stomach-Rite is all you claim for it, for I have proved it. It is the very best remedy, I believe, in the world for indigestion and all stomach and liver troubles.
H. V. PATTEN,
67 Howard St., Lynn, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I have used your Stomach-Rite tablets this spring and am very glad to say it has given me the best satisfaction and results. I have a good appetite, sleep well and my food now does not disagree with me as formerly. In fact, Stomach-Rite is gradually building me up and I unhesitatingly recommend them.
WALTER MORGAN,
22 Ashburton Pl., Boston, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I had a bad case of indigestion, my food fermented in my stomach and came up most of the time for weeks. In fact, I was in very poor health for months. Since taking two boxes of your Stomach-Rite I have gained wonderfully and can truly say that I am cured. I can now eat anything I want, and I thank you, dear Doctor's Daughter, for your remedy.
MARY E. DONAHER,
6 Common St., Quincy, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter:
I want to say that your Stomach-Rite is very wonderful for stomach trouble.
MISS JAMES PAUL,
881 Fourth St., South Boston.

When you need a stomach or liver medicine why not get the best, a tried and true remedy, a medicine that gives results like the above.

Very truly yours,

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, May 12, 1909.

Nothing is heard about the probable fate of the legislative salary bill in the Senate, and it does not make much difference, as far as the fate of the bill is concerned, unless the Senate is as much in favor of the bill as the House. It is unquestionable that Gov. Draper is ready to veto the bill as soon as it reaches him. If the Senate fears that it would hurt him to let the bill reach him, then, as good Republicans, they are bound to throw themselves in the breach and to save the head of the party, no matter at what risk to themselves politically. If they think that it will make votes for him and if they want to vote for the bill on their own hook, then it may pass. The House voted for it by 120 to 40. A like proportion in the Senate will make it a matter of indifference whether Gov. Draper vetoes it or not, provided the members vote the same way on passing over the veto as they voted in the first place. On passing over a veto, there wonid be a roll-call, according to the constitution, but there was no rollcall when the House passed the bili to be engrossed. It raises the salary from $750 to $1000, with donble for the president and speaker, bnt it does not take effect till next year. The latter provision will not count for much, in the governor's mind, for as a rule, half of one Legislature is sent back to the next. The members feel that they have a stronger case than ever, for, by the general increase in the cost of living, there has been a real reduction of saiaries of from 25 to 35 per cent. The argument against an increase is now on the basis that the money is not compensation, but an honorarium and that the honor is pay enough. Some can live on the honor, because they have plenty of money. Others cannot. But there is little chance that the bill will become law.

Party politics came to the front in the defeat of the two bills for direct nominations. One of these was for the fifth Middlesex senatorial district and had been substituted by the House for an adverse committee report. The other was a general bill, applying to the whole state. It had been ordered to a third reading by a good majority by rollcall of the House. But, by the time they had reached their next stage, the political leaders had been heard from and the hills were doomed. Both were defeated on rollcall and there were 22 Republicans who changed from support of the hills to opposition, and 12 more who were recorded for the general hili who were absent. There was a majority of 20 against the general bill. At the same time that several of the Republican opponents made their arguments agaiust the bills, they said that they were not opposed to direct nominations. Mr. Pattison of Barnstable was the only one to admit that his personal opinion had not changed, but he shifted his vote in order to please business men of his constituents, who had asked him. It was said in the debate that 114 representatives and 13 senators are already nominated by direct vote in the primaries and to that extent the new system has got a foothold in the state already. It would not be strange if this became a political issue for the Democrats, for the tendency of the times is toward the abolition of delegate conventions, and there is a ring to the proposition of getting close to the people which would be very familiar to Democratic voters.

The flurry over Norman White has died out completely. The House killed the order of Mr. Morse of Haverhill affirming the r-r-right of free speech, my country, and the tempest is stilled with no credit to the men who stirred it np. It was nonsense from start to finish and the sober men saw it at once.

Mr. Melien of Worcester and some others tried to make party capital out of the constitutional amendment to permit the striking out of the requirement for proportional taxation, so that the Legislatnre can pass a law for a three mill tax. The debate was pretty hot at times, and Mr. Lomasney of Boston was vehement in his denunciation of the amendment as a move for the rich taxdodgers. Mr. Mancovitz of Boston led the fight from that point of view. But it was easily shown that the poor people would be benefited as much as the rich and that all would gain greatly by the three mill tax, if the experiment works here as well as in the dozen or more states which have tried the law. When the roll was called on agreeing to the resolve, there were many Democrats to vote for it and it is impossible to make a party issne out of it as it stands before the Legislature to-day. The vote was overwhelming for the change.

There is one tax bill going through which promises to stop some taxdodging. It changes the day for assessing taxes from May 1 to April 1, and it has the support of the Massachnsetts State Association of Assessors. If it becomes law, then Massachusetts will have the same date as Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. By having it May 1, dodgers can be living np north on May 1, and living in Massachnsetts April 1, and so they can get clear in both places. This will stop quite an evil, as it was brought ont iast December at the annnal meeting of the assessors' association. The tax problem is recognized as one of the greatest in the state, and tax burdens are very unjustly distributed. But the inheritance tax is bringing in much money, and if this amendment passes, there will be many million dollars' worth of personal property come into the assessors' hands willingly, judging by other states.

It was to have been expected that the Senate wonld kill the bill to rednce the honrs of labor of women and minors in manufactnring and mechanical establishments to 54 per week. The reduction to 56 per week does not become operative till January 1, 1910, and the manufacturing interests which control the Senate, or are extremely influential there, were determined that the bili should not become law. The Senate gave a large majority against it, and all the good the labor men got from it was their agitation in the House.

Thomas L. Hisgen has been at the state house this week, and the point of interest about him is his frank admission that the Independence party is dead, and the cause of its death is the withdrawal of the financiai breath of life by Mr. Hearst. This leaves Mr. Hisgen free to make a new party allegiance. There was given out from the Democratic state headquarters yesterday a statement that he would be a candidate for the Senate in 1911 to succeed Senator Lodge.

In spite of the opposition to voting machines in some quarters the constitutional amendment to permit their use has gone through the House by an overwhelming majority, and now the Senate has gone on record for it by rollcall unanimously. It is evident that the fears that the voter will not be able to see his work does not deter the Legislators who have faith in the ability of the American inventor to produce a machine which will obviate the difficnlty which is now the ground of objection in some quarters. The principle of machine voting is so generally conceded that there was no debate upon the amendment.

The Senate has not, at the time of writing, disposed of the bili to incorporate the trnstees of Massachusetts college. The two dissenters from the report, Senators Evans of Middiesex and Nash of Plymouth, are in the upper branch, and of course they have more effect than their names did in the lower branch. Senator Nash was a school teacher for many years and he feels that he knows something about education. Senator Evans has submitted a substitute proposition for an investigation by the State Board of Education and report to the next Legislatnre.

The gypsy moth appropriation bill of $150,000 has gone through the House without a word of debate. This carries $150,000 for this year, in addition to the $150,000 provided by previous legislation, so that the total spent this year by the state will be $300 000. It is expected that there will be $200,000 of the nation's $300,000 appropriated spent in Massachusetts and this sum, with the appropriations by cities and towns, by the metropolitan park commission and that spent by private persons will aggregate abont $1,000,000. This will go far toward reducing the pest.

The Senate did not debate the bill to establish a state board of plnmbers, which the ways and means committee reported ought to be rejected, bnt they simply voted down the report. It was a close vote. Senator Potter of Worcester pnt them on record, and still the Senate refused to reject the report. Bnt this merely gives the bili a standing, with two debatable stages in the Senate before it can go to the House.

Without debate the Senate has killed two Sunday bills,— one to permit the sale of kosher meat and the other to permit the sale of frnit on Sunday and also soda water, ice cream and so on by others than common victnallers. The latter was snpported by the Greeks in all parts of the state. LANDON

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

We never publish a testimonial without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we are sure it is genuine.

BOLD BURGLARY.

G. M. Atkins' Residence Entered In Broad Daylight.

ONLY ABOUT $12 IN MONEY TAKEN.

Job Was Done About 4 O'clock Wednesday Morning. Thief Plainly Heard by Mrs. Atkins.

An unusually bold burglary—in that it was committed in almost broad daylight with the family in the house—took place at the home of George M. Atkins on Thorndike street early Wednesday morning. The place is better known as the "Woolrich" house, and is located on a knoll back from the street next north of St. Thomas' Catholic church property. Mr. Atkins was away from home at the time, and about 4 30 Mrs. Atkins waked and heard a light step in the hall opposite the door of her room. She at first thought it was her daughter Patrice, who slept with another daughter in a separate room, going to the bathroom, but the steps continued on down stairs. She still thought it was one of the daughters until she heard the front door gently open and close gently, when she surmised that all was not right and jumping up ran to the window, but could see no one, it being probable that the person who had been in the house followed the fence between the Atkins property and that of St Thomas parish, which cannot be seen from Mrs. Atkins' room.

An examination of the house showed that the down stairs part at least had been pretty thoroughly ransacked. The drawers in the sideboard in the dining room, as well as those in three desks, belonging to Mr. Atkins, Mrs. Atkins and Miss Elna Atkins, had all been opened and the contents turned over in a search for valuables. Up stairs the thief had entered the room occupied by the two daughters and ransacked the drawers in the bureau there. On the inside knob of the door leading to Mrs. Atkins' room she had hung a shopping bag in which was her pocketbook, and this had been taken from the hallway without entering the room. The bag had been taken to the bathroom across the hall and the pocketbook removed; the contents of the latter—$12—were taken and both were found lying on the floor. Nothing about the house was found missing. The burglar gained an entrance through the outside bulkhead door, which was unfastened, then easily making his way into the dining room. There is no clue to the thief.

WILL PLAY BASEBALL.

Palmer Town League, With All Local Players, Practically Assured.

The prospects now seem good for a series of baseball games for the remainder of the season between teams representing the four villages of the town, according to the plan suggested last week—all local players and none paid with the exception of possibly two on each team. The scheme seems to appeal to lovers of the sport in each village, and arrangements are being made as rapidly as possible.

A meeting of those interested was held in the Business Club's rooms Monday evening, a goodly number being present. After the manner of conducting the league had been explained—it being stated that no financial assistance other than gate receipts was to be asked—an expression of opinion on the advisability of putting a team in the field was asked, and all agreed to further the project to the extent of their ability. A board of five directors was chosen, as follows: James Summers, C. W. Chamberlain, E. D. Tufts, H. W. Holbrook and Thomas E Kelliher; the board later organized with H. W. Holbrook chairman, C. W. Chamberlain secretary, and James Summers treasurer, he being also chosen manager of the team. A meeting to arrange the playing schedule will be held as soon as the managers in the other villages are chosen.

At Bondsville a meeting was held Monday evening and it was voted to put a team in the field and enter the Palmer town league. These officers were elected: Honorary president, E G. Childs; president, Samuel Stewart; secretary and treasurer, William Donovan; directors, J. J. Conway, E. J. Loy, J. J. Sullivan, O. F. Parent and F. J. Moriarty. At a meeting of the directors last evening William Donovan was chosen manager of the team.

The Thorndike Association has these officers: Manager, W. C. Reilly; directors, W. C. Reilly, J. Gebo, H. Gay, P. Sullivan, John Donovan. It is the intention of this team to have only local players, not making use of the two-out-side-men clause in the league agreement. It is understood that Furkey will return to pitch for the Thorndikes. A meeting is called for next Monday evening in Temperance Hall, to discuss the situation, the public being invited.

He was a prominent man in Franklin, a deacon of the Congregational church there and highly esteemed for his worthy qualities of mind and heart. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Kate Wilson, and two sisters, Nancy W. and Mary M. His brother, Joseph, at one time a clerk in the store of J. B. Shaw in Palmer, died in the West some years ago; he was a cousin of W. D. Mason of Palmer.

BEAUTIES OF PALMER.

Advantages as a Place of Residence or Business Set Forth.

The Springfield Republican of last Sunday, under the caption: "Palmer's Attractive Points," printed the following from its special correspondent. The Journal has been asked to reprint it, and does so gladly. The town has many advantages which most of us are too likely to overlook or think too little about.

Palmer is just coming to be recognized as an ideal residential town. Few communities in the state offer better natural advantages than are to be found within our borders. Situated in a beautiful valley in winter it is sheltered from the severe "northers" that visit other towns in this vicinity; in summer the surrounding hills are covered with verdure that lends its beauty to the landscape making it ideal to the lover of Nature in her most beautiful dress. The Quaboag river, which rises among the hills of Charlton, flows through the village and joining the Ware and Swift rivers at Three Rivers, forms the Chicopee. Upon the banks of these streams are located some of the most fertile farms in the state, which yield a good return for the labor expended upon them. The rivers also furnish the motive power for several large manufactories and are well utilized ere they reach the limits of the town. Mt. Dumplin and Mt. Bunyan across the river from their summits give a splendid view of the surrounding towns. As one approaches the summit of these hills the scenery opens up before him in a most pleasing view; tier upon tier of hills arise in the distance each more beautiful then the other until they are lost amid the foothills of the Berkshires or the larger hilltops of Worcester county.

It is not the natural beauties of the place alone, however, that should attract the home-seeker. The formation of the soil is such that the village is free from the dampness and fog that so frequently make our New England towns undesirable. Malaria and typhoid are infrequent and pulmonary diseases are rare. To one suffering from the dampness and severity of the climate near the coast, this town offers a welcome change. The hills are well supplied with springs that send an abundance of good water down into the village. Trolly connection with Worcester on the east and Springfield on the west is furnished by the Springfield and Eastern street railway company, the towns of Monson and Ware being also connected in like manner. The town being located on the junction of the Boston and Albany and Central Vermont railroads with an excellent train service is within easy distance of Boston and New York. With plenty of churches and excellent schools the needs of the family in this line are well cared for.

Each year there is a marked improvement in the care and building of the roads. The work of paving Main street, now going on, is a move in the right direction, while the state has done its share in giving the town the best of highway construction with a prospect of yet more to follow in the near future. The banking institutions are models of their kind and are established upon a solid basis; the management being conservative, yet progressive along the lines of security, they carefully safeguard the interests of their clients While much that seems detrimental to the interests of the community appears in the columns of the press, one must remember that a large share of it comes from other towns which come under the jurisdiction of our district court. There is a great deal more that is commendable in our citizenship that is never before the public and it is this that makes the town worth living in and that is forcing it to the front as the place where one would do well to make his home.

EAST BRIMFIELD.

Eleven street lamps have been placed about town and are greatly appreciated by the citizens.

Mrs. Agnes Pease of Hartford has been a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stranger.

G. C. Plimpton has been building the wall foundation for the two-tenement house being built by the Snell Mfg. Co.

Professor Chandler of Lick Observatory, California, gave a very interesting lecture in Union church Tuesday evening on "The Sun, Moon, and Stars." He also gave the following mechanical moving pictures: "Familiar Bible Scenery," Wonder of Art," San Francisco Overwhelmed by Earthquake." There was music on Swiss bells.

WALES.

The following poem was sent the Journal as having been written in about half an hour by a little girl of nine years who, on account of poor health, has been unable to attend school but eleven days in her life, but who learns very easily and has been writing poetry since she was two years of age:

Nature's Heralds of Spring.

First comes the bluebird,
That bright, cheerful fellow,
Stretching his throat in such bursts of glee;
Singing his notes and trying to be cheerful,
Hopping around on the bare leafless tree.

Next comes the robin, the bright weather prophet,
Chirping before each rain so sad;
Doing the same about four in the morning,
All the "Alarm Clock" that dame nature has.

Then all the swallows and sparrows, etc.,
Hopping around and doing their best;
All wives and husbands after straws and grasses,
Bills full of mud, while building their nests.

Busily working without nails, saws or hammers,
Funny wee carpenters flying around
Picking up pieces of twine, thread, or paper,
Anything like it on barn, trees or ground.

Hopping and flying, singing and chirping,
Not even using a single tool,
Nothing but bills, claws, string and grasses,
Plenty of mud, that they find in the pool.

INCENDIARISM, THIS.

Boarding House at Bondsville Fired in the Night.

KEROSENE POURED ON WINDOW SILL.

About 20 People in the Building. Flames Seen Before Gaining Much Headway.

A very evident attempt to burn the boarding house of the Boston Duck Company at Bondsville was made early Sunday morning. The house is owned by the company and conducted by John Mansfield. It is situated on Spring street, and further up the hill are houses occupied by Polish families. About 12 15 Sunday morning one of the occupants of one of these houses, happening to look toward the boarding house, saw a blaze on the side of the building and at once gave the alarm. Investigation showed that there was a brisk fire on one of the window sills on that side of the house. The flames had gained no great headway however, and were extinguished with a couple of pails of water. An examination of the premises showed plainly that kerosene had been poured on the window sill before the match was applied. Ordinarily there are about 20 people in the house, but some of these had gone for over Sunday. There is no clue to the person or persons responsible.

Gilbertville high won their fifth consecutive game Saturday on the home grounds, when they defeated Templeton high, 16 to 10.

The Three Rivers nine were the victors in a game with the Chapman Valves of Indian Orchard Saturday afternoon at Three Rivers, 7 to 0.

Monson Academy defeated Warren high in an interesting contest in Monson Saturday, 8 to 2. It was mainly a pitchers' battle, in which Rouke, the Monson man, had the advantage, allowing only two hits to the visiting pitcher's four. Both teams fielded well, but were weak at the bat.

Wesleyan Academy won from Worcester classical high school in a 10-inning game in Worcester Saturday by a score of 3 to 2. The visitors showed superiority in team work. The Academy won another victory Monday on their home grounds, the Springfield high school team being the victims. The game was exciting from start to finish, the outcome being doubtful until the end, when the score was 1 to 0.

WARE.

Deeds of Land For Town.

The deeds of two lots of land on the east side of Snow's pond have been filed with the town treasurer. One deed is for a tract of about four acres just north of the Ice house owned by R. C. Snow, and was bought of the heirs of John H. Storrs for $800, the money having been raised and appropriated at the annual town meeting in March for this purpose. It extends easterly from the pond to land of C. O. Amazeen for some distance, and the lot varies in width from 300 to 400 feet. It includes a high knoll that resembles a mound, and the soil is mostly of gravel. It was bought upon the advise of the cemetery commissioners, who will make use of the land in various ways because of its lying so near Aspen Grove cemetery. At town meeting time it was represented that if the town voted to buy this lot, a public-spirited citizen was ready to give an additional strip to the north of such extent as would make the town owner of practically all the shore on the east side of the pond. This gift has been made, the giver being Lewis N. Gilbert, who purchased it from the heirs of Augustus H. Cummings and has deeded it to the town. It is a tract of 3⅜ acres and is practically the same width as the other lot, but is partly covered with a growth of saplings of various kind of wood. The gift is greatly appreciated, as many feel that the peculiar shaped hills bordering on the pond should be preserved.

Francis M Carroll of Boston visited his mother and sister Sunday.

Miss Florence May Guild and Thomas Quinn were married at the home of the bride on the West Warren road Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Arthur Chase. The ceremony was witnessed by a few invited guests.

Dr. and Mrs. G. F. A. Spencer have announced the engagement of their oldest daughter, Effie M., to Flynn Russell Person. Miss Spencer is a graduate of the Ware high school and of Wellesley. She had been teaching the past year in Hadley, at the Hopkins Academy. Mr. Person went to Ware from Springfield in 1907, buying the drug store of John D. Smith.

A man, giving his name as John Peters and his residence as Fall River, was arrested Saturday by Chief of Police Maurice Fitzgerald for having gaming apparatus upon his person, which it was reported that he had tried to put into operation in different places on Main street. Peters claimed it was a new game, and that he had just purchased the outfit. He claimed to be a weaver, and said that he had been employed in Fall River mills a long time. He appeared in the district court Monday and paid a fine of $10. The gaming implements which he had, which consisted mainly of dice shakers, and a "sweat board," was ordered forfeited, but their value was small.

At a meeting of the school committee Tuesday afternoon with Superintendent G. W. Cox, it was voted to reappoint all of the present teachers in the high, graded and district schools, except Miss Bertha C. Pierce, Latin teacher in the high school who has resigned. All of the special teachers, the janitors and truant officer were reappointed. The salary was increased in several cases among the teachers, the total increase being about $300. Miss Pierce, who resigned some time ago to take a position in Englewood, N. J., is not going to that place, but will take instead the position of assistant professor in Latin and Greek at Swarthmore college, Swarthmore, Pa. She is a graduate of that college and made a fine record when there.

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, May 19, 1909.

Plenty of ginger seems to exist in the merger situation. it broke out the other day on a matter which was wholly aside from it and was guaranteed to be merely perfecting amendments to the law for savings banks and trust companies, drawn by Pierre Jay, our recent bank commissioner, and favored by the present Commissioner Chapin. Yet, because there was a suspicion that the bill would give a savings bank standing to the securities of the New Haven railroad, there was a sharp attack upon it. What is back of this merger fight has been a mystery ever since Charles W. Bartlett was the Democratic candidate for governor, after the Springfield convention had nominated Henry M. Whitney. But there is more than the public has yet learned, and there is plenty of money at the disposition of the mysterious party.

But the contest assumes larger proportions with the entrance of Gov. Draper into the matter as conspicuously as he does this morning, with the statement he gave out at the end of business hours yesterday, evidently intended for effect upon the Legislature. Of course he would not enter the field in this way unless he feared that the bill would be lost without this unprecedented step. He must save his "holding bill," so called, if he is to save the Billard stock of the Boston and Maine railroad to the commonwealth as a business asset, which will not fall into hostile hands. But he seems to be up against the anti-merger forces in the House, led by Norman White of Brookline, and it is impossible to say what will be the outcome. The governor practically assures the public that all will be well if the bill passes, but that there may be the dickens to pay if it does not. But that will not scare its opponents.

Some opposition was made to the bill to change the date of annual assessment of taxes from May 1 to April 1, in order to outwit the taxdodgers who chasser between Massachusetts and the states to the north which have assessments on April 1. Senator Norcross of Hampden tried to get a reconsideration of the engrossment of the bill by the Senate. Senator Cowes of Worcester said that all of the towns in his neighborhood and the city of Worcester wanted the change. It was brought out that Boston assessors want it, that the state assessors' association and other influential persons want it. So the bill seems to be safely on its way to the Governor, and there is no reason to expect a veto. The movement for the change has been pretty much general, even though the effort began only last December at the annual meeting of the state assessors' association This illustrates the good policy of pulling together when reform is wanted.

Although there was a unanimous vote in the House, after debate against the bill to permit cities to levy taxes as high as $15 per $1000, instead of $12, as at present, yet there was ample reason for the passage of the bill, and it is to be expected that the effort will be renewed next year. The truth of the case is that the law is considerable of a farce as it is now worked. Every year some city or town is forced to have an exception made in its urgent case. Repeatedly bills are passed authorizing cities and towns to borrow outside of their debt limit. These cities and towns must have the money for their prosperity, for the payment of their debts and for their legitimate development. The sum of $12 is arbitrary and the law amounts to very little. It was brought out that New Bedford is a horrible example of borrowing money to pay current expenses,—$170,000 in one year,—and such an example made the House all the more disposed to reject the bill.

The proposed legislation against the elm leaf beetle fails. The committee on agriculture reported a bill to make all the laws applicable to the gypsy and brown-tail moths applicable also to the elm leaf beetle, and they were assured it would cost but little more, when spraying for caterpillars to spray for beetles also. But when the proposition reached the ways and means committee, it was held that the item would add $75,000 to the cost, and it was felt that the state could not stand that. The committee on agriculture did not take into account sufficiently the fact that the elm leaf beetle is ravaging in many places where the caterpillars have not yet come, and it would require much more money than was at first supposed. So the localities infested with the beetle must rely upon their own efforts, without help or direction from the state.

As far as appears, the new milk bill, to protect producers from unjust punishment for inferior quality of milk, which was reported upon the many petitions for a charge in the milk standard, will not have successful opposition in the passage of the Senate and House. Some people criticise it because it will permit the sale of natural milk if it is below the standard of 12.15 solids and 3.35 butter fats. But it does prevent the sale of watered milk and it will accomplish a great deal in the hands of judicious officials, even if it does permit milk to pass which is below the standard. The precise thing, toleration for Holstein milk, was demanded by many who said that infants and invalids must be given milk of less fatty proportion than the milk of Jerseys. It has been a long and hard contest by the committee on agriculture, and they believe that they have worked out a just solution of the problem, which ought to be satisfactory. The board of agriculture wins a victory in the retention of the present standard another year.

The above is written in spite of the vote of to-day refusing by 11 yeas to 14 nays to pass the bill to be engrossed, for the looks of the nay list does not indicate that it has the strength of the yeas, and the friends of the bill are already working for a reconsideration of the vote. If, however, the Senate refuses to reconsider, then all the agitation and numerous hearings, and many miles of travel, and hotel bills, and farmers' meetings, and other outlay of effort, will all have been spent in vain, and the issue will surely come up again next year.

There is a skirmish brewing in the House over the bills to regulate the sale of tuberculous beef, although they have not yet got out of the Senate. Members are twitting one another, in their speeches, with their attitude on the beef question, and though they do not bring to the surface just what they are driving at, yet it is evident that there has been a collision in committee and that there will be something snappy when they get a chance to air their differences. At any rate it looks as if there would be no further destruction of beef which contains no germs of disease, even if some parts of the animal were infected. There has been too much pressure on the part of farmers and butchers to permit the present interpretation to stand.

DROP IN PRICE OF GAS.

Down to $1.50 per 1000 Feet to Users of Gas Stoves or Ranges.

The Worcester County Gas Company announces a substantial reduction in the price of gas, to take effect June 1, so that the bills sent out July 1 will he figured on the new basis. This will be on a sliding scale according to amount used, although the highest gross price is to be lowered 20 cents. The rates will be as follows: The gross price will be reduced from $2 per 1000 feet to $1.80, with a disconnt of 20 cents per 1000 feet on the first 2000 feet used, making the net price $1 60; from 2000 to 10,000 feet the net price will be $1 40, snd over 10,000 feet $1 20. In addition to the above rates, users of gas ranges will be given an additional discount of 10 cents per 1000 feet on any quantity used, making the net price $1 50. The minimum monthly charge, whicb has in the past been 25 cents, will, under these new prices, be raised to 50 cents. Until the 30th of June the company is making special low prices on gas stoves and ranges, and nntil that time will make all connections free, instead of simply to the cellar, as formerly.

OBJECT TO CIRCUS.

Booking of Show For Memorial Day Displeases Numerous People.

The announcement that a circus or tent sbow of some kind has been granted a license to exhibit in this village on the 31st—tbe day observed as Memorial Day, because of the 30th falling on Sunday—has evoked a protest from some of the citizens as well as members of the Grand Army post. Those who object to the show do so on the ground that it tends to distract the attention of the people from the intent of the day, and does not make for more patriotism or tend to inculcate in the minds of the youtb a greater reverence for the things Memorial Day stands for or the lessons it is expected the day will teach. They deplore this distraction of attention and suggest that the license might well be revoked. There is already, they say, enongh planned in the way of amusements for that day, without the distraction of a circus parade and all that a "circus day" means.

Loss Smaller Than Supposed.

The board of engineers bave made a return of their estimate of the loss to building and contents in the recent Commercial block fire, tbe insurance has been settled, and the loss proves to have been mucb smaller than was supposed possible. The engineers set the value of the building as $16,000, and tbe contents at $17,500; the total damage at $3160. The adjustment of the insurance has been satisfactory to all concerned, and is said to be pretty close to tbe loss figures given by the board of engineers. To any person who saw the fight whicb the firemen had to stop the flames, and the vast quantities of water they ponred into the building—and especially to any one who saw the stores below the fire that night after the flames were out—it appeared that the loss might be as high as $15,000 or $20,000. A peculiarity of the fire however was that it was confined to the partitions and walls, and played bide-and-seek in a manner which had the firemen guessing until the last spark was out. The actual damage by fire was not great, but from the water.

Dog Mysteriously Shot.

Deputy Sheriff G. A. Bills was called between 9 and 10 o'clock Sunday morning to shoot a wounded dog on Central street. The animal was a black water spaniel belonging to Robert Whitcomb, and was bleeding profnsely from a severe wound in the shouider. It was much exhausted from loss of blood, and was put out of its misery. A short time before the animal appeared on Central street the report of a gun was beard on the hill near the head of the street, followed by a cry which sounded like that of an animal in pain. There seems to have been no good cause for the shooting, and the matter has been reported to the officers of the humane society.

Quaboag Pomona Grange Meeting.

An unusually interesting meeting of the Quaboag Pomona Grange was held in the town hall Wednesday. The principal address of the day was given by Hon. Charles A. Gleason of Springfield, who is vice president of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and acting president in place of the governor of the state who holds the official appointment. Mr. Gleason's address was asserted to be one of the best ever delivsred before the organization. He said that the success of a farm depends on the farmer just as a school depends largely on the teacher and a business bonse on the management of its head. Better a good farmer on a poor farm than a poor farmer on a good farm. He recommended hiring sufficient labor, doing work in the right season, specializing farming, proper marketing, improving the farm and getting enjoyment and satisfaction for it.

In the afternoon fruit-growing was presented by Archie N. Tuttle, Fred Lawrence and Philander Holmes. Mr. Tuttle has demonstrated the success of fruit-growing and described his experiments. He has 1000 apple trees and 3000 peach, pear and plum trees. Mr. Lawrence advocated spraying and believed it could be done by applied powers of the principle of the gasolene engine for sawing the farmers' woodpiles throughout a section. Mr. Holmes advocated the raising of cranberries. There was a miscellaneous program following the discussions. Mrs Clarence B Brown gave a most instructive and interesting paper on "Life Saving Stations" and there were musical selections and recitations Over 80 were present, the places besides Brimfield represented being Warren, Brookfield, North Brookfield, West Brookfield, New Braintree, Southbridge, Sturbridge, Monson, East Longmeadow and Union, Ct.

A Sure Remedy For Horse Colic

Colic in horses is a very common disorder. More valuable horses die every year from colic than from any other complaint, simply because they have not been treated properly. Sloan's Sure Colic Cure is a safe and sure remedy for colic or tympanitis. It acts instantly on the stomach and bowels and gives immediate relief.

Mr. J. Albert Pahiman, Pocomoke City, Md., writes:—"Last Novsmber your Fevsr Remedy saved my Percheron Stallion Jumbo. He took sick on the cars the first day ont; and on May 31st Sloan's Snre Colic Cnre saved a fine work mars, but it took five hours to do it. It was a vsry bad case. I have used it on a great many horses for others and it always brings the results."

Dr. J. E. Neal of Plymouth, N. C., writes: "A gentleman bronght me bis horse last Thnrsday night. He had the colic proper. I gave him Sloan's Sure Colic Cnre and in three hours he was all right."

Send for Dr. Sloan's free book on horses, cattle, hogs and poultry. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan, 615 Albany St., Bostou, Mass., Station A.

Gov. Draper wins a victory with his veto of the eight-hour bill, but it was a Bunker Hill victory for him, for the House vote of 96 yeas to 126 nays on passing the bill over the veto, showed an exceptional number of members against the governor. There was quite a group of Republican "insurgents," as one of the administration leaders put it, and such a demonstration will tend to increase the strength of the labor element in the House Such a vote means a majority for the labor men on an ordinary occasion

The Senate has passed to be engrossed the resolve which was substituted by roll-call of 25 to 12 for the bill to incorporate the trustees of Massachusetts College The Senate was especially influenced by the speech of Senator Nash of Plymouth, ons of the two dissenters from the hill, and a leading senator made the remark after it ended that it was the finest speech he had heard in the Senate this year. The action of the Senate does not grow out of opposition to the enterprise, but solely out of regard for the dignity of the college degrees which it is proposed to give authority to confer, and to be sure that the college has a faculty which shall be sufficiently homogeneous and united to be a raliance in case of temptation to issue degrees cheaply. The scheme is realized to have tremendous possibilities, and it is a fair expectation that something will come out of it.

The death of Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company raises the probability that the state will get from $500,000 to $800,000 of the estate under the inhsritance tax laws. Rogers's voting residence was in Fairhaven, adjoining New Bedford, and it seems to be a clear case of coming under our state law.

If this money is received, it will help to keep np the state highway system, for the cost of maintaining the roads is enormous, owing to the wear and tear of automobiles. There was reported quietly to-day, as if it were a little matter of $1000, a totally new appropriation of $100,000 from the ordinary revenue to pay the expense of maintaining the state highway system this year. This is in addition to the previous appropriation, which was supposed to be ample. "They who dance must pay the piper," says the proverb But the automobilists dance and the public pays the piper. If Your House Needs Painting Use S. W. P.

If your house, or barn, or buildings of any sort, need painting, don't put it off. Now—this spring—is the time to paint. A building that is kept protected from the weather, damp, sun and so on, will outlast by years a building that is allowed to go unpainted or poorly painted. It is much better business to save the building you have than buy a new one. And besides this, well painted buildings are much pleasnter to live in, and bring a much higher price if you should want to sell, than dingy, unpainted buildings.

To arrive at the cost of painting, figure the number of square feet a gallon will cover, and how long it will last, not what the paint costs a gallon. Don't simply figure what it costs to paint your house or barn, but what it costs to keep it painted year in and year out. S. W. P. is honestly made of the best raw materials obtainable, and will prove more economical and satisfactory to the man who pays the bill than either hand mixed lead and oil or the so-called "cheap ready-mixed paint." We are agents for Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared (S.W.P.) Come in and we will be glad to discuss the paint and varnish question with you.

The by-laws of the association were amended, the change being in the time of holding the regular meetings. In the future they will be held the first Tuesday evenings of January, April, July and October. They voted to close the stores at one o'clock on Thursday afternoons during the months of July and August. The stores will close at 10 o'clock Monday, the 31st.

Marcus Keep, Grand Army post, has arranged a very interesting program for Memorial Day. The exercises will be held in the hall as usual and will begin at 1 30 p. m. They will consist of music by the Sons of Veterans' quartette and prayer by the Rev. Abram Conklin. The Post were fortunate in securing John N. Cole of Boston, former speaker in the House, as the speaker of the day. Mr. Cole is well known to Monson people as an excellent speaker and no doubt there will be a large attendance. In the morning some of the members of the Post will go to the Monlton Hill cemetery and decorate the nineteen graves there and the seventy-seven in the No. 1 cemetery after the exercises are over at the hall. About 20 boys of the Green street grammar school will assist in the decorating of these graves.

Academy Notes.

Kierstead visited his parents this last week.

Cowie has won his "M." He measures three inches more about the chest.

Miss Mande Rees and Miss Grace Dustin spent a few days in Springfield this past week.

The baseball team will go to South Hadley Falls to-morrow and play the high school of that town.

The class have selected Kerrigan, Miss Gaouette and O'Brien as speakers at the graduating exercises.

Monson Academy defeated Hardwick high on Flynt's park Wednesday at 4 o'clock to a score of 3—2 in five innings.

Miss Gaouette, Miss Sullivan and Miss Bessie Duncan were in Springfield Wednesday on a shopping trip for their class.

Miss Mary Hynes and a guest, Miss Tracy, of the Westfield Normal School spent a part of the week with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hynes on Washington street.

The seniors will hold a fair this evening in the Academy chapel and a most pleasing program will be rendered. Much work has been put into it and it is hoped that all will attend.

The senior class of the Academy have decided to have the dramatic club of Amherst College present a play in the Memorial Hall, the proceeds to go towards their graduation expenses.

Monson Academy has been approved by the 13 colleges comprising the New England College entrance board and has been granted the right of certification for three years from January 1st, 1909, to 1912. The certificate has previously been given for one year only, but in view of the good work done in college by recent gradnates, the term has been lengthened.

The Y M. C. A. held a regular meeting in Cushman Hall Tuesday evening, with Entwistle speaking on "Profanity." At the conclusion of every year, an annual party is generally held and this affair is scheduled for next Tuesday evening. A pleasing program has been arranged and refreshments will be served. The ministers of the different churches have been invited.

The Linophilian and Philomathean societies held their annual joint meeting in the Academy chapel last Monday evening, a very enjoyable program being rendered. One of the interesting numbers were the dialogs given by F. Foley and W. Kimber, W. W. Dunfield and D. P. Looney. Roy Johnson was elected treasurer, the position left by Roy Graves. The negative side won the debate.

The final averages for the members of the gradnating class have been given out and are as follows: Miss Hazel Mnnsell, 90.115; R. S. Fay, 89 11; R. Towne, 88 17; S. Fred Cnshman, 88 07; Miss Lillian Lyon, 87.43; Miss G. Sullivan, 86 93; Miss O. C. Flynt, 88.65; Valdimir N Boyadieff had an averarge of 89 16 for three years' work, but three years or more are required for a stndent to be ranked. The above mentioned stndents are all entitled to a certificate of college entrance and the first three will speak at the gradnating exercises by rank, three will be chosen by the faculty and another three by the class.

The first division of rhetoricals spoke in the chapel Wednesday morning, the following program being rendered: Essay, "Idylls of the King," Hubbard; "The Death of the Old Squire," Miss Cnshman; "Annt Tabitha," Miss Esther Bradway; "New England and Virginia," Norman Cushman; "The Vagabond," R Entwistle; "How Girls Study," Miss Dineen; "Black Samson of Brandywine," R. Johnson; "The Runaway Boy," Miss Duncan; "Washington," J. Grandfield; "Bill Mason, on Time," Miss Dustin; "The Age of Progress," P. Cahill; "In School Days," Miss Fagan; "Mark Anthony's Speech on the Death of Cæsar," Iwado.

When Lincoln Died.

Terrible as was the tragedy of that April night, it is still true that Lincoln may have died at the right thne for his imperishable fame. He had conducted an immense nation through the most tremendous civil war ever waged and never committed a single serious mistake He did not possess Hamilton's brilliant genius, but Hamilton never saw the future more sagaciously. He made no pretensions to Daniel Webster's magnetic oratory, but Webster never put more truth in oratorical form for popular guidance. He possessed Benjamin Franklin's immense common sense, and that twenty line address on the battlefield of Gettysburg is the high water mark of American sententious eloquence. It is fitting that after such a career his own life should be the last to be lost in that stupendous struggle. He had called over 200,000 heroes to lay down their lives, and then his own life was laid down beside the humblest private soldier or drummer boy of Gettysburg or Chickamauga.—Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler in Homiletic Review.

The Abbot of Fools.

The abbot of fools, who was also known in different parts as the archbishop or bishop of fools, the abbot of misrule, the lord of misrule, the master of unreason and L'Abbe de Liesse, was the person who used to superintend the saturnalia which were common in different parts of Europe from the fifth to the sixteenth century. The feast of fools was an imitation of the heathen saturnalia and, like this, was celebrated in December; hence the confusion of ideas which has arisen in mixing this feast with the ordinary Christmas revels. The chief celebration of the feast of fools fell upon Innocents' day, but the whole revels lasted from Christmas to the last day of Epiphany. The young people generally elected a leader, who went by one of the names quoted, and he was consecrated with many grotesque and ridiculous ceremonies.

England, Scotland, France and Germany all practiced these wild saturnalia, and it was with great difficulty that they were finally abolished. The abbot was not responsible for any trick or practical joke played on the rest of the community by his orders, and the victims had simply to "grin and bear it." In the temple (law headquarters, London) the office of the lord of misrule seems to have been a coveted one, for we read that it was only given to young men of good family.—London Standard.

"We are what we feed on," quoted Mr. Hixson, laying down his book, 'and I am willing to say the author is right. For example"—

"I am already a believer," Mrs. Hixson interrupted. "You will insist on having lobster for supper always."—Brooklyn Life.

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

The Uric-O Treatment Expels the Poison from the Blood.

Those sharp, shooting pains through the chest aronnd the region of the heart mean that poisonous uric and rhenmatic acid are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only trne way to cnre Rhenmatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and the blood. Cleans out the sand-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those dnties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Uric-O is a liqnid taken internally, 3 times daily, and does not contain any morphine, opium or other so-called 'pain deadners." Sciatica, Muscnlar, Inflammatory and Articnlar Rhenmatism all yield readily to Uric-O.

Uric O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gonld and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1 00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literatnre npon reqnest or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drng Co., 271 Smith Bldg., Syracnse, N. Y.

Their Midnight Meeting.

By GEORGE HAMPDON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

She waited until the house had grown still, and then, slipping from the bed where, wakeful and restless, she had been tossing for an hour, she proceeded cautiously to the stairs and down to the library floor.

Her acquaintance with the house dated back only as far as the day before, when she received the telegram announcing the death of her uncle, Grover Pelham.

Dreading a stumble over an unchanted piece of furniture, she exercised the utmost care. As she parted the portieres of the library door she became conscious of another presence.

Waiting until her eyes accustomed themselves to the darkness, she made out the faintest suggestion of a figure kneeling at the other side of the room, and a key turning in an inner lock of the safe explained the situation well enough.

Miss Morley remembered that the electric light buttou was close to where she stood. As one hand straightened out horizontally toward the intruder she flashed on the light with the other.

The burglar turned with a whirl and wilted before the eloquence of the outstretched revolver and Miss Morley's dominating pose.

"Who are yon?" the burglar demanded sullenly, peering intently in his effort to recognize the figure almost wholly enveloped by the curtains.

"A guest here." Miss Morley returned, with a curious interest in so much—or so little—of the burglar's face as the mask permitted her to see. "Who are you, and what are you doing in Mr. Pelham's safe?"

"Just taking the dimensions to fill it up with stocks and bonds as a surprise party for his heirs," was the sarcastic response.

"Ah! You know the old gentleman is dead, then?" Miss Morley asked.

"Yes, praise be! And if you had minded your own business I would have managed a nice little squaring of accounts with him."

"What did he ever do to you?" Miss Morley demanded, a little resentment in her voice as she let the curtains fall away and stood forward in all her gracious charm before the disguised intruder.

Instead of answering, the burglar as the light fell full upon her, dropped back a pace in manifest surprise. She waited, and in his turn he startled her.

"Helen Morley!" was all he said, in the quiet tones of one who is too greatly astonished to give way to emotion.

Seeming then to understand the folly of a mask, he removed it and crumpled it into his pocket. The two faced each other in silence.

The man and the girl had looked forward once to a life together He was cashier of a bank until some funds went wrong and the law sent him to prison for five years. After that he never came back to her, though she heard of him drifting about the country.

"John Gorham! And this is the way you come back!" the girl just whispered. "What—what did he ever do to you?" she demanded again mechanically and as though she were gaining time.

"I—I never took that money," Gorham declared. "Grover Pelham hated me because my mother did not care for him as he had wished. It was he who managed my undoing—to punish my dead father, he said. You didn't know that?"

The girl shook her head. The revolver hand dropped down upon the table, and she half averted her face and feverish eyes.

"I was not imbittered at first," Gorham went on, "even though I spent so long a time in prison. I began life over again until Pelham found it out. Then it seemed as if every Tom, Dick and Harry had learned my story and was being paid to tell it over and over again.

"I simply had to give up trying to earn a living that way. Besides, I had been circumstantially taught to believe that you had lost all faith in me. That was easy to believe," he added in a hard tone, "since I never received a letter from you."

"The letters were written," she told him quickly, "many a one."

"More of Pelham's work, then," Gorham ventured. "But I had given up. When I heard of the old gentleman's death I decided to come around and clean out his safe. I thought I would keep on at that business until I had a competence; then I could retire and live the independent life possible of a man of means.

"That's all there is to the story," the burglar concluded, "except that it was a pity for you to stumble on to the last chapter. That's the way a girl reads a story, though."

The girl comprehended from his manner that he would make no advances, that he would not even presume upon their one time friendship.

"It is strange to find you here," she said; "it is strange to be here myself. I learned yesterday that my uncle had made little or no provision for myself and my mother in his will. It distressed me so that I could not sleep.

"I came down here to see for myself, and if it were true that we had been left to the same old miserable struggle with poverty I—oh, I don't know what I might have done. I am sure I meant to steal if I found anything to steal. I wouldn't much care for myself, but mother"—

The girl had almost reached the point of tears when, with a sudden effort, she roused herself and turned toward the burglar, who stood impassively waiting for developments.

"Like yourself," the girl boldly admitted, "I meant to fall back on this safe for help. You got there first. Now I can send you back to jail, but I don't know," she mused, as if in doubt. "My conscience would never be clear if I sent you to prison for getting up earlier than I did myself."

The burglar looked up with a light of grim sympathy in his eyes as the girl fingered the revolver. He did not seem to be dismayed by the heartlessness she evinced.

"Yet it seems to me," Miss Morley suddenly announced, facing the burglar squarely and with a little color, "that you and I are a pair of weak-kneed cry-babies. We have experienced a few of the world's bitterly disappointed experiences, and we both whine. Don't you suppose that—that we could help each other to stand and stick it out—pool our courage, so to speak?"

Wonderingly the burglar looked at her for a moment as though he were fearful of some unfathomed and cruel humor. He had let himself drop down in a huddled heap beside the safe.

Now he lifted himself upright and was about to advance a step when she stayed him with uplifted hand.

"Helen," he implored, "will you, after all I have been through—will you literally cast your fortunes with me? I promise that you shall never have occasion again to be ashamed of me."

"No, no!" the girl besought with a haste almost hysterical. "We'll draw up a compact to go into partnership of friends. We have saved each other from a crime, and we will stand by each other, and we'll strike this off the minutes before we adjourn. How say you?"

"And if the fight be a good one?" Gorham asked softly. "Will you have confidence then in me? Oh, heaven!"

With a resolute movement he stepped forward to touch her. Hitherto her manner had been half playful, half ironical, but it was altogether to hide her deeper feelings. With an effort that brought her figure splendidly erect she warded him off.

"No, no, no!" she commanded. "Not here and now. No; but promise me, John, promise me here and now, that you and I part tonight members of a compact to fight the fight of righteousness, no matter how hard it may be. If—if—if you care to see me," she faltered, "you will know how to find me. But now—nothing but your promise, and then—go!"

He looked at her steadily while he breathed once or twice. It seemed as if he would defy her and take her to himself in spite of what she might do, but finally he turned to the open library door. At the moment of passing out he turned and looked at her once again. Neither spoke, and she hardly seemed to know the exact instant of his leaving. She thought he was surely gone, however, when he stepped back into the room.

"Helen," he began, and she knew that he would have his question answered, "when I can come back to you able honestly to take care of you, may I—come?"

He heard her softly speak her answer, and with a gesture of gladness he was gone certainly this time.

The safe was still open, and some of the papers lay as the burglar had dropped them. Helen turned to these and began restoring them to their former order.

"I pray he will come back again to me," she breathed. "It may be a long while to wait until he can, but poverty and disgrace—nothing matters if only we may have some happiness at last, even the happiness that is nearly all hardship."

She had the will in her hands, and, in spite of herself, she opened and read it. Before she finished she stood erect in her excitement. Folding the paper, she placed it in the safe and closed the iron door. Then she turned back toward her room.

"He is coming back when he can honestly take care of me," she told herself joyfully, "and all of Uncle Grover's money is willed to him in compensation for all he has suffered. He will soon be back for me."

She could not sleep any better even now, but the restlessness had given place to a peace of mind and a perfect happiness that were very good.

A Seasonable Remedy.

A poor woman, understanding that Oliver Goldsmith was a physician and hearing of his great humanity, solicited him by letter to send her something for her husband, who had lost his appetite and was reduced to a most melancholy state. The good natured poet waited on her instantly and after some discourse with his patient found him sinking with sickness and poverty. The doctor told the honest pair that they would hear from him in an hour, when he would send them some pills which he believed would prove efficacious.

He immediately went home and put 10 guineas into a chip box with the following label: "These must be used as necessities require. Be patient and of good heart." He sent his servant with this prescription to the comfortless mourners, who found it contained a remedy superior to anything Galen or his disciples could ever administer.

Of all languages, English probably gives greater variety of expression, as its words are derived from many languages.

A Noiseless City In Friesland.

Fancy a city of 35,000 inhabitants, guiltless of street cars and omnibuses (the steam tram line from Franeker halts discreetly without the town), easily encompassed in an hour, for its singel, its old moat which it has not yet greatly overstepped, is not three miles in extent; a city without great noise or confusion, save upon market days, and clean, quiet streets, lined by low houses with shining windows, peopled by rosy cheeked serving women, capped with gold and lace, and demurely dressed, grave faced citizens. Send red sailed boats to its very heart until masts are jumbled with electric light poles and church towers; plant densely foliaged trees beside its quays and a few iron railed flower beds in its open squares; give it a water girdle thronged with hundreds of boats, crossed by a few bridges and many little hand ferries—and you will see Leeuwarden.—Scribner's Magazine.

He Knew Them.

"Things have gone completely to the dogs with me."

"Cheer up. They might have been worse."

"Don't you believe it."

"Why?"

"Because then they would have been."

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Palmer Citizens Show the Certain Way Ont.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Palmer citizen says:

W. E. Griffin, living on Park street, Palmer, Mass., says: "I hurt my back about two years ago and after that experienced considerable trouble from my kidneys. There was a dull pain in my back and it was often impossible for me to get about at all. The kidney action was very irregular, at times the secretions being too frequent and copious, while again scanty. My general health was affected and when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised so highly I procured a box from Lynde and Gould's drug store. This remedy acted just as represented and gave me prompt relief. I continued its use a short time and all symptoms of kidney trouble disappeared."

Baby Cupid.

By LITTELL M'CLUNG.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Mrs. Kenton repulsed his seriousness with a flirtatious laugh.

"Let's see! Why, you've known me only a month," the pretty widow objected. "You've never even seen the rest of the family!"

"You mean Henry?" he said.

"Of course I mean Henry!" she exclaimed. "Who else could I mean? The very idea of your starting to propose to me, Mr. Barton, without ever having seen Henry. The man who loves me must love him too. He must think that Henry is the handsomest, finest little fellow in the world.

"Oh, you don't realize what such a baby as Henry means to a young mother. He is her joy, her hope, her life, Mr. Barton. The man she loves must share her feelings about her child. You understand, don't you?"

The man nodded.

"But how am I to share your love for the child—how am I ever to meet him—if you don't give me the chance?" he demanded. "I call in the evening, and the nurse is just putting him to bed. I stop by in the afternoon, and you and Henry have gone out for a ride.

"Something always happens to keep Henry out of my sight. I've about come to believe that he is a myth, a prattling phantom that willfully eludes me."

"How can you, Mr. Barton, use the word 'prattling' when speaking of Henry?" she demanded, trying to keep a serious face. "The little dear doesn't prattle—he talks!"

"Indeed?" he exclaimed. "I hardly thought he was old enough to"—

"Certainly he's old enough," she interrupted. "He can say 'mamma' just beautifully, and at present I'm concentrating my energies on getting him to say 'dear mamma' and 'nursie' and other necessary words."

The light of inspiration flashed over James Barton's face.

"Why don't you teach him my name?" he asked eagerly. "It's very easy—just Jim, you know. Then when Henry and I do get acquainted we'll start on terms of friendship without any preliminaries!"

"Oh, what an idea!" she cooed. "Why, of course Henry shall be taught to say—Jim."

Barton noticed with a thrill the blush that tinged her cheek even as her tongue hesitated at the name.

"Well, when shall I see him?" he asked. "Let me make an engagement with you and Henry."

"Let me see—this is the 20th, isn't it?" she mused. "Well, on the 1st of next month, in the afternoon, the—the Young Mothers' club meets at my house. You can come around then and have tea with us. Henry will be wearing his best frock in your honor."

"Fine and dandy!" declared Barton as he lifted his hat in farewell. "I'll be on hand, Mrs. Kenton, you may be sure."

On the eventful afternoon Barton came, as he had said, a smile of confidence lighting his face—a smile that, alas, faded as quickly as the blush of a debutante.

Mrs. Kenton greeted him with a warm hand clasp, and the next moment he found himself in a drawing room filled with young women. He was the only man in sight, and his knees trembled as the rapid fire introductions began.

But he faced, like a hero, the chorus of "Oh!" "Delighted!" and "How charming!" and came through with face unflushed.

Tea was served and the meeting gave promise of passing off pleasantly enough. But the blow fell when the president, a middle aged woman with a twinkle of humor in her eye, arose for the first formal announcement.

"Ladies," she said mildly, "several of us, as is our custom, have brought our children with us—the proper thing for young mothers to do. These children, as you are aware, are upstairs in care of two of our most loyal mothers.

"Each of us has listened with patience, be it said, to praises of another's prodigy. But now we are prepared to learn the truth. There is a gentleman in our midst. He shall see the children and make formal report to us as to which is the prettiest!"

Barton's heart went right down into his patent leathers as he turned upon Mrs. Kenton with a look of unforgiving reproach.

"Really, I didn't do it!" she whispered. "It's one of the surprises the club always springs on the hostess—'pon my soul it is!"

There was no doubting the sincerity of her tone, and Barton, summoning to his aid every fiber of his courage, rose to protest. The quick eyed president divined his intention, and she gave him no chance to utter a word.

"The young gentleman may wish to protest that he is not a good judge of children," she declared, "but we cannot listen to him. We all feel sure that he is a man of judgment and courage and that he will do what we ask of him."

A dozen smiles were suppressed as a dozen heads nodded approval. Barton's eye flashed, for the humor of the situation had not appealed to him.

"I shall not protest, ladies," he said with quiet determination. "On the contrary, I shall be very glad to pick out the prettiest baby for you. And, furthermore, I am prepared to face the consequences, whatever they may be!"

The president smiled and appointed a committee to escort Barton to the nursery. Soon he was the center of six contented infants, who were toddling and crawling about over the floor in care of two guardian mothers.

The impromptu nurses were sworn to secrecy, and Barton was given a long blue ribbon to tie on the arm of the baby he thought the prettiest. Then he was left alone with the infants.

He realized full well that, while it all might be a huge joke with the mothers for him it was about the most serious moment of his life.

"If I miss giving this ribbon to Beth Kenton's baby the chances are she'll never speak to me again," he muttered. "I know hers is the prettiest, but how under the sun am I to know which is hers? Babies all look pretty much alike to me!"

With the slip of ribbon clutched between his trembling fingers he began to scan intently, hopefully, one by one, the faces of the babies. He found no distinguishing marks on the first three, but at the fourth he hesitated, and his breath came faster.

Surely those large, inquiring blue eyes were the eyes of Mrs. Kenton, and of a certainty that delicate, finely chiseled little nose was very like the nose of Mrs. Kenton.

"Here's where I win hands down!" he breathed, stifling his conscience. "I don't care a rap whether this chap is really the best looking or not—he gets the prize."

He reached out his arms toward the child, when a voice behind stopped him.

"Jim-Jum-Jum-Jim—ma-ma!"

It was certainly his name as plain as accents could get it. He turned to behold a lively tot pawing the air with his chubby hands.

"Jim-Jum-ma-ma!" the baby cried, delighted at being noticed.

With one swoop Barton grabbed the child, for the first glance told him beyond doubt that this was Mrs. Kenton's baby. With the youngster in his arms he rushed down the stairs and broke in upon the startled young mothers.

"Ladies," he exclaimed triumphantly, "I pick this child as the prettiest of all!"

"Oh, you dear, dear man!" whispered the hostess, taking the baby into her arms and kissing him energetically.

But Barton did not answer until all the other mothers had gone. Then he said the thing most natural.

"Don't you think your boy might be taught to say 'papa?'" he asked with more sincerity than humor in his voice.

"Perhaps so," replied Mrs. Kenton, smiling happily. "Come, Henry," she coaxed, "say 'papa' for mamma, won't you?"

But Henry only cooed "Jum-Jim mani-ma-Jim!"

Et Cetera.

He is a poor little neglected boy whose mamma is so busy with mothers' meetings and club conventions and such important matters that she really hasn't time to attend to her children. This little boy was entertaining a casual caller while his mother was upstairs putting the finishing touches to her toilet. Said the little boy, whose own toilet was sadly in need of attention:

"What does e. t. c. mean?"

"E. t. c.?" asked the caller.

"Yes," said the little boy. "It's a sort of a word. It's in a book I was reading."

"Oh!" said the caller. "Etc. is an abbreviation. It is Latin. It stands for et cetera."

The little boy looked puzzled. "I'm not in Latin yet," he said.

"Et cetera," explained the caller, "means—well, it means 'and so on.'"

The little boy was thoughtful for a moment, and then he said:

"I wish my mamma could find time to et cetera the buttons on my pants."

And, taking in his dishevele appearance, the visitor murmured, "Amen."—New York Times.

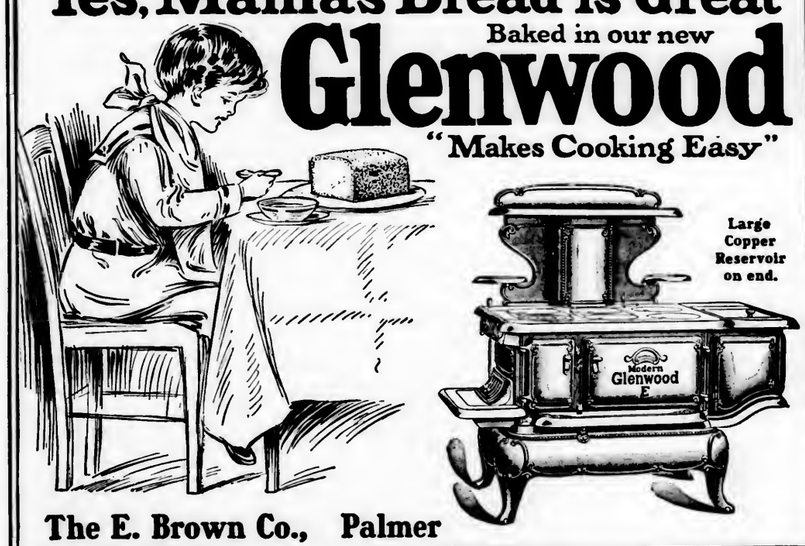
Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Red Banks, Miss.—"Words are inadequate to express what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from a female disease and weakness which the doctors said was caused by a fibroid tumor, and I commenced to think there was no help for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman after all other means had failed. My friends are all asking what has helped me so much, and I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Willie Edwards.

Hampstead, Maryland.—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and could not be on my feet half a day without suffering. The doctors told me I never would be well without an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors, and I hope this valuable medicine may come into the hands of many more suffering women."—Mrs. Joseph H. Dandy.



We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

FIRE SETTING CHARGED.

John F. Lyman Arrested for Wednesday Night Blaze.

IN BASEMENT OF BUSINESS BLOCK.

Was Burning Fiercely When Found by Night Officer Crimmins. Little Damage Done.

What is believed by the officers to be an important arrest was the taking into custody Wednesday evening of John F. Lyman on the charge of setting fire to a building on Main street. He was arraigned in the district court yesterday morning, pleaded not guilty and was held for a hearing June 7 in the sum of $2500, which he could not furnish and was remanded to jail. Through it all—his arrest and the court proceedings—he maintained his usual taciturnity, apparently the least concerned of any over the outcome of the matter.

The blaze on the strength of which the arrest was made was in the basement of the Eager block on Main street, the fire being in the southwest corner, next the block of W. E Stone & Son. It was discovered by Night Officer T. J. Crimmins, who found it burning briskly on the floor beneath a window, from which two panes of glass were missing. Selectman G. S. Holden was next on the scene, and he contemplated jumping in and stamping it out, but by the time he had smashed in the window concluded there was rather too much fire for such treatment, and ran for one of the numerous chemical extinguishers kept by the fire department in various places about town for just such occasions. Before he returned however one had arrived from another source and the blaze was quickly put out by L. E Chandler, who recognized the evident incendiarism of the fire, used as little of the chemical as possible, and after the fire was out kept everybody out of the basement until the arrival of Chief Summers and Mr. Holden, when a careful examination of the spot was made. The fire proved to be in a space about four feet wide between the end wall of the building and three barrels, which had been so placed as to form a place for the storage of wood and coal, pieces of both lying about in profusion. On these had been a couple or more rolls of posters and perhaps other papers, and it was these which were blazing most briskly, although there was quite a blaze over a space about three feet in diameter, a portion of it outside the paper among the debris on the floor.

The officer and Mr. Holden had been on a watch for possible firebugs, and as a result of what they saw and found Officer Crimmins arrested Lyman, charging him with starting the fire. This Lyman denied, stating that he had been in town for a number of years and wouldn't do such a thing. He seemed to take his arrest philosophically and had little to say, but later denied having been in the rear of either the Stone or Eager blocks at any time that day. He is employed by the Central Massachusetts Electric Company as an electrician, and is also a member of the fire department, holding the position of engineer of the steamer company. He has a wife and one daughter in Palmer; another daughter is married and lives in Worcester.

WARE.

Barn Burned.

The barn owned by John E. Fitzgerald, truckman, on Williams street was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning about 11.30. The buildings nearby were saved with slight loss, the house of Douglass Irwin suffering a slight damage to the roof. The barn was insured for $400, and was nearly a total loss. The loss on the personal property was nearly equal to that on the barn, as Mr. Fitzgerald had various vehicles and other articles of value that were burned. The insurance on the same had expired May 1st and had not been renewed. The cause of the fire is not known.

HAMPDEN COURT CASE.

Spring of Water Cause of Controversy Between Two Neighbors.

Judge Henry A. King of Springfield has issued an injunction in the case of George A. Chapin of Hampden against William Leach of the same town, the injunction restraining Mr. Leach from obstructing or diverting the water supply that was used jointly by the two men at their adjacent farms in Hampden. In the bill of complaint Mr. Chapin states that his father, Silas W. Chapin, late of Hampden, who then owned the farm adjoining that of Mr. Leach, now owned by the son, agreed with Mr. Leach to jointly construct a more adequate receptacle for the single water supply of the two farms. Pipes were laid from the receptacle to the two farms and water continuously flowed to the Chapin farm until the water was diverted by Mr. Leach except when prevented by a drouth. Upon the death of his father, George A. Chapin came into possession of the Chapin farm, and he asserts that he is entitled to all the rights under the joint water supply agreement that his father enjoyed. It is alleged that on January 1, 1909, Mr. Leach disconnected the pipe from the water receptacle and substituted as a supply a small spring which is alleged to be inadequate for the supply. It is further alleged that Mr Leach entirely cut off the supply about the middle of April. Although requested by Mr. Chapin to restore the water supply, it is asserted that Mr. Leach threatens and intends to continue the flow of water to the premises of Mr. Chapin.

BALLOON LANDS.

Trip From Pittsfield to Near Palmer Monday in Fierce Storm.

The balloon Massachusetts, which ascended from Pittsfield at 1.35 Monday afternoon, landed in a field on the farm of Martin Maxwell at Silver Street about four o'clock, after an adventurous trip. On leaving Pittsfield the balloon rose to a height of 3000 feet, but when about 10 miles out dropped so low that the pilot could talk with the people below. Two storms were encountered, one from the north and another from the northwest soon after, and the balloon rose to a height of 4000 feet, where the air was quiet. In passing over Easthampton at a height of 3200 feet a squall was encountered about 3.15, and the balloon swayed at an angle of 45 degrees. The balloon passed close to Mt. Tom at a height of 3100 feet, and encountered another gale at Holyoke, during which the balloon made five miles in four minutes. When passing over Indian Orchard the balloon rose to 8200 feet; then passing over Ludlow and coming down in the vicinity of Silver Street, the anchor was thrown out and they finally landed in Mr. Maxwell's field. There were three passengers in the car besides the pilot.

A meeting of the trustees of the Academy was held Monday, when these officers were elected: President, Dr. E. W. Norwood of Spencer; vice president, C. S. Tarbell of Brimfield; treasurer, H. H. Bowman of Springfield; clerk, G. M. Hitchcock of Brimfield; prudential committee, Dr. R. V. Sawin, Orus Parker, G. M. Hitchcock, Rev. Samuel Eaton, all of Brimfield, and C. H. Walker of Warren. The Academy is in a prosperous condition, with 90 pupils enrolled. Miss Shaw and Miss Wheelock of the faculty tendered their resignations and Principal Keuney and Miss Legg were re-elected. Miss Tarbell was re-elected librarian. An appropriation was made for the purchase of tools for manual training, which has not been introduced into the school before. The preparatory class will be discontinued as a ninth grade will be added to the Center grammar school. Important improvements are to be made on the school grounds which contain about 10 acres, including the ball ground, east of the brook and the side hill beyond. An appropriation was made for grading the ball ground and the trustees heartily approved of the scheme of planting an arboretum and ornamental shrubs on the adjacent space. An architect's plan prepared by Rev. F. S. Child of Holland, who has made a specialty of landscape architecture was shown by Mr. Kenney and received favorable attention. Mr. Kenney received a vote of thanks for his careful preparation of this scheme of improvement upon which he has been working for some time.

BAD AUTO ACCIDENT.

Car Leaves Road and Turns Bottom Up in Field.

MACHINE PINS ONE MAN UNDER IT.

Both Passengers Hurt, But Not Fatally. Car Was Running Fast on Bad Curve.

A serious automobile accident, in which two men were badly hurt but by a miracle escaped death, occurred shortly before 7 o'clock Monday evening just east of the Henry Thayer place, about two miles west of Palmer on the road to North Wilbraham. A car containing two men, traveling at a high rate of speed, left the highway, dropped over a four-foot wall and turned bottom side up, pinning one of the men beneath it.

The men were Edward P. Blake of Cambridge, a member of the E. P. Blake Company, dealers in automobiles, and his chauffeur, Howard MacArthur of South Boston. Blake was on his way to Hartford to take part in the hill-climbing contest there, and was traveling in a Jackson car, for which his company is agent. Approaching the spot where the accident occurred the road dips down a slight hill and turns to the right, the whole being plainly visible on approach. MacArthur was driving and saw the down hill and curve, and slowed up somewhat to make the turn, but on striking the sharpest part was going about 35 miles an hour, too fast to negotiate the curve safely; the car swung to the left of the road and struck the fence at the side of the state road a glancing blow. At this instant Blake reached over and seizing the steering wheel gave it a sharp twist to the right, the car shot across the road, through a barbed wire fence and over an embankment about four feet high into the rocks and soft ground of a swamp meadow, turning squarely upside down. Blake was thrown clear of the car, but MacArthur was caught by the steering wheel and pinned down.

The first persons at the scene of the trouble were K. Johnson and Christian Olsen, who live about an eighth of a mile east of the spot. They were unable to release MacArthur and Olsen started for Palmer on his bicycle for help. Fortunately, in about five minutes C. I. Whitcomb and Dr. J. P. Schneider came along on their way home from Springfield; the latter stopped to render what assistance he might and Mr. Whitcomb was despatched to Palmer for aid. He returned in a short time with H. W. Holbrook and his touring car, and Dr. H. C. Cheney. MacArthur was found to be seriously hurt, and was taken by Mr. Holbrook in his auto to the Wesson Memorial Hospital in Springfield. Blake, who at first did not seem much hurt, began to suffer much however, and it was with great difficulty that he was placed on a mattress on a cot bed and brought to Palmer, where he was taken to Boston on the 9.47 train, Dr. Schneider accompanying him. The machine was righted Tuesday morning and towed to the garage in Palmer, not so very much the worse for its tumble except in damage to fittings and small parts.

This is not Mr. Blake's first experience with auto accidents, he having suffered broken bones in a smash-up at Marlboro a short time ago, and was released from the hospital only a week ago.

Baseball.

The Palmer high school team were defeated by Westfield high in a game at Westfield Monday afternoon, 17 to 1. Palmer was crippled by the absence of several of the regular players.

The baseball team from the Whittall carpet mills of Worcester will play the team from the Palmer carpet mill on the driving park Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The batteries will be F. Scheiner and L. Weise of Worcester and E. Nelson and W. Taylor for Palmer.

The Three Rivers baseball team will play the West Warren team in West Warren to-morrow. Monday at 1 o'clock they will play the Bondsville team on the Athol street grounds in Three Rivers. This is the first game in the new league. Both teams are strong and a large crowd is expected.

There was a large gathering Monday evening in Temperance Hall for the purpose of forming a baseball association. C. A. Tabor was chosen president, Frank Wilson, secretary; William Holden, treasurer; Samuel Thayer, James Campbell, Patrick Sullivan, James Hughes, John Donavan, directors. The board of directors organized as follows: Chairman, John Donovan; secretary, James Campbell; manager, E. Longtime. John Donovan was chosen a committee of one to represent Thorndike at the League meeting. It was voted that all children under 14 years of age be admitted to the games free. Frank Wilson was chosen official scorer for the team. President Tufts of Palmer was present and outlined the plans of the league. The matter of uniforms for the team was left with the directors, also the matter of finances. The past week several reported for practice and all indications point to a successful team.

Park Theatre, Boston.

"The Traveling Salesman" has scored an emphatic success in Boston and is now in the second month of its engagement. A striking feature of the audiences now testing the capacity of the Park Theatre is that they are made up in the major part of strangers from all parts of the New England states who have heard and read of James Forbes', the now international playwright's latest and newest creation of "Bob Blake" the modern drummer as known from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon, and whose philosophical wit and sayings not only amuse the audience while it listens, but repeats chuckingly afterwards. "The Traveling Salesman" is amusing Boston and Chicago, while at the same time Author Forbes' companion play, "The Chorus Lady" is pleasing audiences in London, England. Both plays present types of real human nature that are expertly and humorously drawn and are manifestly the fruit of sharp, yet tolerant observations of life and are fraught with extremely comical reflections which have their source in a sunny and philosophical mind. Mark Smith, Rosalind Coghlan, James O'Neil Jr., and Diana Huneker head a cast that play in a lively, cyclonic fashion that sustains the story to the very last word of the final curtain. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Miss Violet Haggard, who works in the Palmer carpet mill, caught her finger in the machinery Monday and severed it from the hand. She was attended by Dr. H. C. Cheney.

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, May 26, 1909.

It has been a hard struggle for the milk producers against the milk contractors to get through the Senate their bill for their protection against unjust prosecution. Charges are made that the contractors have dominated the Senate by their presence during the debate, and names of contractors are mentioned, with the Whitings foremost, who have been in attendance upon the Senate while the debate was in progress. Senator Cowee of Worcester, chairman of the committee on agriculture and the member in charge of the bill, was forced to his trumps to get a reconsideration of the bill after the Senate had once refused to pass it to be engrossed, but he won the fight and yesterday there was a rollcall vote of 16 yeas to 12 nays on passing the bill to be engrossed. At first Senator Cowee believed that he had an easy task to carry the bill through the Senate, but when he learned what the contractors were doing he realized his mistake.

Now the issue is transferred to the House. Mr. Gates of Westboro is House chairman and will have the bill in charge. He says that he represents the best milk producing district in the state, including Northboro, Southboro, Westboro and adjoining towns. It was from this district that the original Whiting, milk contractor, came. Mr. Gates is not himself a milk producer, but he throws himself into this contest as if he were. Another strong House member of the committee is Mr. Gardner of Westfield, also on the committee on education. He is new and has spoken but little, but he has shown his mettle and has the attention, respect and confidence of the House. These men believe that the bill has a good chance of going through the House. But they also expect that they have a contest to win.

Most contested, apparently, of all the matters before the Legislature this year, the governor's "holding bill" for the Boston and Maine stock, is retained by the committee on railroads while they wait for the opinion of Attorney General Malone in reply to their question what the effect of the bill will be on the federal suit against the New Haven railroad to compel it to give up its railroad holdings. The main purpose of the national suit is said to have been to compel the New Haven to dispose of its trolley interests. But this has been done already, and it is said to have been intimated from Washington that if the state should take up the Boston and Maine case, the government at Washington would make no prosecution of that phase of its case against the New Haven. There continues to be much work done by the anti-merger side. Both Republicans and Democrats are united in support of this element in the conflict. There are rumors of differences inside the railroad committee, and one statement represents Mr. Washburn of Worcester as taking ground against the governor and on the same side as Mr. White of Brookline, but this report is pronounced by some of the committee to be absolutely without foundation, and they are so much disturbed over the spread of the report that, as one authority has it, they are thinking of calling up the newspaper men, questioning them as to what authority they had for the statement and cautioning them to be more careful hereafter. Circulars are sent to members by the anti-merger bureau, and the utmost possible is being done to prevent the passage of the holding bill recommended by Gov. Draper. This matter alone seems sufficient to prevent the desired prorogation by June 12, and the Legislature will be fortunate if it is through a week later than that.

Contrary to expectation, there was no contest in the House over the bill for the consolidation of the state board of education with the commission on industrial education. The latter body knew that it had no particular stake in the matter, for its life expires on July 1. The state board of education seemed also to have lost interest, for nothing was done on its part to prevent the passage of the bill by the House as it came from the Senate, or even to secure the adoption of any amendments. Representative Gardner of Westfield was one of the dissenters from the bill, and he made wide inquiries among educators all over the state. He said that he had come to the conclusion that the bill was the best which was to be obtained, and so he did not press his opposition further. Mr. Nichols of Boston was another in similar position, and he, too, said on the floor of the House that he should not carry his dissent further. So the bill was ordered to a third reading with these statements and the next day it was passed to be engrossed without a word by any one. Thus there will be appointed to the new board four of the present board, four will retire, aside from those who are members ex-officio, and one of the industrial commission will be appointed. Prediction which comes with much plausibility is to the effect that the four of the present board to be dropped will be Joel D. Miller of Leominster, George I. Aldrich of Brookline, Albert E. Winship of Somerville, and Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells of Boston. The four to be retained are presumably ex-Senator Clinton Q Richmond of North Adams, Thomas B. Fitzpatrick of Brookline, who was renominated to-day, Frederick P. Fish, who succeeded the late Carroll D. Wright of Worcester, and Mrs. Ella Cabot Lyman of Boston. The member of the industrial commission named for the new board is Edward A. Filene of the well-known Boston dry goods house.

Quite a contest has occurred between Gov. Draper and the committee on harbors and public lands, and the governor has won by a material margin. Hitherto it has been the practice for the Legislature to make a lot of little appropriations for little harbors. Gov. Draper thought it better to let the outlay be made by the harbor and land commission, and so recommended in his message. The committee took issue. It has much travel every session to different parts of the state. They made a strong opposition to the governor's scheme, saying that it would be as well to abolish the harbors and land committee and turn over their work to the commission. In like manner, said Mr. Holman of Attleboro, chairman of the committee, the railroad commission would usurp the duties of the railroad committee and so on, until there would be no need of the Legislature and the state would be run entirely by its commissions. Mr. Burns of Plymouth, one of the committee, Democrat, spoke on the same side. But the business sense of the plan to put the outlay into the hands of the board carried the House by a large majority and Chairman Holman is predicting direful consequences.

There has been signed by the governor the bill for the establishment of credit unions, a system of capitalizing a person's character and ability when he has no

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Two Carriers Will Begin the Work Next Tuesday Morning.

The free delivery of mail in the village of Palmer, which has been in preparation for some time, will begin next Tuesday morning with two carriers and two deliveries a day over the entire territory, with an additional delivery in the business section. The carriers have been at work mapping out their routes with Postmaster Shaw, and are familiarizing themselves with the territory as much as may be without doing the actual work.

The routes as planned at present are as follows: No. 1 will begin with Walnut street, and will include that street and all the territory west of it. Route No. 2 will begin at the post office and include all the business section of Main street, taking in the business places just off Main on Thorndike, Bridge and Central street, and all the territory east of Walnut and south of Main. These are the present plans, but they may have to be changed when the actual work is begun, as the routes will be divided as near as possible equally between the two men.

The first delivery in the morning will leave the post office at 7 45 and cover the entire district; the afternoon delivery will be at 4 30. An additional delivery through the business section will be made at 12.45

Twelve boxes for the depositing of mail will be located at various places about town not yet definitely determined. They will not be put up until Tuesday or Wednesday, depending on how the work of delivery goes on the first day. When in place collections will be made from them at 5 45 in the morning in time to catch the first outgoing mails; another collection will be made when the carriers make their first round in the morning, and when they make the afternoon round, making three during the day; another will be made at noon from the boxes on Main street in the business section.

Persons who desire mail left at their homes but who have not already notified Postmaster Shaw to that effect, should do so at once in order to receive their mail promptly.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS.

Ricketts of Norwich, Ct., a former pastor of the Congregational church in Thorndike. The Thorndike band will accompany the post on its tour of the cemeteries. At the hall the soloist will be Miss Lillian Lyon of Palmer, and the reader will be Miss Grace Thompson.

TOWN BASEBALL LEAGUE.

First of the Games in Schedule to Come Next Monday.

The schedule for the games of the Palmer town league has been arranged, and the first games will be played next Monday, when Bondsville and Three Rivers will play at Three Rivers and Thorndike and Palmer at Palmer in the afternoon. The schedule is for 12 games, six at home and six abroad for each team, with several open dates for games with other teams or for games postponed on account of the weather. The agreement is that all teams shall be composed of local players with the possible exception of two, and that not more than two players shall be paid. If the gate receipts leave a surplus after paying necessary expenses at the close of the season, the money will be divided among the players.

The managers of the Palmer team have received a number of donations of bats, balls, etc., for which they are very grateful; they need much material however, and donations of any sort will be thankfully received by the treasurer or manager.

FOREST LAKE OPENING.

Season Begins Next Monday With All the Usual Attractions.

The season at Forest Lake will open next Monday with the usual attractions for visitors. There will be three performances in the theatre, at 2 and 4 in the afternoon and at 8 in the evening, by the Bon Ton Minstrels. The Lake will be open continuously after next Monday, for the accommodation of picnic or private parties, but without performances in the theatre, which will not begin until later.

Blaze in Dwelling Wednesday.

Fire was discovered abont 4 30 Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the house on North Main street occupied by Dr. S. R. Carsley. Smoke was smelled by Mrs. Carsley, and on investigation large quantities were found coming from the basement, where a quantity of carpet lining hanging over a large box was found to be blazing up. The burning mass was thrown ont and water applied, extinguishing the flames with little damage. The basement door, which opens on Foundry street, had been left open for ventilation, and the conditions seemed to indicate that without doubt the fire had been set maliciously.

Mail Boxes Free.

Readers of the Journal who are not regnlar subscribers are reminded that they may secure a mail box free at the Journal office simply by subscribing for the paper for one year. To new subscribers a substantial steel mail box, with lock and two keys, proof against the weather and so constructed as to securely hold mail once placed within it, is given free. Leg Broken in Ditch.

C. H. Williams, living near the electric plant at Blanchardville, had a leg broken while at work at the wire mill yesterday afternoon. He was working in a ditch and the earth, loosened by the rain, caved in while he was stooping over, partially burying him and breaking one leg. He was cared for by Dr. Carsley and taken to a hospital in Springfield.

Once More.

money and doing for him more than is done by the system of coöperative banks. Pierre Jay, our recent bank commissioner, is to have the credit of bringing the system into the state. It is in use freely in Western Europe and has proved of great service to persons of limited means, but of unquestionable character. Canada has transplanted it there and Mr. Jay sees no reason why it cannot succeed in Massachusetts.

This afternoon, almost at the end of the session, the House came to an end of its two-days' debate on the Boston city charter and put the question to rollcalls. There were over 20 amendments pending, but after three rollcalls had shown that the Republican ranks could not be broken into materially, the Democrats concentrated their strength on the best amendment, proposed by Mr. Willcutt of Boston, Republican, who had attacked the bill because it compelled the voters to choose between a large council and loss of their system of direct nominations (returning to delegate conventions) and a small council of nine, with direct nominations. This amendment,—all others being withdrawn or voted down—had 68 years to 149 nays. The bill was ordered to a third reading by 164 yeas to 49 nays and nine pairs. The vote was almost entirely on party grounds. On the whole, the debate was conducted with good spirit and no unseeming personalities. There is one further stage in the House, and then the bill will go to the Senate, but there is no sign that the Democrats will be able to carry a single amendment.

There was reported this afternoon, from the committee on public charitable institutions, an appropriation of $41,000 for the new industrial school for boys at Shirley, —at the old Shaker settlement. The $85,000 appropriated last year was used up for land and buildings and they need this for furnishings before any boys can be brought there from the Lyman school for boys or from the Concord reformatory.

The Senate has put the legislative salary bill over to June 1, probably hoping that by that time some members may change their minds so that the bill can be killed.

The adverse report on the bill to give headquarters to the civil service commission outside of the state house has been postponed to June 1. LANDON.

The Worst Cases of Rheumatism Yield to Uric-O.

Sudden Death, Heart Failure and Paralysis are Caused by Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The Rhenmatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cnre for Rhenmatism.

The following letter unsolicited is the advice of a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren.

Mr. Frank Howe, Baldwinsville, N. Y., says: "I spent hnndreds of dollars with physicians, treating for Rhenmatism, but seemed to grow worse instead of better. I was on crutches and in constant pain and became discouraged. A friend advised me to try Uric-O and I finally purchased a $1 00 bottle and commenced the treatment. I was greatly benefited at the start and after nsing six bottles was entirely free from Rhenmatism and have never felt a return of the disease."

Anyone who doubts Mr. Howe's experience is invited to write him for further details.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould, and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature npon reqnest or can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Bldg., Syracnse, N. Y.

WESTON, Ocean-to-Ocean Walker,

Said recently: "When you feel down and out, feel there is no use living, just take your bad thoughts with you and walk them off. Before you have walked a mile things will look rosier. Just try it." Have you noticed the increase in walking of late in every community? Many attribute it to the comfort which Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, gives to the millions now using it. As Weston has said, "It has real merit."

If Your House Needs Painting Use S. W. P.

If your house, or barn, or buildings of any sort, need painting, don't put it off. Now—this spring—is the time to paint. A building that is kept protected from the weather, damp, sun and so on, will outlast by years a building that is allowed to go unpainted or poorly painted. It is much better business to save the building you have than buy a new one. And besides this, well painted buildings are much pleasanter to live in, and bring a much higher price if you should want to sell, than dingy, unpainted buildings.

To arrive at the cost of painting, figure the number of square feet a gallon will cover, and how long it will last, not what the paint costs a gallon. Don't simply figure what it costs to paint your house or barn, but what it costs to keep it painted year in and year out. S. W. P. is honestly made of the best raw materials obtainable, and will prove more economical and satisfactory to the man who pays the bill than either hand mixed lead and oil or the so-called "cheap ready-mixed paint." We are agents for Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared (S.W.P.) Come in and we will be glad to discuss the paint and varnish question with you.

The team winning the most number of points will be furnished a supper by the losing side. Usually the games are closely played as both sides are made up of skillful players.

Miss Julia Meurisse, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Meurisse, died in Utica, N. Y., last Tuesday after a brief illness. She had been employed as a weaver and was living with her sister in that city. She leaves four sisters and six brothers. The body was brought to Monson yesterday and burial was in the Pearl street cemetery.

A baseball team was formed by members of the Congregational Sunday school last week with Charles Borgeson as field captain and Wilson Brainerd as manager. There are like teams in Ware, Three Rivers, Greenwich, Enfield, and Belchertown, and games will be arranged with these teams. A subscription paper is being circulated for the support of the team.

The Young Men's Christian Association held their annual meeting Tuesday evening at Cushman Hall. This being the last meeting of the year, refreshments were served. A number of friends of the society were present. The chapter has closed the second year of its existence successfully and there are about 30 members, composed of town and Cushman Hall students.

The men of the Methodist church have formed an Oxford Chapter which will be connected with the Methodist brotherhood throughout the country. Officers were elected as follows: President, F. M. King; first vice president, Frank Rees; second vice president, Charles Grout; third vice president, William Charles; secretary, H. Billings; treasurer, Myron E. Wright. The vice presidents will serve as an executive committee, the first having charge of the social and religious work, the second the membership of the chapter and the third the visiting.

It is expected that within a short time E J. Hughes will erect a new block on the corner of Main and Cushman streets, where the lunch cart owned by L. H. Martin now stands The structure will be two stories high, extending over Chapman's drug store and possibly over E. C. Bradway's newsroom. The upper story will be used for a hall; the ground floor will contain two stores. With this addition and the other property owned by Mr. Hughes on Main street it will make a large block. The dimensions of the block upstairs will be 40 by 50 feet. J. J. Lynch will have charge of erecting the structure. A small hall is needed badly in Monson. The town has a large hall, but it is too expensive to hire for the many small gatherings and dances that are generally held during the winter.

The first anniversary concert and ball of Wiseman Court, M. C. O. F., on Monday evening was well attended and a success socially, music being furnished by Collins & Heffernan's orchestra of Springfield. The elaborate decorations on stage and in the selectmen's room, which was fitted up as a reception room, were greatly admired by all present. Among the many out-of-town guests were: High Chief Ranger and Mrs. Bonning of Boston, High Secretary-Treasurer Major and Mrs. Leonard of Boston, High Medical Examiner Dr. and Mrs. Hanley of Whitman, High Senior Conductor Harrigan of Worcester, Deputy Catharine Leonard, and Miss Fitzgerald of Springfield, Past High Chief Ranger Murphy and Mr. D. E. Murphy of Brockton, Mrs. Charles Bouning of Malden, Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Coleman of Boston, and many other guests from Palmer, Ware, and the villages. Chapman of Monson catered.

Academy Notes.

The baseball team will play the Hitchcock Free Academy at Brimfield next Monday afternoon.

Mrs. M. M. Patch of Groton has been the guest of her son, Prof. R. S. Patch at Cushman Hall this last week.

Miss Alice M. Hall, a former teacher at the Academy, has been the guest of Miss Greta Merrick this past week.

A practice game was played with the Independents last evening on Flynt's Park, the Academy team winning by a score of 17 to 4.

The ball game which was to have been played with South Hadley Falls was cancelled last Saturday on account of the storm.

"As you like it" is to be presented next Friday evening in Memorial Hall by the Amherst College Dramatic Club. This club has presented this in Pittsburg, New York, Boston, Baltimore and Springfield. The papers in these different cities speak most favorably of the company, claiming the play to be one of the most creditable of any given by a college dramatic society. The cast is very well made up and the costumes and scenery appropriate. The proceeds of this play will go towards the graduation expenses of the senior class, and the tickets are in the hands of the students and will be on sale at Bradway's newsroom. From the interest shown at the present date, it is expected there will be a full house.

THREE RIVERS.

Kuss—Murdock.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kuss of Palmer Road Wednesday night, when their daughter, Emma, was united in marriage to George Murdock of Gilbertville. Rev. C. W. Williams, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Palmer, performed the ceremony, the Episcopal service being used. The ceremony was performed under an arch of flowers. The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with Irish point lace, and carried a bouquet of 22 bridal roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Martha Kuss, a sister of the bride, who wore a gown of light blue silk and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The best man was Lewis Murdock, a brother of the groom. The dining-room was tastefully decorated with evergreen. After the ceremony a reception was held, a lunch being served. Mr. and Mrs. Murdock took an early morning train for Worcester, Boston and Eastern Massachusetts Friends and relatives were present from Brattlehoro, Vt., Amherst, Gilbertville, Palmer, Springfield and Three Rivers. Mr. and Mrs. Murdock will make their home with the bride's parents.

Rescuing a Camel.

The camel has been called the "ship of the desert." Like the ship, he may be capsized, and in that predicament he is helpless. His manner of lying down to rest is to fold his legs beneath his body. If he happens to roll upon his side he cannot recover his feet again. This infirmity of the animal is mentioned by the Count de Leslain in the account of his journey, "From Pekin to Sikkim:"

"The caravan was made up of camels. I had brought some new ones and had no idea of taking any other animals into a country largely composed of loose sand. An amusing incident marked the beginning of our march. One camel, awkward as they all are, managed to tumble into a ditch of thick mud between the road and a wheatfield. When once fallen a camel can only get up again if it can arrange its feet conveniently under it and if the ground is nearly flat.

"In this case it was not so. The animal lay with all four feet in the air, perfectly resigned and incapable of a single movement to help itself. To draw it out took more than half an hour and required the united efforts of many men with cords passed under the camel's back."

Welcoming the Traveler.

I have always had a good opinion of the enterprise of the life insurance agent. It has seemed to me that the busy bee is a lazy ne'er-do-well compared with him. Recently this opinion has been strengthened.

An old colored servant living in a neighboring family made his first trip away from home and visited relatives in New York.

On his return to Louisiana he was asked what he did while in the north.

"Well, 'mong uddah t'ings I done tuk out a life insurance policy fo' fi' hun'ed dollahs."

"Why, what on earth do you want with a life insurance policy? You have no wife or children?"

"Dat's what I done tol' him, but I had t' take it, all de same. De agent man, he met me at de boat landin', an' he said I'd haf t' have one or he'd sen' me back home. He warn't gwine fo' t' 'low me t' land if I didn't buy one. Dey don't 'low no one in New Yawk 'less dey has a 'suhance policy!"—Woman's Home Companion.

They were trying an Irishman charged with a petty offense in an Oklahoma town when the judge asked:

"Have you any one in court who will vouch for your good character?"

"Yis, your honor," quickly responded the Celt. "There's the sheriff there."

Whereupon the sheriff evinced signs of great amazement.

"Why, your honor," he declared, "I don't even know the man."

"Observe, your honor," said the Irishman triumphantly—"observe that I've lived in the county for over twelve years an' the sheriff doesn't know me yit! Ain't that a character for ye?"—Kansas City Star.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Palmer Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Palmer citizen says:

W. E. Griffin, living on Park street, Palmer, Mass., says: "I hurt my back about two years ago and after that experienced considerable trouble from my kidneys. There was a dull pain in my back and it was often impossible for me to get about at all. The kidney action was very irregular, at times the secretions being too frequent and copious, while again scanty. My general health was affected and when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised so highly I procured a box from Lynde and Gould's drug store. This remedy acted just as represented and gave me prompt relief. I continued its use a short time and all symptoms of kidney trouble disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

What Happened.

The stout man on the back platform declined to agree with the conductor. The conductor thought he hadn't paid his fare. The stout man was of the contrary opinion.

They exchanged harsh words over the matter.

"I gave you a nickel when I got aboard," said the stout man.

"I haven't taken a nickel on this trip," said the conductor.

The stout man grew very red. His hair seemed to bristle.

"That's just enough of this," he growled. "I don't want to have any trouble with you. I had trouble with a conductor once. I'd hate to tell you what happened."

The conductor drew back a little and made no further attempt to collect the stout man's fare.

But when the stout man was about to alight from the car at the Pennsylvania crossing, the conductor's curiosity was too much for him.

"Say," he asked, "what happened when you had that trouble with the other conductor?"

The stout man looked back.

"I was in the hospital six weeks," he mildly answered.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A New Way of Settling Accounts.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

John and Martin Stokes, brothers, were in business together for many years. They made money, but when John died Martin found great difficulty in settling up the business. John's oldest son Peter, fearing that his uncle would absorb the dead partner's interest, bothered and delayed his uncle in such fashion that, a financial panic coming on, what was left of the firm's assets was so entangled that it could only be liquidated after a patient management. Martin Stokes, breaking down in health, turned the whole matter over to his nephew and left for parts unknown.

Ten years later he reappeared, a sickly looking old man, but with some appearance of having prospered. Peter Stokes had meanwhile saved some $20,000 from the wreck, half of which, of course, belonged to his uncle. But Peter furnished accounts to show that the firm had been insolvent. His uncle looked them over, studied them and handed them back to his nephew with the remark:

"I'm sorry, Peter, that you got nothing out of it. But, after all, I may not have been away so long for nothing. I have no children to enjoy what I have accumulated and have determined to leave it to you and your sisters. I will place it in a safety deposit company's vault and tell you where I keep the key. After my death you can unlock the box containing the securities, and they will be yours without any will and testament on my part. All I ask from you is a bare pittance so long as I live, which will be at most but a few years."

He took a long, fat envelope from his pocket sealed with his own seal and wrote on it, "I give this property to my nephew, Peter Stokes, and his sisters, Lydia and Grace Stokes." The words bore that day's date and was signed by the donor.

"This plan," he said, "leaves at my death nothing to be settled. By a will an estate must be liquidated the same as a business. And you know that in winding up a business there is a lot of shrinkage. You have done all the work in settling the affairs of John & Martin Stokes with no pay. Whatever there may be between us of a business nature connected with these affairs is settled now by this transaction. The envelope goes into a box of the Fidelity Trust company, and here is the key on my ring."

The nephews and nieces accepted the gift and the conditions with alacrity. The envelope was fat enough to contain some twenty or thirty bonds, or if the property was in stocks there might be twice as many certificates.

Those to whom the gift was made desired their uncle to come and live with them. This he declined to do. He rented a little cottage, where he kept house by himself. He said nothing to his nephew or nieces about the payment of the rent, but it was paid by them. He said nothing about supplies, but they opened accounts for him at provision stores, though they secretly instructed the tradesmen to keep them posted as to the amount the old man was being credited with. At the end of the first year Peter Stokes figured up the amount expended at about $600. But the owners of the estate, which could not be used till after the donor's death, fearing that if they appeared niggardly the donor might take back his gift, expended for him an additional $400, making a total of $1,000. This they considered keeping within bounds.

The old man remained for a time very delicate, indeed, the doctor's bills amounted to several hundred dollars. His loving nephew and nieces begged him to come and live with them, that they might the better administer to his comfort. But he said he didn't wish to be a burden on any one, assuring them that they would not be the loser by a cent for what money they expended upon him. After the first five years his health became very good and remained so for three years, when he died rather suddenly. Before the old man breathed his last Peter Stokes figured up that the amount expended upon him had amounted to exactly $9,850. But there were funeral expenses to be paid amounting to about $150. However, since his uncle was dead, there would be no need to be extravagant in this respect, and he resolved to cut the amount down to $75.

The first thing Peter did when his uncle was pronounced dead was to take his key ring from his pocket and, detaching the safety deposit key, start for the trust company. His sisters exacted a promise that he would not open the envelope till the day after the funeral, the same as in case of wills. Bringing the packet home, he locked it in his desk and waited.

The morning after the funeral the family gathered in the library, locked the door, took out the envelope and tore it open. Within were folded pieces of blank parchment, on one of which was written:

Martin Stokes in account with Peter Stokes: To expenditures for said Martin Stokes, $10,000; to amount due from settlement of the business of John & Martin Stokes, $10,000. Account balanced and closed.

Peter read this posthumous message and, exclaiming "Sold!" tore up the parchment, threw it on the floor and stamped on it. His sisters, exclaiming "The old ingrate, the old fraud!" wept a few bitter tears of chagrin. But that was the end of the matter, for they could not recover any of the money they had spent on their uncle, whose adroitness had given him his own, which he needed in his old age.

Oriental Rugs.

The principal types of oriental rugs are Caucasian, Turkish, Persian, Turkoman and Indian. Sir George Birdwood is of the opinion that, whatever their type of ornamentation may be, a deep and complicate symbolism, originating in Babylonia and possibly India, pervades every denomination of oriental carpets. Thus the carpet itself prefigures space and eternity and the general pattern or filling, as it is technically termed, the fleeting finite universe of animated beauty. Every color used has its significance, and the design, whether mythological or natural, bestial or floral, has its hidden meaning. The very irregularities, either in drawing or coloring, to be observed in almost every oriental carpet and invariably in Turkoman carpets are seldom accidental, the usual deliberate intention being to avert the evil eye and insure good luck.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A SCOTCH MARRIAGE.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Billy and Fan were two New York waifs. Billy was about nine and Fan was about seven, though there was no record of the birth of either and no parents about to testify in the cases. What had become of their fathers and mothers does not pertain to the story. Billy remembered that once when he was put into the public schools for a few months he was known as William Burke. Fan had a spelling book in which was written Fanny Shaw.

Billy and Fan met one hot summer night in City Hall park, where each had gone for the purpose of sleeping on the benches. Billy had a nickel in his pocket, and Fan was crying because she was hungry. Billy took her over to a vender of waffles on Park row and appeased her hunger. This was the seed of love—a kindness. It was not planted in a gentleman's garden, but any soil to produce fruit requires manure.

So it came about that Billy and Fan became chums. There were societies organized to take care of stray children, and Billy and Fan were dreadfully afraid that some of these societies would take them and separate them. Billy confided his fears to his friend, MacCluney, who drove a cab. MacCluney facetiously told him that to prevent this they had better get married. Billy took the advice in earnest and asked how the knot could be tied.

"Ol'm a Scautchman mesel'," replied the cabman. "In Scautland if two people stand up before a third and says they marries, that ties 'em."

"S'pose Fan and I stand up before you and say that?" said Billy.

The cabman laughed, and Billy went off and called Fan, who was selling papers at the time. The two returned and asked for a "Scautch" marriage. MacCluney, thinking it a good joke, asked the necessary questions and, having received affirmatory answers, with a guffaw pronounced them man and wife.

But the "Scautch" marriage didn't save them from the societies. One night when they were sleeping in a coal yard a band of slummers came down on them and carried them off. They protested that they were married, which brought a smile to the faces of their abductors, but received no further notice. After all, they were separated.

Billy was sent off to a community of farmer boys. Fan was provided with parents by adoption. Both grew up in the west, Billy as a tiller of the soil, Fan as the daughter of a storekeeper in a country town. Billy, though he would not have forgotten his wife, would have forgotten that her name was Shaw had he not held on to the spelling book with the name written on the fly leaf. There were just as many tears shed by both for months after they were torn apart as if they had been children of wealth. At first both sighed for the parks, the coal and lumber yards, sheds and other places where they had slumbered, not because they had been comfortable, but because they had been together in these retreats. As they grew older they conceived a horror of this part of their past, but they did not forget each other. Billy grew to manhood with one idea. He would "save up" to enable him to regain his wife. Fan grew to womanhood wondering what had become of her pal. And, remembering the "Scautch marriage," when she was old enough to understand what it meant it made Billy an object of great importance to her. She was continually dreaming of what he was like as a youth, wondering where he was and if she would ever meet him.

But Fan grew to be twenty-four years old, and there was no sign of Billy. She had several proposals of marriage, but answered all suitors alike—that she was married already. One of them asked a lawyer if there was anything in such a marriage. He received the reply that only the courts could tell, but so long as neither claimed the other there would be nothing illegal in either marrying some one else.

One day a man drove up to Fan's home in a buggy and asked for a young woman named Frances Shaw. Fan was sweeping at the time, with a towel over her hair. She tried to get upstairs, but was too late. The man approached her and said:

"Fan!"

"Are you Billy?"

"Yes."

"How did you know me?"

"I wouldn't have known you if I hadn't known you were here. As it is I see a resemblance to my little"—

He took her by the hand. She turned her face away, but did not withdraw the hand.

—"wife," he added.

Billy had bought a farm, and as soon as settled upon it he had written to New York asking information as to where Fan had been sent. The records of the society that had provided her with a home showed where that home was, and since Fan had remained in it there was no trouble in finding her.

There was a new, but very short, courtship and a new marriage, just to be sure that they were legally married, and Billy and Fan settled themselves on his farm.

The story shows that, however high or low we are in the sphere of created beings, there is one motive power in us all, spiritually as well as physically—the human heart.

A Friend In Need.

About half an hour had been expended by the bashful young man in a series of advances and retreats, and little Johnny's cramped position behind the sofa was becoming somewhat painful.

"I wish I dared"— the young man commenced on a new attack, when the couple were electrified by an impatient exclamation behind them: "Aw, make a break! She's dead easy!"—Brooklyn Life.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R. F. D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

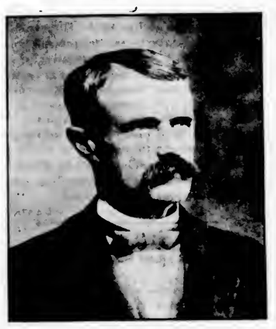
PALMER MAN SUGGESTED.

William H. Brainerd for State Highway Commission.



IS WELL QUALIFIED FOR POSITION.

Death of J. H. Manning Makes Vacancy On the Board. Man From This Section Natural Choice.

The death of John H. Manning of Pittsfield, member of the board of state highway commissioners, which occurred Wednesday evening, brought out immediate suggestion of the name of William H. Brainerd of Palmer as his successor.

Mr. Brainerd is not new in public service and his qualifications for the position are many and readily recognized by all who know him. It is natnral that someone from this section of the state he selected, and there can be no douht of Mr. Brainerd's fitness.

The work of the commission is of vast importance to the state. Engineering skill as well good judgment and a judicial temperament are required. These qualifications Mr. Brainerd possesses in an unusual degree. He is especially well known throughont Hampden county through his nine years' service as county commissioner.

Mr. Brainerd's career as an engineer began when, as a young man, he was a member of the government party which surveyed public lands in Minnesota and the Dakotas. The town of Brainerd, Minn., is named for him.

As a county commissioner Mr. Brainerd gained experience in a line of public service which would be of great value to a member of the highway commission and he also has especial knowledge of other matters with which the commissioners have to deal. He was the engineer in the construction of the Springfield and Eastern trolley lines and worked out for the city of Springfield the plans in connection with the Belchertown watershed which gave the city an important addition to its water supply.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Started Tuesday Morning With Unexpected Amount of Work.

The free delivery of mail in the village of Palmer, which has been in preparation several months, was begun Tuesday with two deliveries a day over the entire territory and an extra one at noon in the business section. While the system is not yet working as smoothly as it will when all the rough corners are rounded off and the carriers and people get better acquainted with each other and the system as a whole, Postmaster Shaw thinks it is going along with few apparent imperfections and that even these will be done away with soon. The amount of mail taken ont by the carriers has surprised even the post office officials; it makes a much bigger bundle than would be supposed. There is likely to be more rather than less of it as time goes on and persons who are not now receiving mail at their homes decide to do so. In this connection Postmaster Shaw wishes to suggest that persons advise their correspondents of their street and number, and have them—so far as possible—put these on letters addressed to them; this will be particularly advisable in the case of visitors in town, as otherwise they will not be known and their mail will be held in the post office.

The boxes for the mail collection were put in place Tuesday afternoon, and are located as follows: No. 1, corner Main and King streets; 2, Knox and Highland; 3, Park and Thorndike; 4, Pleasant and Walnut: 5, Park and Central; 6, School and Park; 7, Pearl and Pleasant; 8, Dublin and South Main; 9, Main and Church; 10, Central and Main; 11, Main, at electric car waiting room: 12, State avenne, opposite residence of D. F. Holden. The first collection will be at 5 30 in the morning, when everything deposited throngh the previous evening will be gathered up. Two other collections will be made during the day, but the exact hours are not yet fixed. In addition to the above, another collection will be made about 7 p. m. from box 11, when the carrier on that route returns to the post office by way of Bridge street. At the post office the carriers' window will be open from 7 to 8 in the evening for the accommodation of any who may prefer to get late mail there instead of waiting for the morning delivery.

Water street is the only street in the village which is not served by the delivery, the reason given by the government being a lack of street lights and sidewalks. The residents naturally desire the service, and think, as long as this is one of the oldest streets in the village, that the time has come for it to have some recognition in the way of improvements.

PALMER TOWN LEAGUE.

Two Games Monday, With Unfortunate Occurrence at One.

The initial games in the Palmer town league were played Monday with an attendance which seems to indicate good support in the future. The first game was at Three Rivers in the morning, with the Bondsville team. At the beginning of the seventh inning, with the score 10–3 in favor of Three Rivers, Bowler of the Bondsvilles hit to right field and reached third base, where the umpire declared him safe. Three Rivers claimed he was out at third and Rogers objected to pitching any more, even under protest, and the game was forfeited to Bondsville. The score:

Three Rivers 0, Bondsville 9.

THEIR GRAVES DECORATED.

Memorial Day Exercises of L. L. Merrick Post.

ADDRESS BY REV. C. H. RICKETTS.

Usual Program Followed. Cemeteries Visited, Dinner in Memorial Hall by Corps.

The members of L. L. Merrick Grand Army post were duly appreciative of the fine weather of Monday—Memorial Day. Bright and sunny without being too warm, the day was all that could have been wished.

The post met at their hall in the morning and carried out the usual program. Special electric cars were taken to Three Rivers, where the graves of departed comrades were decorated, prayer being offered by Rev C. B. McDuffie. Those in the French Catholic cemetery in this village were also decorated, and those at the Four Corners, where Rev. F. W. Gibbs offered prayer. St. Thomas' Catholic cemetery in Thorndike was also visited. Returning to Palmer, prayer was offered by Rev. F. S. Brewer and the numerous graves in this cemetery decorated. Here also was held the service to the unknown dead and the monument erected last year decorated; in this service the army nurses were remembered. From the cemetery the march was to Memorial Hall, where dinner was served by the Woman's Relief Corps.

The exercises in the hall began at 2 in the afternoon. The quartette which furnished the singing at the cemeteries in the morning—Stephen G. Clark, F. L. Jones, Burton Rose and James Summers—rendered a selection and H. E. W. Clark, patriotic instructor of the post, read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. An original poem, written 20 years ago for a special occasion, was read by Mrs. Susan W. Coleman. There was a reading, "Memorial Day," by Miss Grace Thompson, and Miss Lillian Lyon sang Kipling's "Recessional;" D. L Bodfish read a poem, "Who Marches Next Memorial Day." There were remarks by Mrs. D S. Davis, formerly of Palmer and now aid to the department commander of the Woman's Relief Corps of Massachusetts, by Mrs. L. E. Carpenter, Past President of the local corps, and Mrs. Lillian Parkhurst, the present president.

The speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Norwich, Ct., a former pastor of the Congregational church in Thorndike. He began his Memorial Day address by stating that the view he once had from Arlington Heights seemed to emphasize two facts of fnndamental importance in our national history. The city of Washington with its teeming thonsands, not as an isolated idea, but as the great political nerve center of a mighty nation, contained one of those ideas. The consecrated dnst carefnlly preserved in the Silent City of Arlington contained the other idea. They stand related in inverted proportion: as the living city increases in population, wealth and fame, the dead ever approaches nearer to the burial formula, "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dnst to dnst."

The language nsed is figurative bnt expressive of the two ideas that Memorial Day awakens: the greatness of the living and the immortality of the dead. The speaker then reviewed our rapid national advancement since our release from the iron grip of slavery, and how the center of population has been moving along its western pathway until it is nearly coincident with the geographical center; how our cities in every featnre of civic life had made greater advancement in the last half century than many of the Orient and the Continent of Europe in the last thousand years. He contrasted the ridicule of English papers when the first issue of U. S bonds were offered for sale in the London markets with the cordon of police necessary to keep the buyers back five years later. Emphasis was pnt on the fact that every great factor of our present strength as a nation received either its birth or immortal baptism in a terrible disrnption of the Civil war. This greatness has been paid for out of the rich treasnry of human life. The price paid for release from slavery—the starting point of our present national importance—was not primarily silver and gold, but sacrifice, seen in the fact that the call to duty did not appeal to penal and panper institntion, but went straight to the farm, the connting-room, the workshop and the university. The sacrifice was seen in taking those so much needed in the other pursuits of life.

What does it all mean, this marching to the low strains of subdued music in our cemeteries, this placing of garlands on the soldier's grave, this stopping of the wheels of traffic, the noise of the abuttle, and the close of the schools. It means the tribnte paid by an enlightened people to the display of patriotism in the assertion of their civil rights and political integrity. The speaker warned his hearers against the natural temptation to make the personnel of the soldier the main issne involved. Memorial Day has nothing to do with individualism. It is not a question whether one soldier was better or braver than another soldier, but rather what did the going forth mean to the soldier? What did it mean to the brother, with added burdens to bear, who remained at home? To say that the dead soldier was more distinguished than the dead civilian who rests by his side is to introduce class distinctions that wonld sound the death knell of what we have always contended for absolnte political equality. As long as the spirit of the Grand Army shall live the attempt to establish class distinctions on the American soil will not be successful.

Three ways were mentioned in which patriotism, brought ont in the Civil war, has contributed to the nation's glory. First, it has been the golden thread running through our history binding past and present into organic unity We look back with admiration to the men of iron who founded New England. Sometimes they are called hard and narrow, but no one has yet called them weaklings, if they had been they could not have imparted those iron atoms to their descendants. "Like prodnces like" in nations as well as in individnals and plants. The pollen white birches never make white oaks. Because early New England had such men, Lexington and Concord were possible a century and a half later. Nathaniel Greene and Israel Pntnam are the political descendants of William Brewster and Miles Standish. Because the Revolntion had such a man as the author of the Declaration of Independence the Civil war could prodnce the immortal Lincoln. Because Washington was a tremendous fact Grant became a possibility. The same political mother that gave birth to Farragut has crowned a Dewey with immortality. It

BOSTON, June 2, 1909.

Beef and politics have been mixed in legislation this week. Inevitably, therefore, the stronger political party won. Henceforth there is no doubt that good Republican beef must be eaten by the Democrats, if they eat any at all. Perhaps this may seem like cramming beef down their throats (presumably not tuberculous beef) hut, considering the high price of beef and all other meats, he must be a chronic kicker who objects to the method of getting his beef down his throat, as long as he gets it down at all. Gov. Draper has become identified with the policy that it is safe to sell meat according to the United States law, which was practically what was in force before the recent sensation and is the same, in effect, as is secured by the hill which has just finished its passage of the Legislature. Hence Democratic leaders saw politics in it, and, of course, Republican leaders saw that they must make a political defense. It was inevitable, nnder the circumstances, that the Governor of the United Sates law and the Republican majority should win. The hill went through the Senate after much discussion. It took its first stage in the House without debate, bnt with notice that the scrap would come on the second debatable stage. Curiously enough, the main contention was between two doctors. Dr. Coleman of Nantucket, Republican, argued that tuberculosis in even a gland might be carried by the blood to any part of the system; therefore any meat whatever from an infected animal was dangerous. But Dr. Oliver of Athol, also Republican, argued that Dr. Coleman's ideas were ridiculous, and he told how nature builds little sacs aronud the bacilli so that it is impossible for them to get into the circnlation. He insisted that an animal might have bacilli in a gland and the meat be perfectly healthful. The Democratic bill of Mr. Duane of Waltham, requiring the destruction of the entire carcass, even if a slight taint of tuberculosis were found in any part of it, was thrown out by Speaker Walker on a point of order by Mr. Bishop of Newton, who led the debate for the bill, that as the Governor's message referred to beef alone and Mr. Duane's bill included other kinds of meat, the bill was broader than the subject matter upon which it was based. Speaker Walker also said that the bill could not be amended to meet the point of order, nor could the point be withdrawn. Then Mr. Duane tried to kill the original bill, but was overwhelmingly voted down and could not get a rollcall.

TO ABOLISH BRIDGE.

Special Town Meeting Coming to Consider State Highway Proposition.

The selectmen of Palmer and Monson were in conference Wednesday evening over the question of abolishing the Hastings bridge, so called, near the wire mill on the road to Wilbraham. If the bridge is moved a short distance down the stream the state highway commission proposes to take the highway and straighten it so as to bring it into a straigbt line, doing away with a sharp and dangerous curve at the foot of a hill close to the bridge. One end of the bridge is now located in each town, and if the proposed change is made it will be wholly withiu Palmer territory. If the change is made the state highway commission proposes to pay for half the cost of the new bridge, the two towns to pay the balance. Monson has secnred legislatitive permission to pay her part, and a special town meeting will be called to see if the voters will agree. By so doing the town will be forever relieved from any expense of maintaiuing the structure. A special town meetiug will be held in Palmer June 12 to take action in the matter.

Autolst's Unfortunate Experience.

C. A. LeGro, who started Tuesday on an auto trip to Boston and other points in the eastern part of the state, had an unfortunate experieuce in Worcester. He was passing an electric car which was comiug from the opposite direction but had stopped, when a boy about 9 years old alighted from the car and passing around the rear stepped directly in front of Mr. LeGro's auto. He saw the boy come from behind the car aud tried hard to avoid hittiug him, turning his machine into the gutter aud smashing portions of it against a telephone pole. The mud guard of the machine struck the boy in the groin and he was thrown down, being severely hurt on the side of the right thigh and groin. The boy was taken at once to the city hospital.

Making Map of Railroad Property.

A party of surveyors, which has been at work west of Bridge street along Main street and the railroad land for about a week, has been the cause of mucb questioning as to their intents and purposes. It has been learned that they are in the employ of the Boston and Albany railroad aud are engaged in making a map of the company's holdings in that section. There has beeu trouble in the past in determining the exact bounds, old deeds not being as definite as they might be, and in the present work measnrements have been taken of land and houses on both sides of the street as far west almost as the Point of Rocks. It is understood also that the work has something to do with the proposed rebuilding of the Ware River roundhouse, a portion of which recently fell in.

He thougbt it possible to turn into a driveway at the left, but saw two little girls playing tbere as be started to turn the horse, so instead turned the animal to the right, running the buggy into a tree. It was wrecked and both men were tbrown some distance. The faot that with the installation of free postal delivery it takes two cents to deliver a letter in Palmer was evidently not known to many or became overlooked by those who had been aware of the requirement, for quantities of local letters were mailed Tuesday—the first day of the delivery — with only a one-cent stamp as formerly. Where the sender was known the letters were returned for sufficient postage, bnt where they were not the letters were forwarded and the additional cent collected of the recipient

WARE.

Wished To Buy Wooden Legs.

John Harrison of Pine street was arrested Monday afternoon abont 3 by Chief of Police Manrice Fitzgerald for illegal keeping of intoxicating liqnors. The chief, with Officer T. H. Rennison and Special Officer Oliver Denis, armed with a search warrant, snrrounded the building occupied by Harrison and the chief made an entrance throngh the front door, causing a considerable commotion, there being several men beside Harrison in the room. The police seized a qnart of whisky, a demijohn partly filled with liqnor, one empty beer keg and another containing two or three gallons, besides a number of glasses, all of which were taken to the station honse. Harrison was released on bail later in the day in the sum of $1000 and appeared in conrt Tnesday morning, when he pleaded guilty, stating that he wished to bny himself a pair of wooden legs. Judge Davis gave him a severe reprimand, and instead of imposing a fine, directed that Harrison be placed on probation for six months, and said at the end of that time the term of probation would be extended. DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The session has been very pleasant for most of the members. They have made many delightful acqnaintances and there are probably very few of them who have snffered from overwork. They keep their business along at home, for the most part, and there have been many agreeable featnres connected with their public service. In the case of most of them, the plan for next year is already arranged, who will retnrn and who will remain at home. Political plans are made early, with corporation help, in case of the senators.

Now that the bill for protection of milk prodncers is throngh both branches, it is to be noted again that its friends insist that it does not in the least lower the present milk standard; that the protection against adnlteration of milk, for which the original standard law was passed, is as efficient as ever; and that it is now possible for innocent producers of natural milk to sell it and not be made criminals, as the present law makes them. It is further to be possible to obtain legally milk for infants and invalids, which cannot be done nnder the present law. Mr. Reidy of Boston did the best he could to impress npon the House the danger to Boston infants from the bill, bnt Mr. Gates of Westboro, who was in charge of the bill, said that he had not studied it enough to know what it meant, and that his speech was to be taken merely as so much vocal exercise. The House vote of 85 for the bill to 17 against it showed what a one-sided contest it had become.

Boston Democrats are accepting the city charter bill, bnt protesting that it is against the desires of their people. "I am ready to take my medicine," said Senator Doyle of Snffolk this afternoon, "and take a good big dose of it, too, bnt I protest against ramming down the throats of the people of Boston a measnre which they dislike." Every Democrat knew that opposition was hopeless. The bill was on its first debatable stage in the Senate this afternoon, having passed the House, and there is no reason in sight why it will not finish its course and go to the Governor.

One of the state house frequenters says that there will be a candidate for the presidency of the Senate next session against President Treadway. Bnt this is not probable. This observer says that the vote on the Holyoke—Northampton bill shows that the president is unpopular. Bnt this does not follow. It is to be expected that the president will be given the second term which every presiding officer desires as a proof of his success.

If Your House Needs Painting Use S. W. P.

If your house, or barn, or buildings of any sort, need painting, don't put it off. Now—this spring—is the time to paint. A building that is kept protected from the weather, damp, sun and so on, will outlast by years a building that is allowed to go unpainted or poorly painted. It is much better business to say: the building you have than buy a new one. And besides this, well painted buildings are much pleasanter to live in, and bring a much higher price if you should want to sell, than dingy, unpainted buildings.

To arrive at the cost of painting, figure the number of square feet a gallon will cover, and how long it will last, not what the paint costs a gallon. Don't simply figure what it costs to paint your house or barn, but what it costs to keep it painted year in and year out. S. W. P. is honestly made of the best raw materials obtainable, and will prove more economical and satisfactory to the man who pays the bill than either hand mixed lead and oil or the so-called "cheap ready-mixed paint." We are agents for Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared (S.W.P.) Come in and we will be glad to discuss the paint and varnish question with you.

Monson News.

MRS. JULIA A. TALCOTT.

Sudden Death of Former Monson Resident in Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Julia A. Talcott of Monson died of apoplexy at the New York Central station in Rochester, N. Y., Tuesday evening while en route to her former home in Monson. She had been accustomed to spend the winters with her daughter, Mrs. Edwin A. Fisher, wife of City Engineer Fisher of Rochester, N. Y., and her summers at Monson. On this trip she was to be accompanied by her granddaughter, Mrs. Arthur Clements.

Though Mrs. Talcott had suffered a stroke of apoplexy six years ago she was in usual health and spirits on Tuesday. The end came instantaneously. She was born in Monson March 5, 1831, and came of Revolutionary ancestors. Her parents were Grace Heath and Erasmus Gates of Monson. She was married in 1851 to Lewis Demond Brakenridge of Ware, who died in 1866. In 1878 she was married to Nathaniel H. Talcott of Talcottville, Ct.

Besides Mrs. Fisher she leaves a son, William Henry Brakenridge of Waterbury, Ct., ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Services were conducted in Rochester yesterday afternoon at 4.30. Burial and brief services were in the Aspen Grove cemetery at Ware this morning at 10.30.

Memorial Day Exercises.

The Memorial Day exercises were held in the town hall Monday afternoon at 1 30 and were well attended. Prayer was offered by Rev. Abram Conklin and there were selections by an orchestra. Ex-Speaker John N. Cole of Andover gave an interesting address, saying in part: "I speak to-day especially to the men of the Grand Army. My message for all will be through my words to the veterans. I am not here to relate tales or anecdotes of the war, but will speak on three great epochs, namely, from the beginning of the nation, until 1850; second, the events leading up to the Civil War; third, the war, its greatness and achievement. Mr. Cole said Massachusetts had played an important part in the great struggle and had sent more than one in every six men of her whole population. He also brought out the greatness of individuals in the various states, mentioning such men as Lincoln, Grant, Sherman and Andrew, but he said the achievements of these men would have been little but for the men behind the guns. He compared the greatness of our navy in its present state with that in 1860 and pointed out with what pride we may now look upon our warships and how ready our men would be to serve the country. He said in closing that the most important thing, which was equal to that great struggle, was the war against municipal graft and great corporations, and ended with an exhortation for all to preserve the keynote of past success, namely, American manhood. Immediately following the services, the veterans, Sons of Veterans and about 30 school children marched to No. 1 cemetery, where 97 graves were decorated.

Gough—Clark.

St. Patrick's church was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday morning, when Miss Alicia B. Gough of Monson and Fred B. Clark of Ware were united in marriage by Rev. Thomas O'Keefe. The bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth Gough, sister of the bride, and John Clark of Ware, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride's dress was of white satin with a white tulle veil, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of pink silk and she wore a picture hat. A wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony at the bride's home on Mechanic street. There were many guests from out of town, coming from Springfield, Holyoke and Ware. A special car was chartered to convey the guests from Palmer, the wedding being one of the largest ever held in St. Patrick's church. Mr. and Mrs. Clark received many beautiful gifts. After a wedding trip they will make their home in Ware, where the groom is employed by the Otis Company. Mrs. Clark is a graduate of Monson Academy and is well known here in Monson.

Death of James Lewis.

James Lewis, 33, died suddenly at his home on Pearl street Monday evening after a short illness with acute diabetes. He was a native of Monson, and had lived here most of his life, with the exception of a few years spent in Troy, N. H. He was a stone mason by trade and was well known. He leaves a widow and two children in Troy, N. H., a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Lewis of Monson, three sisters, Mrs. William Marrott of Troy, Sadie and Emily of Monson, and three brothers, George, William T. and Charles, all of Monson. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 30, Rev. J. M. Gage officiating, and burial was in the No. 1 cemetery.

Painfully Injured.

Antonio Alonzo had a narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday while working on Mrs. Sarah Warren's house on Pease avenue. He is employed by J. S. Stewart and while working on a staging about ten feet from the ground, he fell striking on some building stone. His ribs were painfully bruised, but it is thought that he suffered no internal injuries.

The contract for the new bridge to be built on Bridge street has been awarded to the New England Contracting Company of Worcester, and the contract for one near the residence of Mr. Borgeson has been let to F. P. Berdlow Co. of Springfield. This bridge is to be made of reinforced concrete and will cost $900.

The public schools held a food fair and exhibition of their work in Memorial Hall last Wednesday evening, with a large attendance. A very pleasing entertainment was given by the children of the different schools. The proceeds of the affair are to be used towards buying suitable pictures and for other minor improvements for the various school buildings.

Among those who spent Memorial Day in town were Miss Margaret Cushman of Smith College, S. Arthur Holdridge of Springfield, Arthur S. Graves of the Training school Springfield, Mr. and Mrs Charles Ricketts of South Manchester, Ct., Miss Esther Robbins of Worcester, Miss Mildred Dustin and Henry Wentworth of Amherst, and Raymond McPherson of Boston.

The services, beginning next Sunday morning at the Universalist church, will be held at 10 45 instead of 10.30 as formerly. The Young People's Union is planning to hold a lawn party on the grounds of the parsonage Friday evening, the 25th. Arrangements are being made for a special patriotic service on the Fourth of July, this service being held in the Universalist church. The Sons of Veterans, Grand Army post and Woman's Relief Corps will participate.

The franchise granted to the trolley express company stated that after June 1st a central station should be established by the company, for the collection and the delivery of their goods, and that the car should also stop in front of places of business. Since the re-establishment of the service this spring, the car has stopped only in front of the stores and they have used the blacksmith shop of O. C. McCray as a general storehouse. The present system of delivering and collecting will not be changed.

Thomas Fitzpatrick, a weaver employed at the Somerset Woolen mill, was removed to the Mercy Hospital in Springfield Sunday evening. He had been ill at his boarding place on "the green" for several days and was believed to be suffering from hydrophia, having been bitten by a dog in Philadelphia three weeks previously. He paid no attention to the accident until taken ill. Dr. Weston of the hospital staff stated Sunday evening that Fitzpatrick was not suffering with hydrophobia, but from an attack with similar symptoms. The patient told him that he had had three attacks similar to it and that the dog bite had nothing to do with his illness.

Their Graves Decorated.

was the patriotism of the Civil War that joins the old Colonial and Revolutionary times with the quickened pulse of to-day.

Second, patriotism received an immortal impulse in the Civil War. A picture was here drawn of the typical home as the soldier left New England for the scene of war. It would seem that Kinkel, from the Fatherland, was looking into such a home when he wrote "The Soldier's Farewell." Before Lee surrendered more than 850,000 homes in mute accents had felt the refrain, "farewell, farewell." Other elements contributed to the immortality of that civil strife, and among them the heroic work of women, some of whom were compelled for the first time to do the manual labor of men. But theirs was not so much the sacrifice of labor as sympathy. Theirs was the life of tender solicitude. The howling of the night wind was translated to their sensitive natures as the cry of pain, and in every storm they could see the pale faces of loved ones appealing to home comforts. Thus they suffered because God made them sensitive. The Civil War brought out more heroes to whom scant justice has been given. Not enough has been said of the other boy who was compelled to stay at home. The New England farm, and the New England workshop had heroes in those dark days as well as the Southern battlefield and the Southern camp.

Third, this patriotism is seen in amalgamating the different races of our citizenship into organic, political unity. Free institutions may suffer from disunity or lack of cohesion. This danger is small where there is uniformity in traditions, manners, customs, and views of education, morality, and religion. The danger is great just in proportion as these fundamental ideas approach disruption as in Turkey and Austria. Political alarmists are surprised that we continue the rod of iron rather than the bag of sand considering the elements we have to unify. Our unity is preserved by a stronger bond than the personality of any monarch. That bond is Patriotism. The better class of foreigners who come among us are quick to imbibe the spirit of Americanism. It is the scum element, whether foreign born or native born, that we have to fear. The Civil War settled this question of nationality. Brave soldiers did not fight beneath the stars and stripes than those born in Ireland. No Grand Army man is ashamed of the names of Siegl and Rosecrans, names that point to the Fatherland. And the negro showed at Fort Pillow what he could do.

The speaker closed with a reference to the constantly-diminishing ranks of the old veterans. The Silent City now commands the major part of those who wore the blue and the gray. A picture was drawn of the Sweet Isle of Somewhere, where there will be no maimed limbs or impaired faculties, and where the hand of Infinite Love "would wipe away every tear from their eyes."

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Edward Knight was given a farewell party at the home of his uncle, A. F. Friend, by about 20 of his friends last week Thursday night. He was presented with a watch fob. Refreshments were served and the evening was spent in dancing and music. Mr. Knight has severed his connections with the Whiting paper company, where he has been employed for some time and will go to his home in Oxford.

BRIMFIELD.

Miss Alice Sawin entertained two college friends over Sunday, Miss Gilbert and Miss Beardsley.

Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Thayer of Boston have been guests at the hotel this week and visited their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Parker.

The executive committee of the H. F. A. alumni association met in the Academy building Monday evening. The date appointed for the triennial reunion is Thursday, August 26

The first entrance examinations for the Hitchcock Free Academy will be held Saturday, June 12. These will be for the junior class as the preparatory class will be discontinued.

Among the automobile parties at the hotel this week have been Charles S. Nichols, cashier, of the Salem Safe Deposit and Trust Co. with Mrs. Nichols, Loring Nichols and Miss Davis. Mr. Nichols is a leading financier and business man of Salem.

The J. Arthur Johnson, G. A. R. post of Sturbridge with the Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans attended church in Brimfield Sunday, Rev. Samuel Eaton preaching an appropriate discourse. After the service the visiting bodies with local veterans, citizens and school pupils decorated the soldiers' graves in the cemetery.

A very enjoyable and successful concert was given in the town hall Saturday evening by the Hitchcock Free Academy orchestra, conducted by Principal George F. Kenney. The orchestra was assisted by Albert A. Gove of Ludlow, flute, Master Charles Gove, violin, and Mrs. Kenney, piano. The members of the orchestra are: Earl Doyle, Leroy Jarett, first violins; James Kirby, William Mallaby, second violins; Munroe G. Tarbell, cornet; Gladys E. Munroe and Agatha M. Kirby, cellos; Veronica Kirby, piano and soprano soloist; Principal G. F. Kenney, leader and cellist. The orchestra had been trained by Mr. Kenney during the year and its first public performance reflected much credit upon the conductor and players. The solo parts were also very well rendered. There was a highly appreciative audience which included many alumni, and other places besides Brimfield were represented in the attendance. After the concert there was dancing, for which the orchestra played.

The church was decorated with bunting, purple and white lilacs, flowering dogwood and ferns. Only one death has occurred during the past year among the veterans, that of Jackson L. Garduer. Of the honorary members of the association, four passed away, Mrs O C Switzer, Mrs. E. L. Needham, Mrs. Porter Walbridge and Mrs. Orlando P Smith.

Beginning at the Beginning

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"I am a practical chap and believe in marriages made on common sense principles. What does a man want to go and get intoxicated on love potions for and then settle the most important matter in his life?"

This was my reply to Eggleston when he got off a lot of foiderol about love and sentiment and all that. I admit I was interested, for I was meditating a proposal myself. I felt very sure Lydia would have me. Why shouldn't she? I was a passable fellow; some property of my own; doing well in business; fairly educated and of good social position. That's the view I expected Lydia to take of me and a union with me, not whether she would decline me on the ground that I didn't get maudlin over her or she over me. The question was, Having a fairly good offer with a chance to settle down into matrimonial life, was she to accept it or run the risk of not getting another as acceptable? So I went to her and said:

"Miss Brinsley, I'm going to make you a proposition—namely, that we pass our lives together as man and wife till death do us part."

She looked at me out of a pair of steely eyes for a few moments and said:

"How about divorce?"

I've noticed that, no matter how composedly a man makes up his mind to deal with a woman, she straightway sets about to discompose him.

"The more common sense we put into a marriage the less likelihood there'll be of a divorce," I said.

"It is the only part of marriage in which there is a likelihood. Death is certain. Divorce is possible, sometimes probable. It is a contingency that should be provided for."

"It seems to me that the first question to be settled is whether you are prepared to enter upon matrimony with me. After that we can take up the provisions, if there are any."

"That's just like a man—always getting the cart before the horse. It seems to me that the provisions should be settled first. The marriage is merely a possible conclusion to them."

"Good gracious!" I exclaimed under my breath. I was not prepared to hear a woman speak of a proposition of marriage as a categorical syllogism.

"Suppose," I said, "that we leave divorce till the last of the provisions or, rather, contingencies and begin with something of more immediate concern."

"Well, what's your income?"

Again I winced, not so much at the question as at her cold blooded manner of asking it. However, I considered it an eminently proper one to ask and responded frankly:

"I have from investments $5,500."

"Real estate, bonds, stocks or what?"

This was getting irritating. I was becoming flustered.

"After all, I was right in the first place," I said, a bit sharply. "You expect me to lay bare all my affairs to you when you haven't given me the slightest intimation that if they are satisfactory you will accept me for a husband."

"I was not aware," she replied icily, "that I expected anything. I thought that you were the expectant person."

O heavens! Worse and worse! I sat feeling and doubtless looking like a fool. I took out my handkerchief and wiped my lips—they didn't need wiping—then dusted some specks off my coat collar, then crossed one leg over the other and said nothing. Neither did Lydia.

"I think," I said presently, "that I had better"—

"Begin all over?"

A desire to get even with her by saying something smart took possession of me. When a man tries to beat a woman by saying something smart he always gets deeper in the mud.

"Or drop the subject," I said, with some hauteur.

"You haven't taken it up yet," was her imperturbable reply.

What did she mean by this, I wondered. Haven't taken it up! I thought I'd very much taken it up.

"Perhaps you haven't understood," I said, "what I've been talking about."

"I dare say I haven't."

"Didn't I make myself plain?"

"That depends upon what you had to say."

I was getting more miffed every moment. I looked ominously at the door, but it didn't seem to frighten her. I rose. That didn't frighten her either.

"On reflection," I said, "I think my powers of stating things may be better adapted to some other intellect."

This broke me up completely. I stood stupidly looking down at my toes.

"Why don't you go and explain it to some nice man and let him come and tell it to me," she remarked.

There was nothing to be gained with this cool creature. But her coolness, the disappointment I suffered, everything, maddened me. I scouted my practical ideas. I would gladly have thrown myself at her feet and begged for pity, mercy, anything except this horrible monster that stood between us. But how could I jump from my position of a practical marriage arranger to a despairing lover? There was no hope. With a feeble attempt at indifference I went to the door.

Hearing a flutter behind me, I was about to turn when a pair of arms was flung about me, and I was held in a tight grasp.

"Come back," she laughed, "and begin anew. And this time at the beginning."

What was the beginning? A kiss.

The Greatest Success Known in Treating Rheumatism.

Uric-O Expells the Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid from the System, Insuring a Permanent Cure.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never free from the trouble. Uric-O seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure Rheumatism only.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gonld, and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Building, Syracuse, N. Y.

Before you make a contract for a covering for your building find out about Carpenter-Morton Roofing. It will not crack in cold weather, or soften up in hot weather. It gives you all the protection that it is possible to get and it is less expensive than any other high-grade Roofing material. Booklet free. T. D. Potter, Bondsville.

EVER HAVE IT?

If You Have, the Statement of This Palmer Citizen Will Interest You.

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips?

That's the home of backache.

It's caused by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Palmer People endorse this. Read a case of it:

Mrs. Thos. Edmonds, living on Dublin Street, Palmer, Mass., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with such good results about a year ago that recently when I was suffering from an attack of kidney trouble, I procured a box of this remedy from Lynde and Gould's drug store. I was bothered considerably by sharp, shooting pains in my back and a dull aching in my hips. I often felt sick all over and was subject to frequent chills. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and after a short use the trouble entirely disappeared. I feel that I owe a great deal to Doan's Kidney Pills."

A Bayou That Was Larger Than the Mississippi.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

There is a part of the present City Hall park in New Orleans which was formerly called the Oaks and was a famous dueling ground. Lying on the noted shell road to Lake Pontchartrain, not far from the city, yet deserted, it afforded a convenient spot for the duels so frequent among the creoles.

Often when two rivals wished to conceal the cause of their quarrel they would invent reasons, usually absurd. For instance, one would declare that the other's hair was red when it was raven black or that the sun revolved around the earth instead of vice versa.

It was during a winter somewhere about 1850 that Miss Caroline Dickinson, visiting her aunt, Mme. La Tour, in New Orleans, took the place socially by storm. Though beautiful, her character, sel, so to speak, in her charming manners, won the hearts of many of the young bloods of the Crescent City. Among them were Gaston L'Hommedieu, recently from Paris, and Eliot Whitford, whose father had originally gone there from Virginia. Neither could feel any confidence in having secured the lady's favor, but each was jealous of the other. The truth was that Miss Dickinson preferred Mr. Whitford.

One morning about 2 o'clock Mme. La Tour entered her niece's bedroom. They had been to some entertainment, had sat up late talking it over and had a few minutes before parted for the night. Miss Dickinson had begun to disrobe.

"My dear," said her aunt, "your uncle has just come in from the club with some news which may interest you. M. L'Hommedieu and M. Whitford are going to meet at 4 o'clock—dawn—at the Oaks, and you are the cause of the meeting."

"The news does interest me," replied the girl, with dismay. "Suppose one of them should be killed!"

"It would facilitate your making a choice between them," replied her aunt.

"They shall not fight on my account," replied Miss Dickinson. "I'm going on to the ground to stop them."

"Alone?"

"No, aunt; you are going with me."

An hour later a caleche driven by Mme. La Tour, containing the two women, was speeding along the shell road. The moon, which was three-quarters full, rendered the road less difficult to follow at night, though, being white, it was distinguishable at any time. Just as a faint streak appeared in the east the caleche entered the Oaks and pulled up near what had often been pointed out to Mme. La Tour as the dueling ground. Presently a carriage rolled up to the historic spot, followed by another, and by the early twilight two parties of men were seen conferring as to the placing of the principals in the coming fight.

"Who's the man with the box under his arm?" asked Miss Dickinson.

"Dr. Jules Rubidoux. He is always called upon on such occasions."

"Heavens! How horrible! What abominable customs you have here! And the man with the bundle of sticks—who is he?"

"Those are not sticks; they are rapiers. See, the principals are taking position."

The two women alighted and walked cautiously toward the duelists. The oaks still cast sufficient shadow to conceal their advance. Suddenly as there was a clash of steel Miss Dickinson, walking in advance of her aunt, appeared on the scene. Both contestants lowered the points of their rapiers and stood looking at her with astonishment.

"Gentlemen," she said, "may I ask the occasion of this meeting?"

There was no reply for a time; then one of the seconds stepped forward and, bowing profoundly, said:

"M. L'Hommedieu, mademoiselle, has asserted that the Seine is larger than the Mississippi. This M. Whitford considered an insult to our noble river and replied that the Bayou Lafourche is larger than the Seine. Thereupon M. L'Hommedieu in defense of la belle reviere of France challenged M. Whitford."

"I am astonished," said Miss Dickinson, "that two gentlemen should quarrel about such an absurdity. Of course the Seine is not larger than the Mississippi."

"Mademoiselle," said L'Hommedieu, "I accept your decision. If you also decide that the Bayou Lafourche is larger than the Seine, I will apologize to M. Whitford."

"And if I decide that the Seine is larger than the bayou?"

"That, mademoiselle, I should consider a great blessing."

"And this affair will cease?"

"That is for M. Whitford to say."

"And how would you decide that?" asked the lady, turning to Whitford.

"How would I decide that? Why, I should then feel obliged to enforce my opinion in favor of the bayou at the point of the sword."

"Nonsense!"

The two men, as if by mutual consent, raised their swords for the purpose of renewing the contest.

"One moment," said Miss Dickinson. "Cannot you gentlemen be induced to forego this encounter without my deciding the point of dispute?"

"No," replied both at once.

"Well, then," she said in an almost inaudible voice, "the bayou is larger than the Seine."

M. L'Hommedieu made a graceful apology to Mr. Whitford, and the same day the engagement of the latter with Miss Dickinson was announced.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Australia's First Theater.

The first recorded production of a play in Australia took place in June of the year 1789. It was called "The Recruiting Officer." The proceeds of the first pay night (some £20) went to the family of a man who had been drowned. In January, 1796, a rough and ready playhouse was opened, and the public had to pay a shilling a head for admission. The payments were made in kind, wheat, flour or rum taking the place of the usual currency.—London Standard.

A Cruel Insinuation.

Stern Old Lady—They tell me, madam, your husband is continually smoking dreadfully—

Young Woman (bursting into tears)—I don't believe it, your horrid old thing!

Old Lady (astounded)— What's the matter with the woman?

Officious Bystander—Her husband's dead.—Baltimore American.

Origin of Old Glory.

In the reminiscences of Lord Ronald Gower is found a story of the origin of the stars and stripes.

The "star spangled banner" of the American republic had its origin from an old brass on the floor of an ancient church in Northamptonshire. The brass covers the tomb of one Robert Washington and is dated 1622. On it appears the Washington coat of arms, consisting of three stars; with bars or stripes beneath them. On the first day of the new year, 1776, the thirteen united colonies raised a standard at Washington's headquarters.

This introduced the stripes of the present, but retained the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew on a blue ground in the corner. In 1777 the crosses were replaced by stars, as the Declaration of Independence rendered the retention of the English element unnecessary and inconvenient. In thus adopting the arms of his ancestors as his own distinctive badge Washington no doubt intended the flag merely as a private signal for his own personal following, but it was at once adopted as a national emblem. Probably there is not another case in the world's history in which the private arms of an obscure family have attained such world-wide eminence and repute.

Economical.

She—I'm going to give you back our engagement ring. I love another. He—Give me his name and address. She—Do you want to kill him? He—No, I want to sell him the ring.—Pick-Me-Up.

Milk Toast and Cheese.

Make some rich milk toast and spread out on a flat dish. Cover with a thick layer of grated cheese and put in the oven till the cheese melts and browns.—Harper's Bazar.

A Sponger.

"The worse of Spongely is he never pays anything," said Grabbles.

"Oh, doesn't he, though? Ask him to pay you a visit and see," retorted Hicks.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from a female weakness and disease, and I could not stand more than a minute at a time. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. One day I was reading how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it. Before I had taken one bottle I was better, and now I am completely cured."—LENA V. HENRY, Route No. 3, Adrian, Ga.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

We never publish a testimonial letter without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we are sure it is genuine. Surely such valuable testimony, therefore, should create confidence in the minds of suffering women.

KILLED BY THE CARS.

Body of Unknown Man Found On Track Near Warren.

BODY CUT IN TWO BY THE WHEELS.

Victim Had Evidently Been Riding "Blind Baggage" on Express And Fell Off.

The body of an unknown man was found upon the tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad, about two miles east of Warren, Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock, having been cut in two by a passing train

The body was discovered by Charles E Comins, who was on his way to Camp Rio, which is across the river, and it was lying with the head and shoulders between the east-bound tracks and the lower limbs lying outside the track. Mr. Comins went to the house of Myron E Southwick and telephoned to Eugene Ritchie, telegraph operator at the depot, and it was arranged to have train No. 31, due in Warren at 3 19, stop and take the body, which was done, and it was removed to the Warren freight depot, where it was viewed by Medical Examiner E W. Norwood of Spencer The doctor declared it a case of accidental death and instantaneous, as the body had been cut in two by the wheels passing over it. It is unlikely that the engine struck the man, as he would naturally have been throwu from the track. The Chicago express, No. 42, which passes Warren, east bound, at 2 42 p. m., had passed the place less than 10 minutes before, and when it went through Warren at least two persons saw a person who answered the description of the victim, riding "blind baggage" between the tender and the baggage car. It is thought he must have fallen between the wheels and lay just where he fell. It is quite possible that he boarded the express at Palmer at 2 23 p m., and he may have quit work on some farm in the vicinity during the week.

The body was removed to the undertaking room of J. N. F. Quinlan in Warren, where it was held until Wednesday for identification and then was placed in the tomb in Pine Grove cemetery. Burial will not take place until next week, when it will be hurled in the town lot if not identified.

The man was evidently a Pole, about 25 years old, weighed about 160 pounds and was about five feet six inches tall. The only thing found in his pockets was a small clasp pocketbook containing $9

Polish Woman Saves Drowning Boy.

The seven-years-old son of John Madden of Ware fell into the Ware river while playing in a boat Tuesday afternoon and would have drowned but for the efforts of a Polish woman, who swam out and brought him to shore. He was unconscious, but was brought to his senses after about an hour's work by Dr. M. W. Pierson.

Synchronize.

When you're walking with a fellow
Don't take strides beyond his size;
Have regard for Little Shorty,
Step with him and synchronize.

When you're talking with a fellow
Don't appear supremely wise;
'Tisn't brotherly or helpful;
Truthful be and synchronize.

When the frets of life spoil tempers,
Don't fret worse and tyrannize;
Just remember folks are human,
Lend a hand and synchronize.

When your trusted man has blundered,
Don't tear 'round or black his eyes;
Recollect your own shortcomings,
Patient be and synchronize.

Have an eye for those in trouble,—
Downcast folks who've lost life's prize,—
Radiate warm, cheery sunshine,
Chirk them up and synchronize.

Deputy Sheriff Northrop has succeeded in locating the persons who recently placed stones and a railroad spike on the track on the electric road in the private land west of the town, and finds that the oldest of the party is only about eight years of age. It is probable that the youngesters wanted to see the cars smash the things placed on the track and had no conception of the possible damage which might result.

Probably Guilty Of Setting Fires.

Court So Finds in Cases Against John F. Lyman, Palmer Fireman Accused of Arson. Strong Line of Circumstantial Evidence.

John F. Lyman, who was arrested on Wednesday evening of last week charged with setting fire to a building in Palmer, had his hearing in the district court Monday. Four charges were brought against him; and he was found probably guilty in two, on a third examination was waived, and on the three he was held in the sum of $5000 for appearance before the grand jury in September; on the fourth case it was decided that the evidence was insufficient and he was discharged so far as it was concerned.

Lyman's long residence in the town—near half a century—and his wide acquaintance with men and affairs created much interest in the case outside of the fact that the supposed author of numerous recent fires was on trial, and the court room was filled to its fullest capacity. Mr. Lyman has been for years an employe of the electric company, installing wires, doing repair work and reading meters. He has been superintendent of the fire alarm system until a year ago, and was a member of the fire department, being engineer of the steamer. David F Dillon of Palmer had charge of the prosecution, under instructions from the selectmen, while James B. Carroll of Springfield appeared for Lyman. A stenographic report of the testimony was taken by Jennie Bray of Palmer.

The four charges were for setting a fire in the basement of the Eager block on Main street on the evening of May 26; of setting a fire in the basement of a house on North Main street, occupied by Dr. S. R Carsley, on the afternoon of May 26; of setting fire to the Converse barn on the afternoon of December 9, last; and with setting fire to the Converse barn on the afternoon of April 8 of this year.

Eager Block Fire.

The Eager fire was first taken up. Police Officer Timothy J. Crimmins was the first witness. About 10 15 on the evening of May 26 he was standing at the corner of Main and Central streets talking with Selectman George S. Holden when Lyman came from the west along Main street, passed them and went as far as the Lynde block, where he stopped in the shadow and stepped out two or three times as though watching. They started toward him and met him in front of Taylor's store, Lyman continuing to C. K Gamwell's store where he crossed the street to the Stone block (Stone's block adjoins the Eager block on the west); as he reached the corner a man went into the lunch cart close by, and after waiting for him to get inside Lyman went around the corner of the Stone block. Crimmins followed to the corner but could see nothing of Lyman. He then returned to the middle of the street, where he met Holden, then turned and walked to Bridge street, down Bridge to the rear of the Caryl block, and then in the rear of the blocks to Stone's block, where he saw the reflection of fire; he shot his revolver to attract attention and went to the lunch cart for help, telling someone to get a fire extinguisher; returned to the fire and met Holden coming from the other direction There was a high board fence with barbed wire on top at the back and east side of the Eager block; it was not more than three minutes after he saw Lyman go around Stone's block until he saw the reflection of the fire; he saw no one else until he saw Holden at the fire. Returning to Main street he met Lyman at the corner of the Stone block and placed him under arrest. Lyman asked: "What is this for?" and Crimmins replied: "For setting fires." Lyman said no more until on the way to the lockup, when he remarked; "I've done nothing." Later, at the lockup, in the presence of Chief Summers, Special Officer Thomas and Mr Holden, Lyman denied having been back of the Eager block at all that evening, claiming he had been at his office; denied having been in the Armour shed earlier in the evening; denied having been near also Carsley place in the afternoon, and also having been on the Monson bridge earlier in the evening. The blaze, when Crimmins saw it, was inside the building on the floor, but reaching nearly to the ceiling; it was under a six-pane window, and was composed of paper, boards, etc.

On cross examination be stated that he was the first one on the scene, and that the other doors and windows leading to the room in which the fire was were all closed and fastened Lyman, when arrested, seemed very uneasy, and had seemed so all through the earlier part of the evening, while on the street Re-direct: A half hour after the discovery of the fire the doors and windows were all fastened with the exception of the one above the fire.

George S. Holden's testimony was identical with the above to the point where Lyman started to cross Main street, when he dropped into Tufts' bowling alley for a cigar; on coming out he met Crimmins in the street as described by the officer, and then went directly to the steps of Gamwell's store where he could watch the front of the Stone and Eager blocks; after a moment or two there he started to cross to the Eager block, and when within 20 feet of the easterly side Lyman came out from the passageway there. Had had view of the two blocks all the time and saw no other person go back of or come from them, if any had done so he could have seen them. It was about three minutes from the time he saw Lyman crossing the street until he came from the side of the Eager block. Soon after Lyman came up Holden heard the revolver shots and went to the rear of the Eager block, where he found Officer Crimmins and the fire. Later he went inside the room where the fire was; found charred papers, burned wood and scorched spots on the partitions; there was broken window glass on the floor and an odor of kerosene in places. Nothing new was disclosed on cross-examination.

Daniel Ahearn, an employe of the electric company, was in the lunch cart when the revolver shots were fired. He went at once to the fire and found one pane of glass in the window broken; smashed in the rest with intention of getting in and stamping out the fire. There were no electric wires in the basement.

L. E. Chandler testified to putting out the blaze with an extinguisher and later assisting in an examination of the place. He described the condition of the space in which the fire had been and told of finding what appeared to be traces of kerosene.

Charles E. Walker, ticket agent at the passenger station, saw Lyman on the broad platform between the two sets of railroad tracks, opposite the rear of the Eager block, about 9 55 the evening of the fire; he stood there four of five minutes.

F. M. Eager, owner of the block, named the tenants in the block: His own shoe shop and the Palmer Trucking Co's. office on the ground floor; Charles Cordially's fruit storage in the basement, and a tenement on the second floor occupied by Patrick Ryan; in the basement also Clifton Elmer, a bill poster, stored superfluous paper and material in his line of business, the latter being in the room in which the fire was found. He was down stairs every day and was certain that there were no broken panes of glass in the window. He had locked and fastened the doors and windows in his part the evening of May 26th, and found them all in like condition the next morning. Lyman had been in a day or two before to read the electric meter and he had noticed that he was a long time about it, though thought little of the matter. Had never seen papers or other like material in the space under the window, which was used for the storage of wood and coal.

F. M. Ralton, manager of the Palmer Trucking Co, and Charles Cordially testified to having locked up their parts of the building before the fire and finding them in the same condition afterward. Patrick Ryan, who occupies a room on the second floor, almost directly above the fire, went to bed between 8 and 9 at night and slept through till morning, hearing nothing of the commotion, not even the revolver shots. There was no one else on his floor and no way of getting from his room to the fire without going out of doors.

The Carsley House Fire.

Dr. S. R. Carsley told of fire being found in the basement of the house occupied by him; it was about 4 in the afternoon, and the fire was in some carpeting which had been piled on a stove for cleaning. Two families occupied the house, George Ezekiel having the upper floor. As the witness ran for Chief Summers he saw Lyman standing on Thorndike street at the rear corner of the bank block, passing him on the way. Lyman followed them back to the scene of the fire. About 4 30 Lyman volunteered the suggestion that he had read the meter in Carsley's house at 10 a. m. About 7 in the evening, while standing talking with another person, Lyman approached and asked if anything new had been found regarding the fire, suggesting that it must have started from spontaneous combustion and ridiculing the thought that it could have been set.

Daniel J. Connor, one of the firemen, with William Nolan, another firemen, met Lyman on the street and told him of the fire, he claiming to have heard nothing of it. They asked him to go to Springfield but he declined, as he had to work, he said. Nolan's testimony was to the same effect.

E. W. Burns, husband of Mrs. Catherine Burns, who owns the house, saw Lyman in the rear of the post office, adjoining the house lot, on the afternoon of the fire; he set the time as between 2 30 and 3. Fred Anderson saw Lyman about 4 10 that afternoon go around the corner of the Carsley house near where the fire was found. He was on the railroad track about 150 feet away, but could not see where Lyman went after he turned the corner. Chief Summers told of returning to the fire with Dr. Carsley on being called, Lyman accompanying them In the engine house is kept a five-gallon can of kerosene, the janitor, Summers and Lyman only having access to it. After the Carsley fire an examination showed this can to be only half full; a whiskey bottle filled with kerosene was found on a window sill close to the engine. At the electric company's shop used by Lyman was found about half gallon of kerosene in a jug, with a small quantity of gasolene.

The Fire of December 9.

Chief Summers told of being called to this fire about 3 10 in the afternoon. The fire was first in the manger of the third stall from the west end, but quickly ran up the feed rack into the loft. After the fire was out an examination showed rags in the manger with oil on them; a blanket with oil on it was also stuffed into the iron bars of the feed rack. There was a window in the stall, and through it the blanket could be reached from the outside. The fire was about 50 feet from the electric company's shop First Assistant C. E Fuller told of finding evidences of oil in the examination with Chief Summers.

Horace R. Paine, caretaker of the bank block near the barn, told of starting, between 3 and 3 30, he should judge, for Central street by way of the rear of the Main street blocks and past the Converse barn. As he "ducked" under a fence close to the rear of the barn, he saw Lyman about 15 or 20 feet away, in a narrow space between the Converse and Marcy barns with one arm raised above his head; as he turned the corner of the barn he saw Lyman come between the buildings. He went to Lloyd's harness shop on Central street, remained there less than a minute, and went directly back: as he neared Walnut street he saw Lyman go from that street to the rear of the Nassowanno House. As he approached the Converse barn he saw smoke coming from the upper part, and on getting close to it saw fire inside in the stall opposite the spot he had seen Lyman on the outside. He at once gave the alarm. It was not over five minutes from the time he first saw Lyman until he saw the fire.

At this point the question of taking up the fire of April 8 was discussed between counsel. Mr. Carroll suggested that, if Lyman was to be held on evidence already presented there was no need of hearing the other case, but declined to waive examination. Mr. Dillon insisted on the hearing unless examination was waived. A short conference in private between counsel resulted in examination being waived by Mr. Carroll, who then argued that there was nothing in the testimony as presented to connect Lyman with any of the fires except exclusive opportunity, and thought this was hardly enough to warrant his being held. Judge Kenefick decided, however, that enough had been brought out to warrant him in finding the defendant probably guilty in the Eager and the Converse barn fires; he did not deem the Carsley fire evidence sufficient however, and discharged him on that count. Bail was fixed at $2500 in the Eager fire, $1500 in the fire of December 9 and $1000 in the fire of April 8, a total of $5000, for his appearance before the grand jury in September. This was not furnished and he was committed.

Lyman appeared the least concerned during the trial. He sat listlessly in the dock, paying no attention to the proceedings, and slept through a part of the hearing.

FOREST LAKE SEASON.

Theatrical Performances Will Begin Next Monday.

MANAGEMENT J. W. GORMAN AGAIN.

Numerous Improvements Made Since Last Fall. William Rohan in Charge Of Grounds.

The theatrical season at Forest Lake will open next Monday, when "The Brinkley Girl" will be presented. "The Brinkley Girl" is said to be an inane, inconsistent, farcical impossibility for which Matt Ott is responsible. He will be remembered as the author of "The Maid of Japan," "Helen of Troy," and other pieces last season. "The Brinkley Girl" has to do with a case—or rather several of them—of mistaken identity embellished with complicated situations. There are a dozen pretty musical numbers, lots of gay dancing, etc.

Visitors to the theatre will find numerous changes for the better. In the first place the old seats have been torn out and a floor laid over the entire surface, on which new seats have been constructed, doing away with the dust and dirt of former years. About 200 new chairs have been installed. The approach to the ticket booth and the admission gate have been graded and covered with a layer of concrete, as has also the space between the front row of seats and the stage, this being arranged to carry off the water when it rains to the side of the theatre building. The stage has been rebuilt and enlarged, and other improvements made.

Manager Rohan of Forest Lake began his special attractions last Sunday, when he secured the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield for a concert in the pavilion in the afternoon, free to all. There were a large number in attendance and the musical treat was thoroughly enjoyed.

Wednesday evening the attraction was the Union singing orchestra of Marlboro, which played for dancing, which was enjoyed by a large party from Palmer, Ware and other places.

To-night the Columbia minstrels of Thorndike, who gave a very pleasing performance a few weeks ago in that village, will be the attraction. The company is composed of both men and women, the song numbers being divided between them. After the performance there will be the usual Friday evening dance.

The attraction next Sunday will be a sacred concert from 2 30 to 6 30 by the Ladies' Philharmonic orchestra in the pavilion, free to all, with selections by Mr. Fred Bates, the dual-voiced vocalist, who will include "The Holy City" in his program. A 50 cent shore dinner will be served in the pavilion. In the theatre in the evening the Herald Square company will present "The Volunteer Crew."

'NOTHER AUTO SMASH.

New York Car and People Have Narrow Escape Near North Wilbraham.

Three people in an auto had a narrow escape from serious hurt near the home of H. M. Green on the Wilbraham road last Friday. William J. Bauer of New York, with his chauffeur and a woman, were traveling at a high rate of speed toward Springfield down the hill east of the Green residence, when an electric car came out of the private land at the foot of the hill and swung across the road. To avoid hitting the electric the auto was turned to one side and rammed a stone wall. Although somewhat shaken none of the party were seriously hurt, and after a few minor repairs had been effected the the machine was able to proceed.

Ringling Brothers' Circus at Springfield June 21.

Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Show is coming to Springfield this season with new laurels won at Madison Square Garden in New York because of the unprecedented excellence of their performances. It is in all respects the very best circus that was ever organized. There are no less than seven sensations on the program, any one of which is great enough to give a circus distinction. There are the wonderful Schumann horses which waltz on their hind legs, drink from large glasses and roll each other around in huge beer barrels; elephants that use the telephone; the thrilling double somersaulting automobile act, performed by a young French girl; Rohlidello, the Mexican wire wizard; the wonderful Lorch family of acrobats and 100 other great acts that are new to America.

This will be the only opportunity for the people of this section to see Ringling Brothers' circus The parade will be given at 10 o'clock in the morning and is an entirely new spectacle; it will be three miles long. The menagerie is a wonderful affair, greatly enlarged and filled with strange specimens of the animal world. At the head of the menagerie is Darwin, the missing link, which lives in a miniature house with windows, electric lights, hot water heater, chairs and tables. Darwin eats with a knife and fork, drinks from a bottle and shaves himself.

Said recently: "When you feel down and out, feel there is no use living, just take your bad thoughts with you and walk them off. Before you have walked a mile things will look rosier. Just try it." Miss Holt and Miss Toleman, teachers, entertained their sisters for a few days this past week.

Miss Holt will not teach at the Academy next year, but will teach in the Quincy high school.

The game which was to have been played with Palmer last Wednesday afternoon was postponed until next Tuesday afternoon.

The senior class will hold their class picnic at State Line June 23d. The three lower classes will hold their picnic at Forest Lake.

The Academy team was beaten by the West Springfield team Saturday afternoon by a score of 13 to 5. The afternoon was very rainy and the game was Monson's with the exception of one bad inning.

Mrs. Haskell, who has been the matron of Cushman Hall for two years, has resigned, her resignation taking effect at the end of the school term. She has conducted the Hall in a thorough manner, and her many friends are sorry to hear of her leaving.

The Philomathean Society will hold their last meeting of the year in the Academy chapel and the following program will be rendered: Essay, Miss Elsie Looney; recitation, Miss Olivia Flynt; music, song, all; piano solo, Miss M. Sullivan; piano solo, Miss Ruth Hibbard; song, all; news items, Miss Gertrude Gaouette; spice, Miss Gladys Lull. The debate will be omitted and the meeting will adjourn to the ice cream parlor of J. P. Pendergast. The year has been very successful, there being a good attendance and many interesting programs given.

A Better Seat.

"The Rhode Island farmhand" said Reginald Vanderbilt, "is an independent young man of keen wit. There is a lack of servility about him that I like.

"He disapproves of innovations. It is unwise to flush anything novel upon him. A friend of mine, for instance, while on a visit to my farm, went riding with me one morning, and sat his horse in the English way.

"You know the English seat? Up forward, almost on the horse's neck? Well, the farmhands that we passed disliked this seat, and they shouted to us loud, frank criticism on it. The neatest criticism, to my mind, came from a lame youth, who called:

"'Hi, stranger, sit farther back, and you'll have a longer ride.'"—New York Tribune.

THE NAMELESS SHIP

By ANDREW C. EWING.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Talk about the Flyin' Dutchman," said the centenarian of the Sailor's Snug Harbor; "'twan't a circumstance to the phantom ship my gran'father used to tell me about when I was a boy. The old man was pretty nigh as old as I am now when he told it to me and had sailed the Spanish main when pirates there was thicker 'n bumboats about a newly arrived American ship off Fayal. And my gran'father seen her, too, with his own two eyes and her wild cap'n on his wild ship He was the fust pirate to git his deserts. Hangin' don't do it—that's only killin'. But I'll tell you the story as my gran'father told it.

"A ship—my gran'father didn't know her name; fact is, she didn't have a name; some said that, bein' intended for a phantom from the start, she sailed without a name—well, this nameless ship sailed from Medford with a cargo o' rum and gold and silver bars. She headed for a West Indian port, but got into the doldrums and was so long without a breeze that the water and provisions give out. The crew was reduced to chewin' the leather of their boots; but, as for water, there was none even to be got from damp out o' the sails. The weakest died fust, then the stronger, and so on till the most endurin' o' the crew give in and their sperits went aloft. When the last man had perished, there bein' nothin' more for the doldrums to do, the wind sprung up and the ship sailed away with her crew of dead.

"The wind bein' out o' the nor'east, the ship kep' on her course toward the West Indies. Then it was that Juan Castres, the most onmerciful pirate that ever sailed the Spanish main, saw her and chased her. It was an easy matter to catch her, though every rag was set and she was a fine sailer, for, bein' without a helmsman—at least a livin' one—she'd luff now and then and have to wait for her sails to fill again. When the pirate come up with her the dusk of night was settlin' down, and all the pirates could see was a figure behind the wheel, another leanin' up ag'in the taffrail and others scattered about in different positions where they'd died.

"But Castres, seein' the ship hadn't guns for defense, drifted up beside her when the wind lulled and, leavin' some of his men to make fast, jumped aboard his prize. The two vessels bumped and separated. At that moment a sudden puff o' wind struck 'em. The pirate had lowered most of his sails, and before she could get 'em up again the ship without a name sailed away from her into the thick night, and that's the last the pirate seen o' her.

"The next seen o' the nameless ship was by a Britisher. Cap'n Castres was at the wheel singin' and shoutin' and laughin' and throwin' his arms about. He had found himself alone on a ship with nothin' but dead men, though she was the richest prize he had ever taken, with the easiest cargo to dispose of, gold and silver bars, with rum enough to keep him drunk for the rest of his natural life. Whether drinkin' the rum helped him to go mad or a crew of dead men was enough to do it, nobody didn't know, but he was mad sure enough—stark, starlin' mad—a-swearin' at his dead crew just as though they was alive, and he must have found plenty of ammunition, for he was pluggin' 'em all the while. One o' the sailors on the Britisher recognized Castres, for he had been taken by the pirate, forced to walk the plank and got picked up. He told the cap'n, and the cap'n turned away without even speakin' the other ship.

"The next seen o' 'the nameless,' as the Britishers called her, was by an Italian brig. There was more superstition among the Italians than the Englishmen, and, seein' a crew o' dead men commanded by a mad pirate, they all knelt on deck and crossed themselves. Then the cap'n, who was the only man among 'em that had any sand at all, took the helm and sailed on another course as quick as he could go about.

"But what I've been a-comin' to all along is the time my gran'father seen the 'phantom,' for after some years sailin' about, seen by var'us craft, that's what they called her. It was one evenin' on the equator. My gran'father was a young feller o' nineteen, an' he'd heard o' 'the nameless,' as she was then called, when he was six years old. So, you see, the story's true. Well, the sun was a-settin', goin' down into the water big enough to take in a dozen craft on the horizon, when suddenly a ship seemed to come up near by, as if out o' the ocean, and sailed right between him and the sun. On deck was Cap'n Castres leanin' over the gun'ale shakin' his fist, his eyes a-glarin' and horrible sounds comin' out of his throat. The phantom must 'a' rattled consid'rable, for only her ribs was to be seen ag'in the sun, lookin' for all the world like a gridiron on a redhot fire.

"The phantom always brought bad luck. Ships seen her in the early mornin', at twilight, after sunset, by moonlight or in a storm. She was always scuddin', breeze or no breeze, manned by dead men and steered by the mad pirate. And no ship ever sighted her that didn't either have a plague aboard afterward or go ashore or strike a rock or somepin terrible.

"Just go to New Bedford and ask 'em about her. They'll tell you of the women and children of New Bedford crews bound to be made widders and orphans from shipwreck after 'the phantom' was sighted in a fog off the shore there."

Economy of Costly Foods.

The economy of expensive foods is explained by the fact that digestion, at least in man, is dependent upon flavors, without which it is so defective that we do not obtain the good of the food we swallow. As far as experiments go, they substantiate these assertions, for the slight and smell of pleasing food start the flow of digestive fluids, while disagreeable odors and sight stop it. Delicatessen, then, would seem to be staples, for they are necessary. The talk of being able to subsist on a few cents a day is simply nonsense and leads to deterioration of health. What seems to be extravagance in food purchases may be wholesome instinct. The high cost of living is partly due to the cost of the flavors we need. We commend these ideas to our worthy dietetic economists. Laymen may not be so foolish as the physiologists themselves.—American Medicine.

A Novel Method of Advertising.

A storekeeper in a small out of the way town many years ago hit upon a novel method of advertising his store. He conceived the idea of buying up the stock of stamps at the postoffice across the way. The postmaster objected to be denuded of all his stock, but his mysterious customer demanded the stamps over the counter, sheet after sheet, as an ordinary member of the public until he had bought every stamp to be had. Then he took the stock over to his store across the road and plastered his windows with notices that postage stamps were only to be had at his store, and to his mortification the postmaster had to send customers across to the store over the way for any stamps they needed until some days after he once more got in a stock from headquarters.

Public Opinion.

The single snowflake—who cares for it? But a whole day of snowflakes—who does not care for that? Private opinion is weak, but public opinion is almost omnipotent.

Give the children plenty of Williams' Root Beer this summer. See how happy and healthy they'll be. It's delicious.

It is a fact that Insurance Companies throughout the country will give you a lower rate where you use Carpenter-Morton Roofing than where you use shingles, tin or iron. Besides it is less expensive and more durable. T. D. Potter, Bondsville, is exclusive agent and sells this roofing under a guarantee that it will last for years.

Col. Bigelow's Famous Collection Indian Curiosities Coming to Palmer.

Colonel Chas. Bigelow of Clintonville, Conn., is reported as possessing the second largest collection of Indian curiosities in this country. The Smithsonian Institution at Washington is considered to have the largest variety and the greatest number of Indian curiosities and pictures, but in the Bigelow collection there are rare weapons, utensils, and art pieces which are not in the Smithsonian collection at Washington.

When the Hotel Astor, New York, which is owned by the celebrated Astor family, wished to decorate their noted grill room, making it a real work of art and an attraction that would draw visitors not only from New York but from all parts of America to see it, reproductions of part of the Smithsonian collection and part of the Col. Bigelow collection were made. This room is called the "Indian Room," and is said to be one of the finest exhibition rooms in New York hotels.

The Col. Bigelow collection of curiosities—or such part of it as can be safely transported and spared for this Palmer exhibition—will be placed on display at Bay State Drug Store beginning Monday, June 21 "Red Cloud," the famous Indian chief, will accompany the exhibition and will take his place in his ancient, racial costume among the curios.

There will be no charge to visitors who wish to attend this exhibition.

Bay State Drug Store are to be congratulated on securing such a unique attraction for their patrons.

This exhibition has been traveling through Main, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and other New England States, and it is reported that everywhere it has excited the greatest interest. Crowds have attended the exhibition and have become greatly interested in Indian matters. They say that in the towns where the exhibition has been held an epidemic of "bows and arrows," feathers and "war paint" has spread among the small boys, who have organized "Wild West" shows and descended upon unsuspecting "pale faces."

The object of this exhibition of Indian curiosities in Palmer at this time is to arouse interest in the Kickapoo "Herb Theory" of medicines, and to present free trial bottles of Sagwa, the Kickapoo Herb Medicine, for Stomach and Liver Ailments.

It has been shown that wherever you find people who doctor their diseases with simple herb medicines, you will find healthy people. For instance, the Chinese are noted for their health and their tremendous endurance. No other people in the world work so hard or are healthier than the Chinese. They treat diseases almost wholly with vegetable medicines—except, of course, infections and contagious diseases.

The sturdy Norwegians doctor their diseases with barks, roots and herbs. Probably there never was and never will be a stronger race in the world than these old Norwegian Vikings.

The Mormons are very healthy people, as those who have traveled West know full well, and they have few doctors. They believe in medicines made from plain roots, plants, seeds and barks.

The Indian in his natural state was the healthiest human being on earth. He lived out doors, exposed to all kinds of weather, but did not suffer from colds or rheumatism. He ate all kinds of food but did not have dyspepsia or blood diseases. The Indian had sicknesses of course, but they were of a virulent character—fevers, contagious diseases, etc.,—but they did not have this dragged-out, nervous exhaustion, tired-all-the-time feeling which so many are afflicted with nowadays.

The Kickapoo representative who accompanies the Col. Bigelow collection will explain to those who care to understand it, the herb theory of medical treatment, and present free trials of Sagwa to prove this theory. This is such an interesting theory that it is reported to be sweeping like a great wave over the whole of New England.

The theory is reasonable and logical. Doctors try to answer it and in some places doctors have tried to contradict it, but in the end they are routed. In some places the physicians have been manly enough to come out openly and endorse it.

Wherever this exhibition and demonstration have been held, great crowds have attended. As a result, great preparations are being made by Bay State Drug Store to accommodate the public at their store during the next two or three weeks while these Indian curiosities are on exhibition and the free trial bottles of Sagwa are being given away.

Each visitor at this exhibition will be presented with a free trial bottle of Kickapoo Sagwa, the herb medicine which is so appetizing and so beneficial when taken before meals that even chronic dyspeptics are immediately impressed with its marvellous curative properties.

Sagwa is "guaranteed to cure any case of indigestion, weak stomach, gas in the stomach, sour stomach, or other stomach trouble in four to six weeks or money refunded."

Undoubtedly so many people will attend this Indian exhibition and listen to the Kickapoo explanation of the Herb Theory of medicines that those who have any stomach or liver trouble of any kind and wish to discuss the matter thoroughly with the Kickapoo representative would do well to make arrangements to attend the exhibition as soon as it opens, which will probably be not later than Monday morning, June 21st.

The Bank Could Stand It.

A western lawyer tells of a remarkable instance of the convincing power of feminine logic as evidenced by an occurrence which he once witnessed while standing on the edge of a crowd that was besieging the doors of a bank supposed to be on the point of suspending payment.

A conversation between a rosy cheeked Irishwoman and her husband, who were near the lawyer, at once attracted his attention.

"Mary," said the man, "we must push up, so ye can dhraw your money at once!"

"But I don't want to draw it out, Roger," replied Mary placidly.

"Don't ye know, Mary," persisted the husband, "that they'll lose your money for ye if ye don't hurry t' dhraw it out?"

"An' shure, Roger," retorted Mary, "ain't they better able to lose it than we are?"

Roger was stunned by this unanswerable logic, and after a few more words the two withdrew. Fortunately the bank survived its difficulties, and no depositor lost a cent.—Harper's.

A Purse For the Bride.

Some brides may be inclined to regret that the old marriage custom of the dow purse has fallen into disuse. It was the custom of the bridegroom to fill a purse with a goodly sum of money and present it to the bride on the wedding day as the price of the purchase of her person. It sounds like slavery, like the buying of goods and chattels, yet the bride had a nice little sum of money for her own use. Some of the oldest inhabitants of Cumberland may remember a similar custom in that county. The bridegroom provided himself with a number of gold and silver pieces, and at the words "with all my worldly goods I thee endow" he handed the clergyman his fee and poured the other coins into a handkerchief held out for that purpose by the bride. In other places, again, the bride had the right to ask her husband for a gift of money or property on the day after the wedding, and he was bound in honor to grant the request.—London Answers.

Sixty Kinds of Bananas.

To most persons in the temperate zones a banana is a banana. But the truth is that there are over sixty known varieties of the fruit, with as great or greater variation in character as in the different kinds of apples. Hawaii is said to have something over forty distinct varieties of the fruit, most of which have been introduced by the whites. Some of these are of extremely delicate and delicious flavor, while other kinds are used, if at all, only when cooked in various ways. There is scarcely a city house lot or country "kuleana" or homestead which does not have a clump or two of bananas, which grow with practically no care, new plants or suckers shooting up to replace the ones which have fruited and been removed.—Los Angeles Times.

Literary Irrigation.

"Your latest novel seems very dry," said the reader of the publishing house to the young but rising author.

"I was pretty sure you would say that," rejoined the author. "Consequently if you will count them you will find the heroine weeps real tears on just 253 pages of my story."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BRIMFUL OF ROMANCE.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

My dear, I have to announce my engagement. I am happy to say that it is not one of those practical affairs so common among people of our degree, but a real, genuine romance.

You may remember, one winter four years ago at St. Petersburg, how the American minister took pains to introduce us everywhere and how we were received even at the Winter palace. This much you know; but, though you are my bosom friend, it is all you know, and there is a great deal more to come. At the Winter palace, of course, I saw many of the young bloods of the empire and danced with them too. They were all very polite, and I found myself, an American without a title, receiving as much attention as any of the countesses or baronesses.

We became very intimate at the American minister's, and one evening while I was at the embassy a young man passed me in the hall who had called upon the minister and whom I recognized as one of the men who had favored me in the cotillion at the Winter palace. He did not appear to recognize me—indeed, he seemed very distrait and was hurrying into the minister's private office. The same evening the minister told us that a young nobleman had called on him with a very singular request. He was implicated in a political affair that would send him to Siberia if it was discovered and was sure to be known within a few days. He asked the minister to give him a passport to America. This was impossible, the minister said, though I didn't understand why. Later I was told that the young man had been sent to Siberia for life. Think how mean it was of the minister not to have given him the passport! It would have saved him from a fate worse than death.

The scene changes. I am in America. I have forgotten much of my winter's experiences in Russia, for three years have passed since then But I have not forgotten the young man who was sent to Siberia because our minister wouldn't give him a pass. I am in our touring car, taking a morning sixty mile spin, and am thinking of the poor prisoner at the time. Turning a sharp bend in the road, the chauffeur reduced the speed, going very slowly, when suddenly I saw a man standing in front of the car pointing a revolver at us. He ordered the chauffeur to stop, which he was obliged to do or be killed, and, coming to the side of the car, he said to me:

"You are rich. I want $5,000. Give it to me or you are a dead woman."

What did I do? I fainted. When I revived the robber was sitting beside the chauffeur, holding his revolver where he could use it at a moment's notice. As soon as he saw that I had opened my eyes he said to me:

"Your man told me that you hadn't much with you. He has promised to take us all to your home, which he says is a few miles up the road, and you are to get me the money. If he doesn't I'll kill both of you."

"It's the only way to save our lives," said the chauffeur.

The chauffeur was a man of great strength, but what could he do with an armed man? I noticed that he was increasing the speed, and we were soon going at the machine's full capacity. Presently the road veered slightly, but enough to sway the robber. All of a sudden the chauffeur partly turned, caught the robber's hand with which he was holding himself in his seat, disengaged it, then threw his whole weight against the robber, who went head downward on to the road. I thought the machine was going over, but the chauffeur held the steering gear with his right hand and kept control.

I looked back and saw a horrid mass in the road. It was immovable, and I knew the creature was either dead or badly hurt, for we must have been going at a frightful rate.

I had been saved first by the presence of mind and afterward by the ingenuity and daring of the chauffeur. Leaving the robber to his fate, we pressed on, turned at the first road leading backward and in an hour drew up under the porte-cochere at home. I had so far recovered from the shock that I was able to walk into the house without assistance.

When father came and learned all about our escape he called the chauffeur into the library. I was there, and father said to me:

"How shall we reward him, pet?"

What was father's astonishment when I said, "With your permission, papa, I will reward him myself." Then, seeing the pain father felt with his surprise—for it was evident the case was one of those where a girl loves far beneath her—I continued: "He may be a chauffeur, papa, dear, but he is a nobleman. I once danced in the cotillion with him in the Winter palace at St. Petersburg. He became involved in a political conspiracy, was sent to Siberia, escaped and made his way to America. The day your hired him for a chauffeur I recognized him, though he did not remember me. There has been lovemaking, papa, I admit, but it is your daughter who has done it, not your chauffeur. But let me introduce him under his own name and title, Count Alexis Ivan Alexandrovitch, formerly of the Emperor Nicholas' household guard."

Now, don't you think my affair is very romantic and that I have concealed the denouement very well? When you send your congratulations tell me if you knew how my story was going to end.

THERESE C. HOLT.

A Bashful Wooing

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Mrs. Sarah Winchell, owner of the Winchell farm, was a widow and in the matrimonial market.

One day a calamity came Two hives of bees started to swarm at once. The widow rushed out and began hammering on a pan and got the bees to alight for the nonce, but that was as far as she could go. She stood yelling for help when help came. A traveler on the highway stopped and hitched his horse and walked up the path. He saw what should be done, and he went ahead and did it. In a quarter of an hour he had the swarms in the new hives, and after a look at the others informed the widow that it would be several days yet before they would come out. She had time to look at him while he was at work, and she rather liked his looks. So far as she could make out he hardly glanced at her, and he certainly had but a few words to say. When he had finished his work he looked over her head, said he was glad to have been of use and took his departure. The widow had saved the bees, but she was piqued. Any widow would have been

Three or four days later the other hives swarmed and were taken care of by the hired men. Then the stranger appeared again to ask how the insects were getting along. He seemed embarrassed and in a hurry and refused the invitation to enter the house. He also appeared to look everywhere else but at the widow. Her hair was nicely combed, her apron snow white and her cheeks like roses, but he paid more attention to the pear tree and the soap kettle and the summer squashes than to her. He just wanted to know, you know, and was glad to find out and then was gone.

Of course a widow that had turned down a dozen offers of matrimony could not do otherwise than look after the retreating stranger and toss her head and say that he was a man that did not appreciate a good thing. Nevertheless she made some cautious inquiries of the hired men and in that way found out that he was a new resident of Ellenton, but no more.

Then another week passed and the stranger called to say that he was looking around to purchase a good farm, and he wished to inquire if the widow's was for sale. On this occasion he entered the house, but evidently with reluctance. He was certainly a bashful man. In that he was a novelty. When Deacon Graham, widower, came to buy the farm a year before he had stood in the kitchen door and boldly announced:

"Widder Winchell, I'm a-looking to buy a farm. If you go with this, I'll pay $40 an acre."

That meant $30 an acre for the farm and $10 an acre for her, and, though a blunt way of putting it, she was not so very indignant. The stranger, who had at last introduced himself as Mr. Bingham, threw out no hint of wanting anything but the farm Most any widow would have felt the slight. And then, too, when she had replied that the farm was not for sale he at once rose up to depart without speaking of how wheat and corn were looking up or casting a second glance at the barrel of soft soap she had made the day before and left at the kitchen door to cool. It hurt and it aggravated. Mr. Bingham might be a bashful man, but there are times when even a bashful man should force himself to talk.

Two weeks passed away, and then as the widow sat on the piazza one afternoon looking so nice that Farmer Johnson's mouth watered as he drove past Mr. Bingham called again. This time it was to see if the widow had a cow to sell. He was invited to sit down, and cows were discussed. He was looking away into the garden instead of at the woman, as he sought to do his share of the discussing. The widow had no cows to sell, but she didn't say so. She left the impression on the caller's mind that if he came again he might possibly buy one. She jumped from cows to calves and from calves to sheep and lambs in hopes to detain him, but he got away as soon as possible. Others had sat around until fairly driven out of the house with the broomstick Others had boldly flattered, but he had said nothing in praise. The widow tossed her head and said she didn't care, but we know she did, just the same.

At the end of another ten days the bashful Mr Bingham was back to ask if the widow would sell him a hog or two with the cow She was sitting on the veranda again, and, as before, he was invited to take a seat. When he had done so she moved so as to hem him in and said:

"Now, sir, look me square in the face. Are you a widower? Do you want to buy a farm? Do you want to buy a cow and some hogs? Do you want to buy hens or ducks? Are you after lambs or ganders?"

Mr Bingham blushed and cast down his eyes and fidgeted around, and the widow continued:

"If you are a widower and after a wife, why don't you say so and give us both a show? Lord, man, haven't you any spunk?"

"Will you marry me?" he bluntly demanded.

"Good! That's the way to talk! Marry you? Well, I've liked you ever since the day I saw you handle those bees, and I'll take the proposal under consideration Cows for sale? No Hogs for sale? No. All live stock goes with the farm, including me, and it's a bargain for some one, even if I do say it."

The bashful wooer has thought so, too, ever since the wedding day

At a few cents on the dollar.

Mitchell, the Tailor, Springfield's comic opera merchant, is no more.

The Bankruptcy Court sold his immense stock of Woolens and Worsteds to us at a few pennies on the dollar.

For several days we have been going over it, assorting, grading and getting it in readiness to give you men of this vicinity the best, greatest and most satisfying bargains in Tailored to your Measure Suits that you ever dreamed of.

Every garment turned out will be cut to your measure, tried on in the rough before finishing and be tailored in the Scotch Woolen Mills work rooms. Every garment will contain Scotch Woolen Mills linings and trimmings, also Scotch Woolen Mills cut, fitting and tailoring, and will carry the Scotch Woolen Mills guarantee. Mitchell's linings we will sell to some second hand dealers.

We will be open every evening, and will be taxed to our utmost to handle this immense stock. We know many will be unable to come in the day time so both stores will be open every evening until 8.30.

The stock is so extensive we have had to divide it up and will conduct a sale in Mitchell's old store on Worthington street, first door off of Main street and at our own store 393 Main street, opp. Green's drug store.

Mitchell's business systems were his own undoing. He carried a large, well assorted good stock, but he would publish glaring advertisements offering to make suits to order at $12 and $15, but when customers responded they found the low prices were only a dream and were shown suitings at $20, $30 and $35.

Towns of Palmer and Monson, and State Highway Commission to Divide Up the Cost.

It seems likely that the matter of the "Hastings" bridge on the road to North Wilbraham has been disposed of at last, as the town of Palmer, at a special town meeting held last Saturday, voted to appropriate $3500 to be paid to the order of the state highway commission for the construction of a new bridge at this point; at a special town meeting held the same day the town of Monson, which owns half the present bridge, voted to pay the sum of $2500 toward the cost of the new bridge. By this action it will be relieved from any further cost in connection with the bridge, as the new structure will be wholly within the borders of the town of Palmer. The state highway commission proposes to build a handsome new structure of concrete, at a point down stream from the present electric road bridge; the highway from Main street to the junction of the Wilbraham road near the Overlook farm will then be straightened and the electric car tracks moved to the south side, doing away with the necessity of crossing the tracks at any point. The towns of Palmer and Monson are to pay half the cost of the bridge and the state the balance. The bridge now in use is located one end in Palmer and the other in Monson, both towns sharing in the cost of maintenance; the bridge is old and in need of repairs, and much money would have to be spent on it at once if the new arrangement had not been entered into.

D. L. Bodfish was moderator of the meeting Saturday. There was no action on articles 3 and 4—to hear the reports of committees and to give committees instructions. The article relating to an extension of the South Main street sewer was passed over, as no one appeared to speak for it. The sum of $281 was ordered taken from the money in the treasury to pay the expense of the construction of Randall street and the King street extension. The treasurer was authorized to borrow a sum not to exceed $3500 to meet the appropriation made for the new bridge, this sum not to be paid from the taxes of the present year.

It was voted to close district school No. 2, in South Warren, and transport the children to the village schools.

REMEMBER DEAD FIREMEN.

Graves of Palmer Comrades Decorated on Sunday.

PARADE OF FIREMEN IN UNIFORM.

Flowers and Wreaths for Eight Former Officers and Members of the Department.

The Palmer Fire Department observed its first memorial day on Sunday last, and from the interest manifested it is certain that the observance will be annual in the future. The members gathered at the engine house at 2.30 in the afternoon and with the members of the prudential committee and the treasurer of the district as invited guests marched to Thorndike street, where a special electric car was taken to St. Thomas cemetery at Palmer Center, where five former members of the department lie buried.

After these had been decorated the cemetery in Palmer was visited and the graves of three former members decorated. The company then marched to the engine house on Park street and gathered in the assembly room, where the roll was called, showing that every member of the company but two was present; of these one was sick and the other unable to attend on account of his work. First and Second Assistant Engineers Fuller and Taylor wore for the first time that day new uniform coats and caps presented by the company, and took the opportunity to express their appreciation of the gift and the feeling of the members which prompted it. The members of the prudential committee of the fire district—C. L. Wald, W. E McDonald and L. E. Chandler—and the treasurer, C. A. LeGro, were called on by Foreman Frank J. Roche, and each responded with a few remarks appropriate to the occasion.

The graves decorated were those of George B. Kenerson and William H. Hitchcock, both former chief engineers of the department, and John Coles in the Palmer cemetery, M. J. Dawson, John Dawson, William Watts, Oliver LaSalle and John McManamy in St. Thomas' cemetery, a bouquet of flowers and a wreath of evergreen being placed on each.

She called at the doctor's office and when leaving forgot to take the bag with her; it was found later by the doctor, who returned it to her. The pocketbooks and money, however, were missing. Several persons were in the office during the time the bag was lying there, but none of them are persons on whom the least suspicion could be attached. Officer Considine is working the case.

There has been considerable complaint by the farmers in that vicinity of the damage done to their crops by these animals, and it is supposed the buck was shot on account of trespassing.

PALMER NEWS.

BOY HIT BY ELECTRIC.

Dodges Suddenly in Front of Palmer Car at Indian Orchard.

Car No 507, — one of the big yellow Worcester opens—in charge of Motorman William Birmingham and Conductor George E. Hunt, struck Joseph, the six-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brunelle of Indian Orchard, about 6 o'clock Sunday evening on the trip to Springfield. The car was running at a fair rate of speed and had just passed another car when the boy attempted to cross the street in the rear of the other car and ran squarely in front of the in-bound car. He had nearly cleared the track when the corner of the fender hit him and threw him away from the rails, tumbling him over in the street. He was picked up unconscious and taken to his home, in front of which the accident occurred, and a nurse and physician summoned. There were no broken bones, but several cuts and bruises on the head and body, and it was feared he might be injured internally. Those who saw the accident assert that no blame could be attached to the motorman, as the boy ran in front of his car from behind the other and there was no time to stop, although the brakes were set instantly when the boy was seen and the car ran only about two lengths before being stopped.

Tryon—Moran.

The marriage of Miss Vera B. Tryon and Thomas J. Moran took place in St. Thomas' church Tuesday morning at 8 30 in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Hart, who celebrated the low mass. Miss Nellie Finnerty presided at the organ. The bride wore white satin, trimmed with real princess lace, and a white Gainsborough hat, trimmed with white plumes; she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Moran of Ware, who was dressed in white lace over pink silk, with pink sash; she wore a black picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The groom was accompanied by his brother, John Moran of Springfield. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. P. Tryon on Pearl street. Mr. and Mrs. Moran left in the afternoon in an automobile for North Brookfield, where they took the train for a trip to Montreal and Quebec. On their return they will live with the bride's mother for the present. Mr. and Mrs. Moran are both well known in Palmer, and have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Telegrams Cost More Now.

Users of the telegraph lines in Massachusetts are not at all pleased with the new law which went into effect Wednesday, requiring the time of filing to be forwarded with all telegrams to points within the state. The telegraph companies at once decided that they could not forward these gratuitously, so they are charged for, or included in the ten words which may be sent for the minimum rate. The law says that the words "Time filed" shall be included, so that a telegram reading "Time filed eleven twenty a. m.," would leave only five words for the message, and as few telegrams can be condensed to five words the new law will be increased expense in nearly every case. The law was passed by the Legislature but was ignored by Gov. Draper, who allowed it to become a law without his signature. The Telegraph people claim it was put through by labor union men for spite, resulting from the recent strike. It does not apply to messages going outside the state.

Ever since the new water main through Main street has been in use the driver of the street sprinkling cart has complained of the gravel which came from the hydrant at the corner of Main and Thorndike street. At the suggestion of Chief Summers of the fire department, who feared that if the steamer should be needed at the hydrant the gravel might damage the pump valves, the water company opened it yesterday forenoon. A large quantity of gravel and larger stones were washed out, some of them being twice as large as hen's eggs. When the work of laying the mains is fully completed the water company will thoroughly flush all of them.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS & VARNISHES

If Your House Needs Painting Use S. W. P.

If your house, or barn, or buildings of any sort, need painting, don't put it off. Now—this spring—is the time to paint. A building that is kept protected from the weather, damp, sun and so on, will outlast by years a building that is allowed to go unpainted or poorly painted. It is much better business to save the building you have than buy a new one. And besides this, well painted buildings are much pleasanter to live in, and bring a much higher price if you should want to sell, than dingy, unpainted buildings.

To arrive at the cost of painting, figure the number of square feet a gallon will cover, and how long it will last, not what the paint costs a gallon. Don't simply figure what it costs to paint your house or barn, but what it costs to keep it painted year in and year out. S. W. P. is honestly made of the best raw materials obtainable, and will prove more economical and satisfactory to the man who pays the bill than either hand mixed lead and oil or the so-called "cheap ready-mixed paint." We are agents for Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared (S.W.P.) Come in and we will be glad to discuss the paint and varnish question with you.

Weston, Ocean-to-Ocean Walker.

Said recently: "When you feel down and out, feel there is no use living, just take your bad thoughts with you and walk them off. Before you have walked a mile things will look rosier. Just try it." Have you noticed the increase in walking of late in every community? Many attribute it to the comfort which Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, gives to the millions now using it. As Weston has said, "It has real merit."

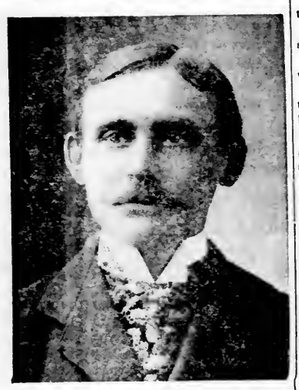
BURGLARS AT ACADEMY.

But Little Damage Done and Nothing of Value Taken.



The first burglary which Monson has had in many a month occurred sometime between Monday night and Tuesday morning, when the Monson Academy and the Holmes gymnasium connected with it were entered. The work was not discovered until Tuesday morning. At the Academy entrance was effected by cutting a piece of glass out of a window in room 2, on the east side, the job being done in a manner which showed familiarity with such operations. Nothing was taken, although the various rooms showed evidences of having been ransacked. A pane of glass was missing from the music room door, showing that an attempt had been made to enter the chapel, but unsuccessfully.

In room 2 the burglars obtained keys which admitted them to the building in the gymnasium after they had gained access to the building in the same manner as to the Academy. In the physical laboratory there is a large quantity of valuable apparatus, but nothing is missing and nothing particularly disturbed, although the drawers had been rummaged as though in search of money. Officer R. C. Murray is working on the case.

TO LEAVE TOWN.

J. F. Butterworth Resigns Principalship of the Academy.

James F. Butterworth, who has been principal of Monson Academy for the past ten years, has handed in his resignation, which will take effect at the end of the school year. Mr. Butterworth came to Monson in the fall of 1890, and has ably filled his position. He has put much work and time into the institution and has secured good results. His health of late has not been of the best, and he will rest this next year before resuming active duties in other fields. It is with much regret that Monson people learn of his going.

Gallivan—Twiss.

A pretty wedding took place in St. Patrick's church Wednesday morning, when Miss Elizabeth Veronica Gallivan was united in marriage to Mr Merton M. Twiss of New London, Ct., by Rev. Thomas O'Keefe. The church was attractively trimmed with ferns, palms, laurel and white carnations. Organist Miss Mary McKenna played appropriate selections while the ushers were seating the guests. The ushers were Daniel Fay and Patrick Daley of Palmer, James McManus of Ware, and Felix Callahan of Norwich, Ct. The wedding march from Lohengrin announced the arrival of the bridal party. The bride's gown was white duchess satin, empire design, with tulle veil caught up with garland of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Louise M. Gallivan of Greenville, S. C., niece of the bride. She wore pink chiffon over silk, with picture hat, and carried pink carnations. The best man was Edward Hennesey of New London, Ct. During the offertory, Miss Krause sang "Ave Maria." Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride on Washington street. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mr and Mrs. John Coughlin and Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Gallivan. The house decorations were white and green. A wedding collation was served in the dining-room, Rohan of Ware catering. The bride's table was prettily decorated with smilax and bride roses. Orcutt's orchestra furnished enjoyable music during the reception. The bride is a graduate of Monson Academy, class of 1901, and is most popular among the people of the town. The groom is one of the most popular conductors on the Central Vermont railroad, and is well known to Monson people. Mr. and Mrs. Twiss received an unusually valuable assortment of wedding gifts, including silver, cut glass, china, money, furniture and a set of fine Irish linen. A telegram was received in the morning announcing that friends and associates of Mr. Twiss on the road had given them an exceedingly pretty and valuable dining room set, which would be sent to their New London address. The bride and groom left amid a shower of rice and confetti, and drove to Palmer, where they took the 2 p. m. train for New York state and Canada. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Twiss will reside at 103 Montauck avenue, New London, Ct. Guests were present from Palmer, Three Rivers, Ware, Norwich, New London, Ct., New York and Greenville, S. C.

Old people stopped with suffering,
Middle age, courageously fighting,
Youth protesting impatiently;

All in misery from their kidneys.

Or when you strain the back.
Many complications follow.
Urinary disorders, diabetes, Bright's disease.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure backache.
Cure every form of kidney ills.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, living at 16 Park St., Palmer, Mass., says: "Undoubtedly my age had a great deal to do with my kidneys becoming disordered. My back ached and it was impossible for me to lie in a comfortable position. I was often so dizzy that I could not stand alone. The kidney secretions were irregular in action and my whole system seemed to be in a run-down condition. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box from Lynde and Gould's drug store. This remedy proved to be just what I needed, the first few doses giving me relief. The pain lost its severeness and the kidney secretions became normal in action. I am only too glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others suffering in a similar manner."

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumtic Acid Poisoning

The Uric-O Treatment Expels the Poison from the Blood.

Those sharp, shooting pains through the chest around the region of the heart mean that poisonous uric and rheumatic acid are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and the blood. Cleans out the sand-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those duties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Uric-O is a liquid taken internally, 3 times daily, and does not contain any morphine, opium or other so-called 'pain deadners." Sciatica, Muscular, Inflammatory and Articular Rheumatism all yield readily to Uric-O.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Lynde & Gould and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1 00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 271 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

The First Pantomime.

John Rich has the credit of producing the first pantomime ever seen in England This was performed on Dec. 26, 1717, at the theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields. Rich had found himself unable to compete with the legitimate drama at Drury Lane, so he bethought himself of the comic masques occasionally performed in London and combined with their scenic and mechanical effects the maneuvers of the pantomime ballet. The result was "Harlequin Executed," which the advertisement of that day described as "a new Italian mimic scene, between a scaramouch, a harlequin, a country farmer, his wife and others." There was all the business with which we were familiar from childhood. Huts turned into palaces, shops into gardens, houses into trees. Of course the "earnest student of the drama" protested against this innovation, but Harlequin, Columbine & Co. have maintained their hold on public favor until the present year of grace.

He Knew Them.

This was overheard in the lobby of a big hotel in Cincinnati when a bus load of traveling salesmen came from the station. Every man of them as he signed the register paused to shake hands with the hotel clerk fatherly old fellow who had been there many years. "Ah," said one of them to the clerk, "It's a good thing you're still on deck, Uncle Dave. I don't think the house could run without you." "Couldn't it, though?" said Uncle Dave. "You fellows would come in here, and if there was a strange clerk you'd say, 'Where's Uncle Dave?' And the clerk would say: 'Why, didn't you hear? He died a month ago.' And then you'd say: Well, I'll be darned! That's too bad. Say, when 'll dinner be ready?"

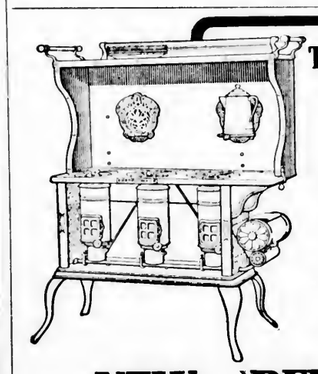
YOUR BACKACHE WILL YIELD

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rockland, Maine.—"I was troubled for a long time with pains in my back and side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged, and thought I should never get well. I read a testimonial about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and thought I would try it. After taking three bottles I was cured, and never felt so well in all my life. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my friends."—Mrs. Will Young, 6 Columbia Avenue, Rockland, Me.

Backache is a symptom of female weakness or derangement. If you have backache, don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Cure the cause of these distressing aches and pains and you will become well and strong.



The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has restored health to thousands of women.

We never publish a testimonial without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we are sure it is genuine. Such testimony should create confidence in all suffering women.

Bay State Drug Store Announce Kickapoo Indian Exhibition Palmer Next Week

Unique Collection of Indian Curiosities to be Shown. Free Trial Bottles of Sagwa, the Stomach Medicine, Given Away

Bay State Drug Store have just announced a very unique and interesting attraction for the patrons of their drug store. Col. Bigelow's unique collection of Kickapoo Indian curiosities is to be on exhibition in their store, beginning next Monday, June 21st The famous Kickapoo Chief, Red Cloud, who accompanies this exhibition, is also going to be in attendance, dressed in all of his Indian finery.

In addition to the above a representative of the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Company, who has had a great deal of experience in talking with thousands of people about their various ailments, and who has shown a very remarkable skill in telling people exactly what ails them, will have charge of the exhibition.

To each person who comes to this unique exhibition of Indian curiosities, a free trial bottle of Sagwa will be presented.

The Kickapoo representative will also explain personally and individually to each caller, the Kickapoo Herb theory of Medicines.

This "Herb" theory is creating a great furor among medical men, and is turning topsy turvy many of the old notions about violent drugs. A trial bottle of Sagwa is given free for the purpose of convincing every one who will take it before two or three meals, of its remarkable efficiency in helping nature to cure herself. The Kickapoo theory is that the work ought not to be done for Nature, but that when Nature is weak or played out, she ought to be assisted to do her own work Sagwa is not a digestive, but if you have lost your appetite, or you have indigestion, or gas in the stomach, or distress after eating, or if you have any stomach trouble, or complications arising from stomach trouble, then just these two or three doses of Sagwa before meals will prove the correctness of the Kickapoo Theories.

If you want to "enjoy one more meal," just call and get a trial bottle of Sagwa and see how good your food will taste and how much better you will digest it by letting Sagwa prepare your stomach for food and assist your stomach to do its work of digesting food. When the stomach does its work perfectly, then everything is right, but if your stomach fails you, then everything else seems to go back on you. All over New England, in dozens of different cities, there has been a great deal of interest in these Kickapoo demonstrations, and a great deal of talk about them. Newspapers have written whole columns about the Kickapoo Theories of Herb Medicines. These theories have been praised and opposed according to the beliefs of individuals Yet the theories have gained ground steadily and remarkably, until a wave of "herb medicine" faith is sweeping all over New England

Arrangements have also been made for exhibiting the Kickapoo collection of Indian curiosities, which has created a great deal of comment wherever it has been seen. The Indian as he sits in the window and smokes his pipe of peace, is always an object of interest. One cannot help thinking, as he sits with his calm, thoughtful face, of the days of the Indian in his prime, when he endured hardships such as no other race has ever been able to endure, following the trail through forests in dead of winter with scant clothing, or riding for days on his tough mustang pony after the buffalo, or in war with other tribes. The Indians carried to perfection their knowledge of medicinal plants, herbs, roots, barks, etc. The man who knew most about medicinal herbs, was looked upon with the greatest awe and his knowledge was held as a part of their religion. Even to-day, in many parts of the country a bark which the Indians called "Sacred Bark" is always referred to by that name by almost everybody, and to this day it is the finest medicine of its kind known to modern science, and is most used by the greatest scientific manufacturers. The Indians knew all about it centuries ago, and it has always been one of the ingredients of Kickapoo Sagwa, the stomach and liver medicine.

Bay State Drug Store is to be congratulated upon the securing of this great attraction for their customers. Wherever this Kickapoo Demonstration has been held in other towns, the crowds who have attended it have been so great that the general business of the store, not only the sale of medicines, but the Soda Fountain, Candy Department, Prescription Department, toilet goods—and all other departments, have greatly increased their sales.

It would be well to visit this demonstration as soon as possible, because in a few days most everybody will be talking about it, and you will want to be one of the first to know about it and to understand the Kickapoo theories of herb medicines.

Best of all is the trial bottle of Sagwa. It is surprising how this herb medicine corrects digestive disorders, and thereby corrects numerous other diseases. People who blame "Kidneys," "Bladder," "Liver," "Bowels," or other organs or think their trouble is in their "Heart" or "Head" or "Nerves," will take Sagwa and at once feel better; food will agree with them; the stomach will not revolt; headaches, backaches, and internal pains will cease; nerves will quiet down. This seems strange, but it is in reality very simple The Sagwa prepares the stomach for digestion. The stomach in such cases is weak, worn out or diseased. The digestive juices are lacking or are not of the right quality. Hence food, when eaten, becomes as lead in the stomach; it isn't digested. It just lies there and ferments. The fermentation generates gas and poison which cause sourness, pains, and disorders. Sagwa, acting upon the ducts which secrete the digestive juices, causes these digestive fluids, of the right quality, to flow into the stomach in advance of the food. Then as food is eaten the stomach is ready to digest it. The digestive fluids flowing into the stomach create an appetite. Haven't you noticed a hungry dog drule at the mouth when jumping for a bone to gnaw? His digestive organs are so healthy and active and so much digestive juice is pouring into his stomach and making him so hungry that the saliva simply runs out of his mouth. Your "mouth waters" when you are hungry and see nice food. Everybody ought to be that way. Get a trial bottle of Sagwa and see how good it feels to once more be hungry and enjoy eating with no ill after effects.

Also, you can very well afford the time to look at the exhibit of Indian curiosities and observe the Indian Chief.

CORNER STONE LAID.

Palmer Baptists Hold Services Last Saturday.

NEW CHURCH REPLACES ONE BURNED

Large Number in Attendance, Interesting Exercises. Address by Holyoke Clergyman.

The corner stone of the new Baptist church on Thorndike street was laid last Saturday afternoon, and a large number of people, both from this village and other places, assembled to witness the ceremony.

The services began with singing by the Sunday school children; Rev. F. W. Gibbs of St. Paul's Universalist church then read the Scriptures, taking II Chronicles xxix, David's prayer of thanksgiving for gifts received for the building of the temple; prayer was offered by Rev. F. S. Brewer of the Congregational church. An anthem, "Lift up your heads," by the choir followed. Frank S. Keith, superintendent of the Sunday school, then deposited these articles in the box which was placed within the corner stone:

Church constitution and by-laws, church covenant, list of contributors, copy of The Springfield Republican, copy of the Springfield Union, copy of Palmer Journal, list of Sunday school classes and amounts raised for building, copy of Minutes Westfield Baptist Association, 1908, officers for 1909, official ballot 1908, two old coins.

The sealing of the stone was then effected by Charles E. Fuller, chairman of the building committee, and Rev. C. W. Williams, pastor of the church, offered prayer. After singing by the Snnday school Rev. Mr. Williams introduced Rev. Dr. John S. Lyon, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Holyoke, who delivered an address in which he congratulated the people upon their zeal in the work of rebuilding and the beauty of the location, prophesying a rich blessing to follow. Dr. Lyon said in part:

The church must endeavor, with greater clearness, to answer with honesty some of the world's hard questions. One of the most emphatic of those questions is that old one as to the actual first cause of all things. What is back of all phenomena of life as creative cause and conserving energy? What is at the base of personality? Is that something, not ourselves, dynamic, cosmical, impersonal merely? Does it signify to me personal freedom, responsibility, obligation? Or am I a helpless creature, subject to forces beyond my control, modified by environment and the victim of antecedents? Are freedom and responsibility, virtue and vice, goodness and badness mere phrases of human bewilderment? Am I, or am I not, what I have to be? To these and kindred questionings the church must reply in all the vigor imparted by a positive philosophy, a deep knowledge of history, and a sublime faith in a supernatural revelation. "The first cause is God, personal, intelligent, purposeful, all-filling, and I am free and responsible."

Then arises the question in different form. But is your God free? Is he not becoming rather than being? Is not name I become rather than I am? Is not he entangled in the cosmos, a part of the evolutionary principle and process? Can he respond to human need, answer prayer, and in special ways help men? Is he not limited by the slow, steady action of natural laws. To this unethical monism or pantheism the church must reply convincingly, inspiringly. This God is the living God, who created us, who sustains us, who speaks to us and with us, answering our prayers and saving us! This leads to another old but new question. Is this God omnipotent and good? If he is both, why are physical evil and sin in the world? Why wars and carnage? Why is nature "red in tooth and claw?" The question of dualism will not down. But in the midst of life's mysteries the chnrch must mightily persuade the world that God is wisdom, goodness, love. He rules as a responsible father in the affairs of men, and all things work together for good to those that love God. This the church must declare not alone dogmatically, but convincingly, persuasively.

The church must also stand for a revelation both natural and supernatural. These complement each other. The Bible is, in its real essence, a revelation. It presents to us Christ who is the revelation. The church must insist upon the fact that the Bible is authoritative in spiritual matters, and must prove to the world that it is worthy of trnst. The church must believe in and declare the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and under his guidance the church must welcome all honest investigation of its claims and its book. The ohnrch stands for a divinely filled and ruled humanity, the indwelling Christ being the impelling power from within and the historic Christ the outward pattern and standard. The church is to manifest the divine purpose to the world. It must interpret nature and humanity to the world in terms of beneficent purpose and love. It must interpret the world's highest impulses to its highest ideals with its practical daily life. It must stand for prevention as well as cure. It must practically and effectively correlate its pions profession to individual and social salvation a world-wide renewal. The church must by manifesting the life of Christ lead an ethical reconstruction of economic and industrial procedure. The church is to show plain people how to hitch the wagon of work-a-day experience and duty to the star of Christ-like wisdom, love, service and helpfulness. The chnrch must bring the ideal from God and heaven to dwell in forms of beauty among men.

At the close of his remarks the audience sang the doxology and Rev. E. W. Waterhury of Boston pronounced the benediction.

The new church, which is well under way, is to be 56 by 88 feet. It has a concrete foundation up to the grade line, and a red brick underpinning to the first floor; above the windows it is to be of stucco, with single roof. The pulpit is to be in one corner of the main auditorinm, which will be 38 by 44 feet, with a seating capacity of 230; at the rear will be a Sunday school room 28 by 25 feet, so arranged that it can be added to the main audience room if more seating capacity is needed. There will be a primary Sunday school room 11 by 23 feet, and there will be five class rooms at one side. The plans were drawn by Clifford A. Tinker of Springfield, and the work is being done by the H. P. Cummings Company of Ware.

AUTOMOBILES BURNED.

Two Cars and Garage of Joseph H. Wesson Destroyed Sunday Night.

The automobile garage of Joseph H. Wesson at his summer home on Baptist Hill in Three Rivers was hurned Sunday night, together with two automobiles. A son, Douglas Wesson, was slightly but not seriously burned in trying to extinguish the fire.

Douglas Wesson, with R. B. Wiggin of Boston, arrived at the honse in the evening from Boston, and Douglas was attempting to put the car in which they had come into the garage. Discovering that there was not sufficient room he backed out, and in doing so strnck the gasoline tank, upsetting it and spilling the fluid, which immediately caught fire from the rear light on the auto. In the garage at the time were Joseph H. Wesson, Mr. Wiggin and Victor W. Wesson, besides Douglas. All rushed out, hut Douglas returned and succeeded in saving one of the oars; a large Stevens-Duryea tonring car. The oars hurned were an Elmore rnnabout and a 30-horse power Cadillac rnnabont. The loss is several thousand dollars.

Commencement at Monson Academy.

Large Class Graduates, Special Reunion of Five-year Classes. Baccalaureate Sermon, Class Day Exercises, Alumni Dinner.

Another commencement week has passed for Monson Academy, and the 105th class has gone out from the walls of that venerable institution. The weather of the week has been all that could be desired for the various exercises; a little warm at times, perhaps, but with none of clouds or rain to mar the joyousness of the occcasion. That the event has been one full of pleasurable reunions and renewals of old acquaintances goes without saying. Year after year the old friends gather, with now and then new faces, recall their student days and the people they knew in Monson then, learn of the doings of their classmates and rejoice anew in the glory of Monson Academy with her more than 800 graduates.

Public examinations were held in the Academy Monday morning, with a large attendance. Early in the evening the class ivy was planted, followed by the class day exercises in the academy chapel. An interesting program was carried out, and as usnal there was a large audience.

The graduating exercises were held in Memorial hall Tuesday morning, diplomas heing presented to the 23 members of the class. Music was furnished by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield. The members of the class are: Ralph V. Towne of Union, Ct.; Lillian E. Lyon of Palmer; Ellen C. Painting, Boston; Walter W. Dunfield, Glenvale, N. B.; William Cowie, South Rygate, Vt.; Constantine Condeff, Mehomia, Macedonia; John Colchagoff, Banko, Macedonia; Vladimir N. Boyadjieff, Bulgaria; Grace A. Sullivan, Solomon F. Cushman Jr., Bessie S Duncan, Robert S. Fay, Olivia C. Flynt, Beatrice L. Gath, Thomas J. Faulkner, Gertrude B. Gaouette, Edith Irene Hodge, Joseph E. Kerigan, Daniel P. Looney, Edward F. Murphy, Francis L. O'Brien, Harry L. Rees, all of Monson.

The alumni dinner came at 12 30 in the Holmes memorial gymnasium, and the 168 who sat down at the tables evidenced that this part of the year's program is not decreasing in popularity. This year there were special reunions of the classes of '84, '89, '94, '99 and '04, and all were represented. After the good things provided by the members of the Woman's Relief Corps had been given due attention, Dr. Oscar Thompson of Boston, president of the alumni association, introduced Dr. John J. Hassett of Lee, one of the more than 800 who have gone ont from the institntion, as toastmaster of the day. Dr. Hassett expressed the deep obligation he felt toward Monson Academy, and stated that as long as he lived he proposed to show it in a practical way. Dr. Hassett was a member of the class of '84, and is the donor of an annual prize for the best work in Algebra.

The first speaker was Rev. Dr. G. S. Rollins of Springfield, '84, and his toast was "Our first corner." He prefaced his remarks by expressing gratitude at having present one who, with her father, had been a life-long friend of the Academy, Miss Esther R. Holmes. In the small institution the personal factor is more prominent and has more influence than in the large, where the student comes less in contact with the instructor; for himself and the class of '84 he was sure no person had exerted a greater influence on his life than former Principal Cummings, who was present. He spoke of the remarkable fact that with one exception the members of his class had fulfilled the predictions of the class prophet, and that from coast to coast they were helping do their small part toward the general welfare of the country. It is often stated that the New England academy must go, as the high school is taking its place. He did not believe this, for, although he had become acquainted with numerous institutions of learning, he had never yet found one to take the place of the New England academy.

For the class of '99, T. L. Cushman read a letter in memorial of Miss Mary Wales, also a letter in memorial of Dr. Pliny R. Watts, the former an instructor and the latter a former student who have recently died. He also read a letter from Isaac Parks, '52. Rev. Leon H. Austin, '94, responded to "After 15 years," speaking, he said, "with a heart full of tender and loving memories." He had not seen a member of the class from the day of graduation until coming to Monson for the exercises of this week. He spoke of the exceptional advantages of Monson and the Academy—the fine buildings, Hammond Hall, the Congregational church and the former men of Monson who took so great an interest in the institution, and touched on the athletic achievements of the past (he was a member of the track teams which won the first Western Mass. Interscholastic banner at Amherst). He lamented the presence now of one institution which was lacking when he was in school, the saloon, and failed utterly in ability to see how it could be. In the course of his work he had occasion to suggest schools to numerous boys and girls, hnt could not recommend the old Academy as long as the present conditions prevail in the town. He closed hy nrging all members of the gradnating class to take a college course if possible.

Miss Sarah E. Sexton, '04, spoke for the "Blue and white" affirming that every school has its own individual colors which are an inspiration to its attendants and alumni at all times.

Joseph E. Kerigan spoke for the graduating class, realizing the greatness of Monson Academy and the high standard maintained hy the men and women who have gone out from it, and hoping that the class of '09 would in every way help to maintain that standard.

Rev. Dr. Harris of Andover, N. H., who was principal for two years—1859—60—succeeding Mr. Tufts, had not been in Monson since he left it, but had enjoyed every minnte of the time since he had arrived and every person he had met, and found himself wondering why he had not been back before. He wished Monson Academy and all connected with it, good luck.

George J. Cummings of Howard University, Washington, who was principal 1881—1885, spoke for "The former faculty." Although it was 24 years since he left the institntion he felt as yonng in spirit as ever, and wonld awaken in the young an inspiration for higher and better things and make it possible for the teacher to help build and mould character. Character building is one thing every teacher shonld aim for, and if there ever was a time when that is needed it is now, in this age of graft and commercialism. A man mnst stand on principle and teach principle to his pupils or he is false to himself; he must teach principles which shall stand for all time. He deprecated the too prevalent tendency of the teacher to leave one position for another which offered more financially, and thought the teacher should teach more for the good he can do than for the pecuniary remuneration he may receive.

Principal J. F. Butterworth spoke for "The later faculty," beginning his remarks by saying that he was sorry to say "Good bye" to the people of Monson after ten years of life among them. He took for his special subject, "The teacher, what he is, what he should be, and the attitude of the parent to the teacher." The teacher has ideals which he has hard work to maintain and theories which are soon gone. Yet with all this teachers are honest and hard workers, doing many things for which they receive no credit. The teacher should be independent; he should be the master, with power to make pupils work. Such are hard to secure now. He should be vicarious, not considering himself hnt ready to carry the hurdens of those about him. He should also have an understanding of youth. Concerning the attitude of the parent toward the teacher—the former is too ready to criticise the schools and teacher. Don't listen too seriously to what the pupils say. Don't misunderstand the teacher, hut get in personal touch with him about your hoy or girl, and you'll find that things are not nearly always what they are reported to be.

Senator A. D. Norcross spoke for "The student, the trustee, the townsman." The day of the New England academy has not gone by, for you can't blot out in a year or in several years an institution with a record of over 100 years behind it. What the futnre of Monson Academy will be no one can tell, it depends on those who have it in charge and the demands made on it along educational lines, hut whatever these may be the Academy will be found ready to supply them.

These officers of the alumni association were elected for the coming year: President, Rev. C. A. Dinsmore of Waterbury, Ct; vice president, Carl M. Blair of Warren; secretary and treasurer, T. L. Cushman of Monson; committee for dinner next year, R. S. Stebhins '85, Miss Joanna Cantwell '90, Miss Carrie L. Chapin '95, Arthur Vaille '00, Frank R. Rees '05, all of Monson.

The senior reception was held in the Academy chapel in the evening. The seniors, in three groups, received their friends, and many of the alumni were present.

Wednesday was the picnic day for all the classes, the seniors going to State Line and the other three classes to Forest Lake. In the evening the alumni dance was held.

The alumni dance was heid in Memorial hall Wednesday evening, with music furnished hy the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield. Guests were present from Springfield, Palmer and Brooklyn. Chapman catered.

The past year at the Academy has been one of normal progress, with few changes. The average enrolment has been about 100, of whom 20 come from out of town. The faculty at the beginning of the first term consisted of Principal J. F. Butterworth, instructor in English and physics, Alden Hodgkins, mathematics and general science, William F. Sherhurne, English and Latin, Miss Alice Tolman, Greek and Latin, Miss F. M. Nixon, science and commercial branches, Miss L. R. Holt, French, German and literature, R. S. Patch, history and physical culture. There have been two changes in the past year, namely, Miss Freida Rand took W. F. Sherhurne's place and L. F. Alden succeeded Mr. Hodgkins in Febrnary. All of the faculty have accomplished excellent results, holding the attention and respect of their pupils and displaying an active interest which is so essential to good instruction. It is to be greatly regretted that Principal J. F. Butterworth has resigned and will not return next year. Mr. Butterworth came to Monson in September, 1899, and since that time has ably filled the chief position at the Academy. He has put his best efforts into his work and achieved excellent results. He has taken an active part in all the student affairs and has been much liked and respected by all his pupils.

No change has been made in the curriculum and courses have been offered which fit the student for classical or scientific and literary courses in college, or as broad an education as possible for those not intending to pursue further study. The school has recently heen regranted the privilege of certification by the college entrance examination board of New England. This certification privilege admits the graduates from the Academy to 13 colleges in New England without examinations.

The various student societies have had an active and profitable year. Lino and Philo are both prosperous and have helped to train the young men and women in the art of argumentation and public speaking. The Young Men's Christian association has held weekly meetings during the three terms with a public speaker once a month and the meetings have been enthusiastic and well attended. The year in athletics has been a normal one and the school has supported football, track, basket and baseball teams. A good percentage of victories has been won in all departments, hut the baseball team has been the most successful, winning nine out of 12 games.

Reverend Dr. G. S. Rollins of the Hope Congregational church of Springfield delivered the annual baccalaureate sermon to the seniors Sunday evening in the Congregational church. The speaker is a gradnate of the class of 1884. The church was very prettily decorated with laurel and evergreens, and special music was rendered by the choir.

The text used by Dr. Rollins was, "While we look not at the things which are seen, hut at the things which are unseen; for the things which are seen are temporal, hut those which are unseen are eternal." He said in part: The tendency to-day is to be impressed by the greatness of civilization, to admire wealth, power and luxury, hut wherever these things have been considered first, rnin has followed. Man's greatness comes from itself. It is the unseen power of God in man that achieves the things worth while. All men posses this unseen power, but only those who learn to cherish it and use it are those who become great. The three fundamental principles of true living are faith, hope and love. Nothing can be permanent unless based on these three things. To the class of '09 he said: Some of yon will study farther, and some will go off to battle with life, hnt be not deceived and beguiled hy material success which is only temporary, for there is no prominent success except through the unseen spiritual things.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING.

Young Man Loses Life Last Evening in River.

SWIMMING WITH TWO COMPANIONS.

Started for Deeper Water, Disappeared From View And Not Seen Again Alive.

Dimetro Masl, about 20 years old, was drowned in the Quaboag river last evening about 10 o'clock. The man, with two companions, went swimming just below the railroad bridge near the Holden & Fuller mill. The others were content to stay in the shallow water near the shore, but Masl, who it is said knew how to swim to some extent, said he wanted to get into deeper water and waded out away from the others. He had gone but a short distance when he disappeared from sight and did not again appear. There are deep holes in the river at this point, although just below there are shallows where one may easily cross hy wading. It is likely that he stepped into one of these holes, though why he did not come to the surface again cannot be conjectured. It was some hours later when the matter was reported to Night Officer T. J. Crimmins, who summoned help and assisted by Deputy Sheriff Bills and Special Officer Thomas, began a search for the body. It was discovered about 4.30 this morning in the shallow water ahout 200 feet below where it was last seen alive. It was taken to Phillips' nndertaking rooms, where it was viewed hy Medical Examiner Schneider.

The young man came to Palmer about two months ago and boarded with Joseph Slowick in the "Lighthouse" on Thorndike street. He has worked on the Boston and Albany gravel train. He was a native of Poland, and has one brother in Palmer.

CHILD ABANDONED.

Bronislaw Sliski, who lives on West Main street in Warren, was awakened abont 12 30 last Friday morning hy the noise of an automobile starting up from in front of his house, and shortly after heard a faint cry on the piazza. Upon going ont to investigate, he found a two-weeks-old male infant lying there. He brought the infant into the house and immediately notified Constable St. George. Nothing could be done that night, however, and early Saturday morning Herbert N. Shepard, chairman of the overseers of the poor, was notified. He took the child to the town farm, where it was left in charge of the matron, Mrs. Calvin E. Flint, and was later turned over to the state board of charity.

No definite clue was left to trace those leaving the foundling. The child was of light complexion and its clothes were very plain, including a small shirt and cotton dress. The child was wrapped in a gray blanket and then in a white blanket, which was secnrely pinned around him. It is generally thonght that the automobile was headed from the east, as it stopped at the east side of the honse and there was a light in a window which could be seen from the machine as it came up the road. The print of a woman's shoe was seen in the soft earth in front of the piazza.

FORMER PALMER BOY.

Ernest Prescott Killed by Electric Shock in Springfield Yesterday.

The many friends in Palmer of Mrs. Mary Prescott of Springfield, formerly of Palmer, will be pained to learn of the death by accident yesterday of her son, Ernest L., 21, who was killed by a shock in the plant of the United Electric Light Company in Springfield. Prescott, with another man, Oliva Charest of Holyoke, were at work installing air ducts or flues for carrying off hot air from the building, he being a sheet metal worker. In some way Charest came in contact with a live wire above where they were working; the shock which he received staggered him and he spasmodically threw ont his hand, which came in contact with Prescott's thigh; this completed the circuit and Prescott was immediately killed by the shock. Both bodies fell to the floor, about 15 feet below, Charest striking on his head and suffering a fracture of the skull, from which he died in the hospital about five hours later. It is peculiar that Charest was not killed by the heavy voltage which passed through his body, while Prescott was. The young man's father was for many years an engineer on the Boston and Albany railroad.

If Your House Needs Painting Use S. W. P.

If your house, or barn, or buildings of any sort, need painting, don't put it off. Now—this spring—is the time to paint. A building that is kept protected from the weather, damp, sun and so on, will outlast by years a building that is allowed to go unpainted or poorly painted. It is much better business to save the building you have than buy a new one. And besides this, well painted buildings are much pleasanter to live in, and bring a much higher price if you should want to sell, than dingy, unpainted buildings.

To arrive at the cost of painting, figure the number of square feet a gallon will cover, and how long it will last, not what the paint costs a gallon. Don't simply figure what it costs to paint your house or barn, but what it costs to keep it painted year in and year out. S. W. P. is honestly made of the best raw materials obtainable, and will prove more economical and satisfactory to the man who pays the bill than either hand mixed lead and oil or the so-called "cheap ready-mixed paint." We are agents for Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared (S.W.P.) Come in and we will be glad to discuss the paint and varnish question with you.

Monson News.

CHILD DROWNED.

Young Son of Mr. and Mrs. James Burdick Fell in Pond Wednesday.

George Philip, the 19-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Burdick of Mechanic street in Monson, was drowned Wednesday morning about 10 in a pond back of his home. Mrs. Burdick was washing out near the pond where it was cool, and the little boy was playing in the front yard. Mrs. Burdick went into the house for more clothes, and upon her return missed the little one. She summoned her husband, who was at work nearby in his blacksmith shop, and they hunted everywhere in the vicinity. Finally Mr. Burdick dragged the pond, using a garden rake, and found the little boy. An employe of Mr. Burdick had been in the life saving corps for four years and knew what was necessary to be done for resuscitation, but the little fellow had been in the water about forty minutes and it was too late. While Mrs. Burdick was inside the little fellow passed through the house and pushed open the screen door into the back yard, looking for his mother. He approached the bank of the pond too closely and it caved with him, letting him into the water. Assistant Medical Examiner Jackson was called and pronounced death due to drowning. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick have the sympathy of their large circle of friends in their bereavement. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2 30.

BOTH LEGS BROKEN.

Two Monson Men in Bad Runaway Accident in Holyoke Tuesday.

Merrill Carew, a well-known liveryman of Monson, and his brother, Justin G. Carew, also of Monson, were painfully injured in Holyoke Tuesday evening, as the result of a runaway accident.

Justin Carew went that day to Northampton for the purpose of purchasing a horse for his wife to drive, and brought his brother on account of the latter's knowledge of horses. They bought the animal of a doctor and started to drive it home. When going down Lincoln street in Holyoke an electric car passed and the horse became unmanageable, giving a jump and starting at full speed. When it was seen that the animal could not be stopped, Justin Carew jumped and the swaying of the vehicle threw his brother out, breaking both of the latter's legs and severely fracturing one of them. Justin Carew received a number of painful bruises, besides burting his thigh. Assistance came at once, and both men were removed to the House of Providence hospital, where the fractures were reduced by Dr. J. L. Bliss.

The horse ran down Northampton street and collided with a wagon, broke from its harness and was not caught until late in the evening at the corner of Sargent and Sycamore streets. It was taken to a stable, but was not injured.

FIRE YESTERDAY MORNING.

S. F. Cushman's House Damaged by Fire, Smoke and Water.

An alarm was rung in about 3 o'clock yesterday morning for a fire in the house of S. F. Cushman on Main street. Repairs and alterations have been in progress there, and the cause of the blaze is attributed to spontaneous combustion in oily rags left by painters on the floor of the new billiard room. The fire was discovered by one of the servants in the house, who smelled smoke. Mr. Cushman's eldest son gave the alarm and the firemen responded promptly, getting the blaze under control in a short time, although it had made good headway when they arrived, burning through the floor into a bedroom below and penetrating into the partitions where it was hard to get at. The damage in the rest of the house is by smoke and water, and is quite extensive. The insurance is carried by the Peck agency.

Bufton—Howe.

Herbert A. Howe, formerly of Monson, and Miss Ada Bufton were married at the bride's home in Thompsonville, Ct., Wednesday afternoon at 5, the single ring service being used. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of smilax and white pinks, and the parlor was tastily decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. The bride was attired in white and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The best man was Warren Bufton, brother of the bride. David Bufton of Springfield, the eldest brother of the bride, gave her away. After the ceremony, a reception was held and refreshments were served. Guests were present from Springfield, Monson and Thompsonville. The couple were remembered with valuable and useful gifts. After a wedding trip the bride and groom will reside in Thompsonville. He is now employed as a designer with the Hartford Carpet Company of Thompsonville, Ct.

Linen Shower.

Miss Vivian Reynolds was given a linen shower by her cousin, Miss Esther R. Holmes, last week Thursday afternoon. About 20 invitations were given out, they being unique in form and written in verse on linen. During the first of the afternoon the guests busied themselves embroidering the letter "R" on towels, after which they enjoyed a cobweb party. The hall was the starting point, each guest being given a ribbon, with instructions to follow it to the end, where each one found a pretty souvenir, with the exception of Miss Reynolds, who discovered a large hamper covered with pink ribbon at the end of her ribbon. Upon opening it was found to contain choice linen of every description. Refreshments, consisting of pink ice cream and cake were served. The color scheme in the dining room decorations was pink and green, the former being a favorite color of Miss Reynolds.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES BURDICK AND FAMILY.
Monson, June 25, 1909.

She Knew One.

"I'll admit," said a prominent Philadelphia club woman, "that club life has its lighter side, and here's an instance:

"Not so long ago a misguided man was trying to address our club upon the topic, 'The Ideal Woman.' By way of introduction he asked: 'Who among you has ever known the ideal woman yourself, or known anyone who has ever been intimately associated with an ideal woman?"

"There was a depressing pause which seemed to indicate a distressing lack of 'perfect woman,' nobly planned.

"To render his oratory more effective the speaker repeated the question, and the eyes of the audience reflected surprise when a meek and badgered looking woman in the rear lifted a hand above a rusty bonnet.

"'So you have known an ideal woman?' questioned the man.

"'No,' faltered the woman, 'but I have known one intimately associated with her. She was my husband's first wife.'"—Philadelphia Press.

HEED THE WARNING

Many Palmer People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick-dust;" kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequently rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys; only they cure sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Palmer people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Chas. Royce, living on North Main street, Palmer, Mass., says: "My mother had been in poor health for a long time before we knew what the trouble was. She complained a great deal of pain in the small of her back, also had headaches and was very nervous. At times she would be troubled with chills. A friend told her she had kidney disease and advised her to try Doan's Kidney Pills. We procured them for her from Lynde and Gould's drug store, and the first few doses of this remedy gave her relief. She improved rapidly, the pains lost their severeness and she grew stronger. To-day she is in better health than she has been for a long time and it is all due to Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—DOAN'S—and take no other.

Baseball Communication.

A Bondsville baseball enthusiast sends the following for the sporting column of the Journal:

"Interest in baseball in Bondsville is just coming to a boiling point, and will just begin to sizzle by July 5, when the crack team from Thorndike makes its initial bow to the Bondsville fans. The game last Saturday with the Chapman Valve team from Indian Orchard was one of the finest exhibitions of the national game ever witnessed in Bondsville and worth going a long way to see, even though we are loath to confess to a defeat (which we expected) at the hands of "Joe Supernean's" successors. The game standing five to three is a pretty fair estimate of the teams, and the ponies accepted the defeat as coming from worthy foes. It might not be out of place to extend congratulations to Jack Bowler, who officiated as umpire to the entire satisfaction of both teams, not a single kick being registered against his decisions. The game was replete with brilliant plays and the Ponies had no serious regrets, as they showed a marked improvement over the game played in Palmer the previous Saturday, when they trimmed the stars from that metropolis 26 to 13. By the way we presume it was not an intentional error that this game was omitted from the Palmer Journal last week, and it was remarked that the editor of that paper occupied a prominent place on the players' bench. We trust, however, that the many admirers of the classical swingers of the willow from Duck will not delude themselves with the thought that it will be a repetition of that game next Saturday, when the boys from the metropolis play a return game here, for even though the local ponies are in fine fettle and hope for a victory to continue the unbroken chain, the unexpected often happens and a close game is looked for."

Notes.

The Three Rivers first team will play the Thorndikes in Thorndike to-morrow.

The Wright Wire Company team lost to the epileptic hospital team Saturday, 34 to 11.

In the Palmer Town League to-morrow, Palmer and Bondsville will play in Bondsville, and Three Rivers and Thorndike will play in Thorndike.

THE TELEPHONE AS AN INTERPRETER

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Hello, Simmons. Got back all safe, I see. Had a good time?"

"Well, yes; rather."

"You look as if you hadn't. Anything unpleasant happened?"

"I don't exactly—you see—they tell me there's a certain time in a man's life when he doesn't know whether he's done a very big thing or a very little one."

"Haven't got into trouble on account of one of your practical jokes, have you?"

"It's something like that. Come here and sit down. I'll tell you."

They had met in a city park. Simmons led the way to a bench. They seated themselves, and he began his tale of woe.

"When I was in Paris, at the pension where I stopped—they call 'em pensions over there; we call 'em boarding or hash houses here—was a French girl. I took a kind of shine to her, and I fancied she took a kind of shine to me, but neither of us could speak a word of the same language. I met Turpin over there. Remember Turpin? Red headed chap with big mole on his left cheek. He and I played jokes on each other. One day I told a gendarme to watch him for a suspicious character and had a lot of fun out of it"—

"Oh, you did, did you?"

"Yes. Well, the girl I was telling you about—it was a tantalizing business, sitting along side of her without being able to say anything to her, so I wrote out some things such as 'I'm sorry I can't talk to you' and 'Will you walk with me this afternoon in the Bois de Boulogne?' and all that. Then I asked Turpin—Turpin speaks French toferably well, you know—to write out the French for these sentences. He did so, and it helped things along amazingly with the girl. Turpin told me that 'Good morning' in French was 'Toi que j'aime' or something like that, and I noticed that she blushed every time I said it."

"Do you know what 'Toi que j'aime' means?"

"Yes; 'good morning,' of course."

"Rats! It means 'I love you.'"

Simmons stood paralyzed with surprise for a moment and then went on:

"I learned from people in the house that the girl's father had been well off, but he had lost all his property and then up and died, leaving his daughter with little or nothing. I felt sorry for her, and—well, I expect I looked it. At any rate when April came, and I started for Rome I saw a tear in her eye. It made me uneasy, for I wasn't thinking about getting mixed up in any affair, especially with a girl I couldn't talk to, but when I got on the train I forgot all about it, supposing the girl would do the same. Turpin and I went down to Rome together, and he didn't seem to think I'd done anything out of the way, and this satisfied me.

"One day, a month later, while walking down via Cavour—that's Cavour street, you know—in Rome, who should I meet but my French girl, and what do you suppose she was doing?"

"What?"

"Crying. She was so distressed about something that she didn't see me. I spoke to her, and you should have seen the relief light up her face.

"The only thing I could remember to say to her in French was 'Good morning,' so I said 'Toi que j'aime.' She burst into a fresh crying spell. I was dying to know why she was in Rome and what was the matter, but how could I since she could only jabber French at me? Then a happy thought struck me. Turpin could act as interpreter. Of course I couldn't take her to Turpin, but I might get him on a telephone and he could tell each of us what the other said. Good idea, eh?"

"Very."

"I stepped into a place where there was a 'telefono' sign and succeeded in getting Turpin just as he was starting out to visit the Roman aqueduct ruins. I told him what had happened; then the girl told him her situation; then I took the receiver and he translated the story to me. She'd answered an ad. of a Roman family for a governess to teach the children French and had been sent for to come to Rome. She was delayed for want of funds, and when at last she arrived found the family had been called suddenly to Berlin. Well, she was in a pickle.

"I telephoned Turpin to tell her that I begged she would accept funds from me to return to Paris. Turpin told her. She dropped the receiver on a table and her head on my shoulder. Then she took my arm, and the next thing I knew we were in one of those measly thousand-year-old churches over there. The girl jabbered French to a priest, which he seemed to understand, and a little English, too, for he told me that to be married I must go through the proper forms.

"It was that rascally Turpin. He'd told her that I asked her to marry me and go to America with me."

"What did you do?"

"What could I do? Go back on a thing like that? We were married and here I am."

"Well, old man, I'll call on your wife tonight, and after I've seen her and talked with her—I speak some French myself, you know—I'll tell you whether Turpin has done you a good or an evil turn."

The promise was kept and, after the call, on the doorstep the friend said:

"It's a 'horse' on Turpin; he should have got your wife for himself. You've had a big stroke of luck."

The Bee's Market Basket.

Every bee carries his market basket around his hind legs. Any one examining the body of the bee through a microscope will observe that on the hind legs of the creature there is a fringe of stiff hairs on the surface, the hairs approaching each other at the tips, so as to form a sort of cage. This is the bee's basket, and into it after a successful journey he will cram enough pollen to last him for two or three days.

Rover's Only Epitaph.

Now that both Moscow and St. Petersburg are said at intervals to be in a state of siege, one recalls one of the best stories told about the siege of Paris. A much-loved collie dog had, with great difficulty, been preserved by its doting owners from the death that befell all pets during that time of starvation; it had shared what little food came into the household; it had been kept concealed from all hungry visitors. There came at last a day, however, when it, too, had to go, and the sorrowing but famished family met its pet for the last time in the soup tureen. They ate in silence until nothing remained but a heap of bones. Then the master of the house, an absent-minded person, looked round in search of something, and said with a sigh, "How poor old Rover would have enjoyed those bones!"—New York Tribune.

She Did.

Admiral Capps, in an address to a temperance society, told how drink had once caused the downfall of a brave soldier.

In the course of the sad story he said: "Sometimes after a debauch the man would be repentant, humble. He would promise his wife to do better. But, alas! the years taught her the barrenness of all such promises.

"And one night, when he was getting to be an old man, a prematurely old man, thin limbed, stoop-shouldered, with red-rimmed eyes, he said to his wife sadly:

"'You're a clever woman, Jenny, a courageous, active, good woman. You should have married a better man than I am, dear.'

She looked at him, and, thinking of what he once had been, she answered in a quiet voice:

"I did, James."—New York Tribune.

BONDSVILLE.

Old Resident Instantly Killed.

Richard Bachaud, 64, an old and respected resident of this village, was instantly killed at North Wilbraham last Saturday afternoon, being struck by a west-bound engine on the Boston and Albany railroad. He was employed as a carpenter by the railroad and worked with the Palmer bridge gang. At the time of the accident he was working alone on the track opposite F. A. Fuller's store. He stepped out of the way of an express train and in doing so stepped directly in front of a west-bound light engine. He was instantly killed and his body badly mutilated. The body was removed to the car house and Medical Examiner E. A. Bates was called to view the body. It was later removed to his home in this village. Mr. Bachaud was a native of Milton, P. Q., Canada, but came to the states 33 years ago. Most of his life since leaving Canada had been spent in this town, with the exception of a short time in Whitinsville. Mr. Bachand was a hard-working, industrious man and his loss will be keenly felt by his family, who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. He leaves, besides a widow, four sons, Fred Bachaud of Brightwood, Albert and Henry of New Britain, Ct., and George, who lives at home, and two daughters, Mrs. George Roberts of this place and Mrs. Walter Russell of Brightwood. He also leaves 18 grandchildren. The funeral was held Monday morning from St. Anne's church in Three Rivers, Rev. Father Geoffrey officiating. The bearers were his three sons, Albert, Henry and Fred, his two sons-in-law, George Roberts and Walter Russell, and his nephew, Alfred Morrissette of Easthampton. Burial was in the cemetery at Three Rivers.

Death of Mrs. James Shea.

Mrs. Ellen Shea, 65, wife of James Shea, died at her home in this village Monday morning from injuries received by falling down stairs. She retired Sunday night as usual, but got up again. In passing from one room to another she opened the wrong door, which led to the cellar, and fell down the stairs. Dr. H. A. Smith was called and gave such aid as was possible, but she died a few hours later without regaining consciousness. Death was caused by an injury at the base of the brain. Mrs. Shea was born in Ireland, but came to this county when quite young, and had spent most of her life in this vicinity. Besides her husband, she leaves three sons, William of Springfield, Michael of Belchertown and Peter, who lives at home, and two daughters, Mrs. George Jackson of Belchertown and Miss Nellie Shea, who lives at home and teaches in the South Belchertown school. She also leaves a brother, Arthur Gloster of this village. Much sympathy is expressed for the family in their sudden and sad bereavement. The funeral was held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Bartholomew's church, Rev. B. McKeany officiating. The bearers were Thomas Gloster of Chicopee Falls, William and Thomas Granfield of Monson, Daniel Sullivan of Gilbertville, Michael Collins and Michael Bowler of this place. Burial was in the Thorndike cemetery.

Before coming here Mr. Parent lived in Peabody, and was engaged in the business of importing from Canada hemlock bark, which he sold to tanneries. His first store in this village was what is known now as the Boston Duck Company's remnant room. He bought the property where he is now located 13 years ago, and transferred his store to it, using the upper floor as a residence.

Death of Mrs. Michael Shea.

Mrs. Michael Shea, late of this place, died at the home of her granddaughter in West Warren Monday of diabetes aggravated by an attack of blood poisoning. She had lived in "Potterville" in this village for over 30 years, but was staying at her granddaughter's home at the time of her death. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. John Thomas of Springfield and Miss Mary Shea, who lived at home. She also leaves two sons, John and Michael. The lodge attended the service in a body, the Daughters of Rebekah also being represented. They came by special car from Palmer, assembling at C. D. Holden's store, and marching from there to the church. The subject of Rev. Mr. Lupien's sermon was, "What Wilt Thou Have Me To Do?" The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion with wild flowers. There was also an arch from which was suspended the Odd Fellows' emblem, the three links, made of flowers. Mrs. M. Culver and Rev. E. D. Lupien had charge of the decorations.

Doings of the Legislature

BOSTON, June 23, 1909.

Following the prorogation of the Legislature, the people who sent their representatives here to the upper and lower branches, ought, for their own protection, to take a farewell look at them before dropping them ont of mind. Here were 280 men, picked from their respective districts. Doubtless they were above the average intelligence and moral character of their constituents who sent them, for it has been a fair observation in the past that the good sense of the mass of the voters nsnally took representatives above the average, though the best men are so little in tonch with the mass of the voters, especially in the city districts, that they are not available as vote-getters. Many individual members can be named of whom only good is to be said as legislators,—and it is good policy to give credit for all the good that is done, remembering that good legislators are always at a premium and that public opinion demands education abont public duties and public men.

But, after all due personal credit is given, it remains the lamentable truth that the Legislature of 1909 has not left as good a record, on the whole, as its immediate predecessors for several years, in spite of the other fact that there has been no particular scandal or graft in connection with any measure, or any charge of bribery or secret influence. Indeed, a distinct advance can be pointed ont in the new rnle of the Senate whereby all lobbyists have been shut ont from their former resort in the Senate reading room, and still more important, from their restlng places on the sofas in the Senate chamber, right at the ear of the honorable senators where they had sat ensconsed in power and safety till public opinion and regard for common decency forced the Senate to adopt new rules and exclnde them from the chamber, the Senate corridor adjoining, and from the Senate reading room.

Since then, they have been forced to the public gallery, and it has been an interesting sight to see the old hands and new ones sitting there, watching the actions of their pawns in debate and vote upon the floor below. A pictnre might well follow the precedent of the old Roman arena, with the lords and ladies seated above and their creatures in action beneath them. Just pictnre this now, not all present at one time, but more or less of them in a group, hired to watch legislation. Perhaps there is one of them absolutely honest and incorrnptible. He has that reputation, bnt all of them are presnmably, by their conduct, hired by private interests whioh are getting more or iess ont of the public, working the many for the benefit of the few. If any important name is omitted, snch as J. Otis Wardwell, for instance, correction will be made upon information. There is George H. Fernald, for many years in the service of the Boston and Albany; ex-Senator, the honorable William A. Butler (who must not be confused with ex-Senator, the honorable William M. Butler, legal magnate and Boston elevated man); ex-Senator, the honorable Robert A. Southworth, distinguished corporation agent; ex-Representative Arthnr P. Russell, identified with the New Haven interests; ex-Representative John J. Gartland and ex-Representative J. H. McDonald, both of Boston, both new to the third Honse this session, and both, presnmably, working in the corporation contests before the General Conrt; ex-Representative Walter J. D. Bullock of several years' service in the Honse; Frank J. Ladd, probably the best professional in the list, with many strings to his bow, always genial and nnqnestionably serviceable; Charles H. Walker, who is said to have been entitled to use "Rev." as a prefix and who picks np some business in the corridors after over a dozen years' experience here; Jack Fleming, or Congdon, who has been absent since the money shark bill was passed and who, gossip says, has absented himself npon advice that it would conduce to his well being to absent himself; Ben Gibby, the suave, the enthnsiastic, the sangnine, campaign conductor for Eugene N. Foss once npon a time, and crony of former President Rufus S. Soule, typical third honse man for a romantic story; Jack Aibee, square-shonldered, reticent, businessilke, never too familiar and another ideal according to popular impressions of what lobbyists are; and William H. Whiting, best known in Pittsfield but with friends all over the state. This list does not include, or pretend to include, certain men who are registered for particular interests for the public welfare. For instance, for several years the State Grange had a registered legislative agent. The women temperance workers have had representatives who came under the legal and technical description of lobbyists, bnt snch are not in the same category as the list named above.

With such a list professionally at work npon the Legislature, familiar with most of the members as far as they can cultivate their acqnaintance, studying their districts, their peculiarities, their approachable sides, their opinions and learning their standing, bringing pressure to bear at the right spot, putting their employers in connection with essential facts, reporting every step of legislative action npon particular important measures, with the corporation lobby and corporation officials alert and the mass of the people indifferent and inactive, what chance do the public interests stand compared with the corporations? It is a wonder that the people do not get worse soaked than they do.

These men are not present at the state house from January to June for their health, or to take lessons in oratory. It is the fact that the grip of ontside interests upon the Legislature has seemed stronger this year than ever. Especially has the case been remarkable in connection with the Boston Railroad Holding Company bill, for, from the outset, as soon as the bill was reported, it was current gossip that the bill was sure to pass, and that it would make no difference what speeches were made against it. The vote of 51 to 179 and three pairs bore out this assumption made before anybody had any right to presume that the members knew their own minds upon the matter. The bill was frequently called "the Governor's bill" and the member in charge of it in the House, Mr. Garcelon of Newton, closed his speech for the bill by a straight appeal to support the Governor by voting for the bill. Yet there were more Democratic votes for it, also, than there were against it.

In other instances, particularly the Boston charter bill, there has been party politics, though, as a rule, partisanship is conspicuously absent from Massachusetts legislation. In this case, the party discipline was perfect, except in the case of a few independents. How, where and when were orders issued, and by whom? It is preposterous to suppose that there was a psychologic influence in the air which moved upon so many different minds to act as one, while the Democratic mind received no such impression, as it did in the case of the Governor's railroad bill Taking partisanship and corporations together, the Legislature has seemed further from the people this year than ever, and it has been an uphill and hopeless task to break the net woven around the members. Direct nominations are under the party ban. So is popular voting for United States senators. So are the initiative and the referendum. What makes for political independence and the rights of the people against the few is outlawed by the higher powers which rule the state supreme over law. Who declares to say he is free?

On a great many measnres there has been no interference and it would be easy to compile a long list of bills enacted by which the interests of the people have been promoted. In such a case as the telegraph bill there was no division of sentiment against the Western Union company from the governor down, with the exception of the few senators who held up the bill one day. Gov. Draper would have vetoed the bill if it had come to him with Senator Potter's amendment. Progress has been made in all the important lines coming under the heads of the different committees. Over and over again has it been illustrated what a mighty, complex and incomprehensible body the political body is, with its over 3,000,000 people, and how vastly superior is the Massachusetts practice of attending to public business when it is timely, of having annual elections and annual legislative sessions in order to give some proper share of attention to public duties, rather than neglect them and trust to luck that the outcome will be right, as is the practice in almost every other state in the Union. Massachusetts still preserves its leadership in organization and attention to the wants of the different classes. Constant attention is the best preventative of falling into the hands of party or of wealth, and though there is more than ever this year to complain of, yet other states with great interests have been and are to-day worse off in this respect than Massachusetts. A mere recital of the measnres enacted this year in agricultnre, municipal government, mercantile affairs, judicial progress, taxation reform, education, public health and so on, would demonstrate beyond dispute the advantage of attending to the business which the people every year bring to the General Court.

LANDON.

Representative Hobson of Palmer has grown steadily during his three years as member of the House. He is doubtless the most popular man, if a ballot could be taken to show it. He has been in the chair repeatedly and he has caught on to the parliamentary way of doing business, so that he is well qnalified for permanent presiding officer. He is one of the best debaters on the floor and he makes his points effectively, without beating around the bush. He expects now to retire to the practice of his profession for the next two years, and he is in line for promotion to the Senate when it comes the turn of the Hampden county end of the district, which is supposed to come two years from now. But there is this fact to remember, that the Worcester county end is about four times as big as the Hampden, and it may not agree that the time shall be divided equally between the counties.

Senator Norcross has made a good legislator during his long service in the House and Senate. He has been more independent than most of the members are; he does his own thinking and votes as he believes is right, not as some one tells him.

Let the children have all the Williams' Root Beer they want. Help them through the summer. Always pleases.

Carpenter-Morton Roofing can be used with very satisfactory results on either a flat roof, slanting roof or peaked roof. It is a non-conductor of heat and cold. The upper rooms of a dwelling are cooler in summer and warmer in winter than when other roofing materials are used. Mr. T. D. Potter, Bondsville, carries a full stock. Booklet and samples furnished free.

Bavarian Distances.

In the Bavarian highlands signposts along the roads, instead of stating the number of miles or kilometers to the various villages, give the amount of time which the average pedestrian will supposedly take to traverse the distance. This is merely an official expression of the very general custom of the peasants in the region, who invariably tell inquirers on the roads not how far it is to a place, but how long it takes to get there. Not only that, but they make the system still more unsatisfactory to the stranger by a little additional eccentricity of their own.

For instance, one asks, "How far is it to Oberammergau?"

"A small half hour," will be the answer, or perhaps "A good half hour" or "A big half hour."

Which is puzzling until the stranger learns that a "small half hour" means twenty-five minutes, "a good half hour" thirty minutes, "a big half hour" thirty-five minutes, "a small three-quarters of an hour" forty minutes, and so on.

An Economic Protest.

"Did I understand you to ask me if I wanted work?" asked Plodding Pete.

"That's what you understood, if you understood anything," answered the woman with a cold, steely eye and a square jaw.

"You've got some wood that needs chopping, I suppose."

"I have."

"Lady, I'm surprised at you. Don't you know dat de trees gather moisture gradually an' by slowly lettin' it into de ground keep up a steady water supply? Don't you know dat when you leave de hillsides naked an' bare de water comes down in a freshet, same as beer from a barrel wit' de head stove in? Don't you know dat future generations is goin' to miss de umbrageous protection overhead an' dat our grandchildren is liable to be at de mercy of a parasol trust? An' you want me to chop wood! Lady, I'm surprised at you!"—Washington Star.

His Wonderful Method.

"You haven't been married very long, have you?" said a guide at the state capitol to a young man who was signing "Mr. and Mrs." in the register for visitors at the desk at the entrance.

"How did you know?" demanded the young man.

"Oh, we get used to such people here and can tell them every time," was the response. "You haven't written that name with "Mrs." very long, have you? I believe I can tell how long you have been married from the signature," the guide continued.

"Well, we haven't been married very long, but I don't see how you can tell from the signature. How long has it been?"

"Well, let me see." The guide picked up the book and scanned the name closely.

"You have been married five days today," he said with an air of certainty.

"That's right, it's five days, but I don't see how you can tell."

The young wife had been sitting on the marble bench during the colloquy, and not until the couple went out of the building did she tell "hubby" that the guide had accosted her in the same way and that she had told when they had been married. St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Won a Wife by His Skill.

Action was a Grecian painter of about the time of Alexander, and he won his wife by his great work. He painted a picture called "The Nuptials of Alexander and Roxane," which was exhibited at the Olympic games. It created such a stir that one of the judges cried in admiration, "I reserve crowns for the victorious athletes, but I give my daughter in marriage to the painter Action as a recompense for his picture." Action was one of the artists who excelled in the art of mixing colors. He could not go to the nearest store and purchase them, as artists do today.

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured." — MRS. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Kickapoo Theories of "Herb Medicines" Explained

Trial Bottles of Sagwa Presented free to Visitors

In connection with this interesting Indian Exhibit at Bay State Drug Store, now in progress, a representative of the Kickapoo Medicine Company is explaining to the public, the Kickapoo theories of herb medicines. The public is invited to this demonstration. Everybody is welcome. The demonstration goes on all day and evening. Trial bottles of Kickapoo Sagwa will be presented free to everybody who calls, provided they desire to make a test of Sagwa as an appetizer, as a medicine which creates natural hunger, which helps nature to help herself, which cures even severest stomach ailments in four to six weeks and completely restores the digestive powers.

This demonstration is one of a series of public demonstrations, which have been given during the last six months in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. These demonstrations represent one of the most interesting movements of the present day.

Everybody has his own theory about medical treatment. Some people believe that most diseases can be cured by the surgeon's knife, and so they cut and slash and maim every time they get a chance. Other sects believe that strong drugs in smallest doses create the best results in medicines. And so they treat with medicines that everybody has to take with great fear, lest too large doses be taken by accident, or lest the drugs remain in the system even after the diseases in question are apparently cured.

There is another school of medicine — if one can call it medicine — which believe that practically all diseases can be cured by "mental" treatments.

Then there is a fourth school of medicine which is so important that it is divided into various sects. This Kickapoo demonstration is in belief of this fourth school.

This fourth class believes that the surgeon's knife should never be used, except as a last extremity; that dangerous mineral and similar products should practically never be used; that mental healing is a fad which is already dying out because it has no solid foundation of accomplished results to stand on.

This school believes that medicines, composed of roots, barks, twigs, leaves, seeds, and berries are the most beneficial, because they assist Nature in the right way and Nature makes the cure.

They go back to the Indians. They have studied the health and the medical treatment of the Indians. They know that the Native American Indian, before ruined by modern civilization, was the healthiest race on the face of the globe. This demonstration is held for the purpose of explaining these herb theories and of giving trial bottles of Sagwa—the herb medicine which cures stomach, liver, and kidney diseases, to each person who visits the demonstrator

These demonstrations have already attracted the attention of hundreds of thousands of people in other towns. They have been held in Bangor, Portland, Augusta, Lewiston, Bath, Biddeford, Waterville, and other towns in Maine. Concord, Portsmouth, Dover, and elsewhere in New Hampshire. In addition they have been held in Fall River, Northampton, Springfield, Lowell, Salem, Lynn, Lawrence, New Bedford, Taunton, Quincy, Beverly, Malden, Haverhill, Holyoke, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, and many other towns.

Everywhere people have come to the demonstrators to learn about herb medicines. They know that they are now suffering from various ailments. They know that their health is at a low ebb They know that they have headaches, backaches, stomachaches; they know that they have pain in their joints, in their neck, in their side, in their muscles. They know that they feel weak, exhausted, and run down. They know that they can't do their work as they should. They know that they have tried doctors of all kinds, and still suffer in the same way. They know that they have talked with their friends about their ailments, and have tried all kinds of various things suggested by their friends, and still have the same ailments. Many of them have been suffering so long that they have become cynical. They believe that they are incurable. Some of them think that they have a certain disease—others do not know what is the trouble. All they know is that their health is far below par.

One thing that they do want—that everybody wants—is relief from suffering, freedom from disease, and a return to perfect health and strength. They want to feel as they once felt, ready for a lark, full of life, equal to any exertion, able to do their work and enjoy it, and have a good night's sleep afterwards—no matter how hard they work.

A free trial bottle of Sagwa has proven to be the best and quickest means of breaking down the skepticism and prejudice of such ailing people—whether they have recently begun to suffer or have been ailing so long that they look upon themselves as "Chronics" or incurable. Wherever, in New England, at these Kickapoo Exhibitions, the largest number of Sagwa trial bottles have been given away, there have always, and invariably followed the largest sales of Sagwa. Isn't that convincing proof of the efficiency of Kickapoo Sagwa as a cure of Weak Stomachs?

All such people, as mentioned above, are invited to this Kickapoo Exhibition This probably means that hundreds of people will call to talk with the demonstrator. bottles of Sagwa—the herb medicine which cures stomach, liver, and kidney diseases, to each person who visits the demonstrator where the demonstration has already been held, two, three, four, and sometimes five hundred people called in one day. The longer the exhibition lasts, the more people call; consequently, it is very advantageous to those who are interested in finding out exactly what ails them to call immediately, so that the demonstrator can give more time to each person. The demonstration is not in the form of a lecture to a crowd It is a personal, confidential talk between the demonstrator and the visitor. The demonstrator has become veryskillful in diagnosing various ailments, having talked with so many thousands of people, who have called at the exhibitions, in other cities. The trial bottle of Sagwa presented free to each visitor is to be carried home and taken before each meal. After the first meal, you will be interested more. By the time the free trial bottle is nearly used up, you will be going straight to the drug store for a regular bottle of Sagwa; for then you will know that at last you have found the right medicine.

The Kickapoo medicines are not secret, unknown medicines. The ingredients are printed on each package. You know exactly what you are taking. They are a great deal plainer to you than the ingredients of a doctor's prescription. Not only are the ingredients the best medicines of their kind, but by the Kickapoo special combination of these ingredients the highest efficiency is obtained. Therefore, even though the same ingredients were put together in a prescription and taken, they would not accomplish the same results as the genuine Kickapoo medicines.

These Kickapoo medicines have through 25 years of increasing success proved their remarkable merit. They are known all over the country, and everybody knows just what such Kickapoo Medicine contains. They are in accordance with the Pure Food Law—indeed, they go far beyond what the Pure Food Law requires. They are in accordance with all of the best modern teachings regarding the printing of all of the ingredients on each package.

Furthermore, the Kickapoo medicines are sold under absolute guarantee to be satisfactory or money refunded. You will not have to make any difficult claim to get your money back, either. Simply inform the druggist from whom you bought any Kickapoo Medicine, that you did not get the results that you expected, and he is authorized by The Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Clintonville, Conn., to immediately refund your money. If you have any Stomach or Liver trouble, or any ailment that might come indirectly from disordered digestion, we advise that you go at once to Bay State Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of Kickapoo Sagwa, and learn more about the Kickapoo Theory of "Herb Medicines."

DEATH OE E. R. PIERCE.

Well-known Landlord of Palmer For Many Years.

IN POOR HEALTH ABOUT FIVE YEARS.

Successful Business Man, Widely Popular, And Member of Numerous Organizations.

In the death of Edwin R. Pierce, proprietor of the Converse House, the town of Palmer loses one of its best known and most popular business men. Mr. Pierce had been in poor health for about five years, but had made a remarkable struggle for health and for a time was considerably improved, his condition becoming critical only recently. Death came at 3.15 last Friday afternoon, the result of a complication of diseases.

Mr Pierce was 58 years old. He was the son of Nathan G. and Roxana Pierce, and was born in Westminister, Vt., Nov. 2, 1850. His father was a farmer of means, and much in the public life of Westminister. The son attended the public schools of the town and Westminister Academy, remaining at home until he was 21 years of age, when he went to Holyoke and took a position with the Whiting Paper Company, where in two years he became overseer of his department, remaining with the company 15 years. Mr. Pierce was a Republican in politics and took a large interest in public affairs. He represented ward 3 in the Holyoke city council for two years, and introduced the order which finally resulted in the installation of the fire alarm telegraph system. He was chairman of the committee of installation, and on its completion was appointed superintendent of the system, which under his management was increased from a two-circuit to a six-circuit system. For seven years he was a member of the Holyoke fire department and for three years foreman of the Mt. Tom Hose Company.

Mr Pierce went from Holyoke to Swampscott, as one of the organizers of the New England Oxygen Company, acting as general manager of the company for two years and then disposing of his interest. He then became manager of the American House in Springfield, and after two years there bought the Converse House in Palmer, refurnishing it and taking the management personally. After three years he sold the hotel and traveled extensively abroad, making a study of hotel management. Returning to this country he took the management of the Haynes Hotel in Springfield, but after a year there he again purchased the Converse House, which he continued until his death, although for a time he was temporary manager of the Russell Hotel in Springfield. His business in Palmer had been a prosperous one, and Mr. Pierce had been deservedly popular as a hotel man.

Mr. Pierce was a member of Roswell Lee lodge of Masons and Springfield commandery, K. T., and of Hampden chapter and Washington council of Palmer. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias, holding membership in the grand lodge of Massachusetts. He was a member of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men of Palmer, and of the Palmer Business and Social Club.

Mr. Pierce married, Dec. 21, 1874, Miss Elizabeth Hutchinson of Burlington, Vt., who survives him. He also leaves one brother, Dr. William H. Pierce of Greenfield.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Universalist church, the pastor, Rev. F. W. Gibbs, officiating. Mrs. S. R Carsley presided at the organ. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, as Mr. Pierce was widely known and universally liked. After the service by Mr. Gibbs, the Knights Templar service was conducted by Springfield commandery, with singing by the Temple quartet. There were a large number of floral offerings, among them several pieces from organizations to which Mr. Pierce belonged. The bearers were Capt. H. E. W. Clark, H. A. Northrop, F. N. Carpenter, H D. Converse, H. W. Holbrook and E. W. Carpenter. The body was taken Monday morning to Westminster, Vt., for burial.

WILBRAHAM.

Fred M. Robbins and family of Greenfield have moved into the Holman house on Springfield street.

The following committees will have charge of the Fourth of July celebration: Parade committee, E. C. Clark, George Crawford; field sports, John Lyons, Allen Robb, F. A. Gurney; finance, Wilbur Gebo, Graham Chapin and Robert Downey.

BRIMFIELD.

Verdict For Defendant.

The case of Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer, administrator of the estate of Mary Helen Thomas, late of Brimfield, against the Monson Savings Bank was heard in the superior court in Springfield Monday, and Tuesday the jury returned a verdict for the defendant. Mr. Hobson claimed that Mrs. Thomas had a deposit of $1000 in the Monson Savings Bank at the time of her death, and that, although the money was deposited in her name, her husband, Albert Thomas, drew the money out for his own use. Mr. Thomas and the bank officials maintained that the money deposited was that of Mr. Thomas, and that he had simply deposited it in the name of his wife a few weeks before her death. Charles G. Gardner appeared for the estate, and Judge Thomas E Kenefick appeared for the bank.

Mrs. Emily Wilkinson and Miss Julia T. Brown of Springfield with Miss Fisk have been spending a week at the hotel.

Misses Hazel and Anna Brackett and Master George Brackett are with their parents at the hotel for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Brackett recently returned from Lynn, where they attended the graduation of their daughter, Miss Hazel, from the Lynn high school.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lincoln Peirce of Newtonville have opened their summer home, the residence formerly of Samuel A Hitchcock, and are spending the month in town.

Among those entertained at the home of Mrs. Streeter over commencement were Rev. Willard Streeter of Oakham, Julius Cowan, a graduate of the Academy in the class of 1904, and Mrs. Chamberlain of Worcester.

An automobile party over Sunday at the hotel included Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lawrence of Chelsea, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ladd of Beachmont, Miss Cora Ladd of Laconia, N. H., and H. W. Wheeler of Detroit, Mich.

Frederick Read of Providence, R. I., has been spending the week in town. Mr. Read was a pupil of the Hitchcock Free Academy for a time, and is now teacher in the commercial department of one of the high schools in Providence. He is a writer of text-books on bookkeeping.

AUTO HIT CONDUCTOR.

Palmer Man Knocked From Electric in Sturbridge by Worcester Car.

Charles B. Doherty, a conductor on the Worcester division of the street railway, was knocked from his car and severely though not seriously hurt in Sturbridge Sunday evening.

He was in charge of the express car due in Palmer at 8.15 in the evening, and while standing on the running board collecting fares was knocked off by a large automobile which came up behind him, a part of the machine striking him in the small of the back. The occupants of the car apparently did not want to stop, but one of the number jumped out to see the extent of the man's injuries and the rest had to wait for him. The party refused to give their names, but the number of the machine was secured and was later found to be owned by a Worcester man.

Doherty was taken aboard the car and brought to Palmer, arriving about 8.50, and was taken to his home on Park street. Dr. J. P. Schneider was summoned and found no bones broken, although there were numerous scratches and bruises. He was unable to determine whether there were internal injuries or not, but there evidently were none, as the injured man has been improving steadily and will probably be out again in a few days.

NEW CIGARET LAW.

Copies of Law Must Be Posted Where "Coffin Nails" Are On Sale.

There went into effect to-day a new law which is in reality an old statute amended, dealing with the retail sale of cigarets and the posting of signs bearing copies of the law as amended. The new law comes under chapter 346 of the acts of 1909, and was approved by Gov. Draper May 3. The whole intent of the law is to give adequate publicity to the cigaret law, which since its passage has not been enforced as rigidly as it might have been. Since 1901 it has been against the law for any one other than the parent or guardian of a minor to sell or give a cigaret to any person under 18 years of age, but the enforcement of this law has been somewhat lax. The law reads as follows:—

Section 1 Section 3 of chapter 213 of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following: A copy of this section, printed in not less than 18-point capitals, bold face, shall be conspicuously posted in the shop or other place of sale used by any person selling cigarets at retail, and whoever violates this provision shall be punished as above described,—so as to read as follows: Section 3. Whoever sells a cigaret to a person under 18 years of age, or whoever sells snuff or tobacco in any of its forms to a person under 16 years of age, or not being his parent or guardian, gives a cigaret to a person under 18 years of age, or gives snuff or tobacco in any of its forms to a person under 16 years of age, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $50. A copy of this section, printed in letters not less in size than 18 point capitals, bold face, shall be posted conspicuously in the shop or other place of sale used by any person selling cigarets at retail, and whoever violates this provision shall be punished as above described.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the police department of cities and towns where such exist, and of constables in towns not having a police department, to see that a copy of the said section 3, as above amended, is posted in a conspicuous place where it can easily be read, in every shop or place where cigarets are sold at retail. Any person unlawfully removing the said copy while cigarets are still sold on the premises where it is posted shall be subject to a penalty of $10

Section 3 Copies of the said section, printed as above specified, shall be prepared by the state board of health, and shall be delivered without charge to the cities and towns applying for them.

Section 4 This act shall take effect 60 days after its passage.

Approved May 3, 1909.

This new law not only provides that properly printed copies of the cigaret law shall be posted wherever cigarets are sold at retail, but it requires the state board of health to furnish the copies and the local police authorities to see that these are posted. The Massachusetts anti-cigaret league is sending out circulars for the purpose of having the newly-amended law given as much publicity as possible.

BEE KEEPERS' BEHALF.

Institute to be Held in Haydenville Saturday of Next Week.

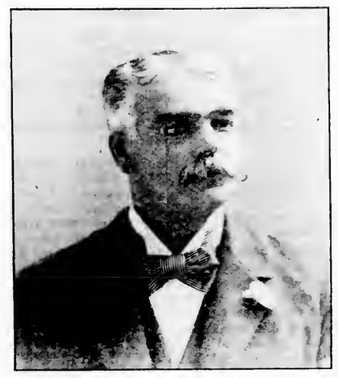
The State Board of Agriculture and the Massachusetts Agricultural experiment station will unite in holding an institute for those interested in bee keeping, in Haydenville on Saturday of next week. The institute is to be held in the apiary of W. M. Purrington, and will be addressed by the noted expert of the division of apiculture of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. Burton N. Gates, who has made a special study of bee keeping in Massachusetts. His subject will be: "The new bee keeping possibilities in Massachusetts." Mr. Gates will speak at 10 in the morning, and a full opportunity will be given for question and discussion. In the afternoon the organization of the Hampshire, Hampden and Franklin County Bee Keepers' Association will be completed and business of importance to all bee keepers transacted.

LUDLOW CENTER.

The Methodist Sunday school will hold its annual picnic Wednesday, July 28.

The assessors have completed their tax list and announce the tax rate to be $13.70 a thousand, $1 less than last year.

District Superintendent Kennedy will preach Sunday evening at the Methodist church, and the first quarterly conference will be held.



H. F. A. GRADUATION.

Venerable Institution Sends Out Another Class.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT EXERCISES.

Class Numbers Eleven. Presentation to School. Reception by Trustees in Evening.

The graduation exercises of the Hitchcock Free Academy were held in the Congregational church in Brimfield last Friday afternoon. There was a large attendance, composed of townspeople and people from neighboring towns, of whom alumni of the school formed a large number. It was planned to have the former members of the school sit together, and about 50 met in the vestry and marched in with the school. The decorations, which were in the hands of the class of 1910, followed a scheme which varied much from that of any previous year and gave the entire auditorium an unusually festive and artistic appearance. The class colors were gold and turquoise blue, and streamers of these colors wound together were festooned from the center of the ceiling to the middle hight of the walls of the auditorium. The class colors also formed the background of the speakers, a plain surface of blue being lightly barred with vertical streamers of yellow which reached to an arch above bearing the class motto, "Fidele en tout," in gilt letters. The front of the platform was edged with a low bank of laurel blossoms, and a Roman arch of the same led to the platform on either side. Palms and ferns flanked the speakers, and against the platform, facing the broad aisle of the auditorium, rested the picture of Samuel A. Hitchcock, the founder of the Academy.

Preceding the program Principal Kenney made appropriate remarks relative to the changes that have been taking place in the nature of educational work, which tends to become more practical, and said that the Academy has its part in this development, as the parts of the afternoon would indicate. The program was as follows, the music being by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield:

Acceptance of Gift and Presentation of Diplomas.
Benediction.

The gift to the school, whose presentation was by Forrest J. Whittemore, president of the class, was out of the ordinary course of school presents. It consisted of the sum of $40 to be applied to the purchase of a turning lathe and other material for the proposed course in manual training which is to be introduced into the school. The amount in the class treasury which could be so given came principally from the proceeds of the presentation of "The Rivals" by the class at the close of the spring term. The gift was accepted in behalf of the trustees of the Academy by Charles H. Walker of Warren. Mr. Walker expressed with deep feeling the appreciation of the school of the gift which meets a distinct need at this time. He also made an appeal to the alumni present for assistance in the means of broadening the scope of the Academy, which is now using its funds up to their margin. Mr. Walker said that the school is noted for the loyalty of its alumni, which needs now to be expressed in a practical way.

In the absence of Dr. Norwood, president of the trustees, Mr. Walker also presented the diplomas. In his remarks to the class Mr. Walker told of the pride and satisfaction with which the trustees had watched the class, and of their appreciation of the good influence it had exerted on the school.

The reception in the evening followed a different plan from that of preceding years and was one that proved to be an unusual and enjoyable occasion. The reception was given by the trustees to the senior class and their parents and present and former pupils of the Academy. The arrangements for the details of the special reception were in the hands of Dr. R. V. Sawin, and those besides Dr. Sawin who formed the receiving party were the faculty of the Academy with Mrs. Kenney and the senior class. Those who presented the alumni and others were Miss Lydia B. Hitchcock, class of '90; Miss Alice Sawin, class of '06; Miss Alice Lombard, class of '04; Charles L. Peirce, class of '99, Lester S. Parker, class of '06, John Newton, class of

LABOR LEADER DEAD.

Frank K. Foster, a Native of Palmer, Dies in Waverly.

Frank Keyes Foster, who was born in Palmer Dec. 18, 1855, and was well known far and wide as a champion of organized labor, died Tuesday night at the McLean hospital in Waverly, where he had been undergoing treatment for several months. His education was obtained in the schools of Palmer and in Monson Academy. He went to Boston in 1880 and was soon made president of the Cambridge Typographical Union, which sent him as delegate to the international union at St. Louis, where he was chosen by that body delegate to the federation of trades convention at Cleveland, O. In 1883 he represented the Boston central trades and labor union as delegate to the same body, and was chosen secretary. When 31 years of age he was the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, being nominated by the convention at Worcester. The candidate for governor was John F. Andrew, and Mr. Foster received 114,839 votes to Mr. Andrews' 112,833. Mr. Foster was the author of numerous books and essays on the labor question. The Boston Traveler spoke thus of him editorially:

In the death of Frank K Foster organized labor and, indeed, all labor, loses a devoted and brilliant friend. For many years he had worked not only with his whole soul but with every atom of physical and mental energy there was in him for the bettering of conditions of workingmen everywhere. It is no exaggeration to say that the incessant toil he permitted, nay, even commanded himself to do, was in part at least the cause of his untimely breakdown and sad death. Bitterly opposed to slave-driving methods in every department of industry, he was the slave-driver of himself because he gave himself no respite from that almost lifelong struggle what he conceived to be injustice and inequality in the treatment of those who toil.

Frank Foster's career is a particularly inspiring one to review in that it possessed nothing of self-seeking. All that came to the man in honors and preferment came because it was inevitably right and just that it should be so. Of him was made a leader not because he shouted to the world any fitness of his own, but because by all the acts of his life were demonstrated those qualities that make for supervision and control.

Frank K. Foster was not only a leader but a profound thinker on all sociological lines. In spite of European doctrines which he studied deeply he was never carried away by socialistic errors or the mouthings of semi-anarchy. He knew that reforms were needed, but he was the man to reform peaceably from within and not by violence from without. He will perhaps longest be remembered for his sanity, for the cool, calm judgment of his decisions, and the great charity which he showed even to those who were not his industrial friends.

The world—not alone of labor but of all human endeavor—will miss the passing of this eminent man of affairs. The ranks will fill up and the soldiers in the cause of better industrial conditions will again come shoulder to shoulder; but both in the ranks and in the tents of the councils the rare personality, the far-seeing sagacity and the tireless energy of this fallen chieftain will long be missed.

The public schools, with the exception of the high school, closed Friday noon for the summer vacation. The high school closed yesterday, with the graduating exercises last evening.

Frank Markwha had his left shoulder badly cut Monday noon by falling on a broken bottle, while engaged in a friendly game near his boarding place on West Main street. Dr. John E Dalton was summoned and found it necessary to take four stitches to close the wound.

The semi-annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society was held in the Congregational chapel Sunday evening, when these officers were elected: President, Howard S. Curtis; vice president, Miss Corzelia Spencer; secretary, Miss Lena Walker; treasurer, Charles A. DeLand Jr.; pianist, Miss Olive Thompson.

Pride of Conrt Warren circle of Foresters has elected the following officers: Chief Companion, Miss Nellie King; subchief companion, Miss Mary A. Sheridan; financial secretary, Mrs. Joseph L. Gendron; treasurer, Miss Mary A. Kelly. The officers will be installed July 8 by Miss Virginia Moriarty of Worcester and a committee composed of Miss Mary A. Sheridan, Mrs. Joseph L. Gendron, Miss Nora T. Lynch and Miss Katharine Connell was appointed to confer with the committee from Court Warren in regard to a joint installation and make arrangements for the same.

The graduation exercises of the Warren high school were held Wednesday evening in the town hall, and diplomas were presented to the 19 members of the class by Charles A. Deland, chairman of the school committee. The members are: Nettie S. Allen, Nellie J. Barnes, Dennis F. Barry, Susan W. Bill, Helen Closson, William S. Corollo, Stanley W. Crosby, Mary E. Ennis, Madeline F. Quinlan, Roger E. Reed, Charles H. Risley, James O. Robinson, William J. Runyan, William W. Shuttleworth, Jennie E. Skipper, Louise L. Spencer, Arthur R. Stone, Rose I. It was discovered Friday morning that someone had broken a window in the ticket office at the Boston and Albany depot some time Thursday night, and after removing the catch, had entered the office. Two drawers were pried open, and from one 35 pennies were obtained and as the other contained only season and trip tickets, none of these were taken. The same persons, probably, then proceeded down Main street to the store of P. J. Dailey & Co. and broke into two penny-in-the-slot machines fastened to the outside of the building, but did not obtain much money or gum, as the former had been recently removed. No clue has been obtained as to their identity.

The Rural Improvement Society observed "tag day" Tuesday, "for a more attractive Warren" and netted about $100.

The assessors have completed their work and announce the tax rate, $19.20 on $1000, as against $19 10 in 1908. The total amount of real estate is $1,384,634, and personal estate, $539,333, an increase in the total valuation of about $57,000. The number of polls is 1173, or nine less than last year. The town grant this year was $2300 more than a year ago, and that is the reason of the increase of 10 cents on $1000 in the rate. The amounts to be raised are: State tax, $2760; state highway tax, $205; county tax, $2147; funded debt, $3015; floating debt, $366 13; town grant, $37,415; overlay, $351.69. To offset this total there are estimated receipts of $9913 65.

J The funeral was from Washburn's undertaking rooms in Springfield last evening, the body being taken to Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y., for burial.

QUIET GRADUATION.

No Splurge Over Distribution of High School Diplomas Wednesday.

The members of the senior class of the high school received their diplomas of graduation unostentatiously Wednesday morning and closed their active connection with that institution. He served four years in the Civil War, enlisting from Enfield, and was in the 27th and 56th regiments, being in the Wilderness campaign and the battles around Petersburg. After the war he lived in Enfield and later in Monson, but for the past 19 years had lived in Palmer, being a familiar figure about the streets. He was a member of Marcus Keep G. A. R post of Monson. Warner—Hagar.

Warner in Sunderland. The ceremony was performed by the groom's brother, Rev. Charles S. Hagar, pastor of the Congregational church in Albany, N. Y., and the pronouncement was made by Rev. L. B. Chace, the bride's pastor. The wedding march was rendered by Mrs. Frank Keith of Palmer. The bride was gowned in white batiste, trimmed with val lace, and she wore a veil. The couple left during the afternoon for a wedding trip and upon their return will live just below Sugar Loaf Mountain and near the home of Mr. Hagar's father, Dexter F. Hagar, with whom he carries on a large farm.

Forest Lake Theater.

The show at Forest Lake Theatre this week—the Guy Brothers minstrels—is all to the good and has been drawing large audiences every afternoon and evening. There is the usual minstrel first part, which is better than usual; in the after part there is a clever bag-punching act, a monologue, some fine hand-balancing and feats of strength, and a dancing number by seven members of the company.

There will be a change in the character of the show next week, when vaudeville will be the program. In the list of attractions are the Musical Buskirks with their whimsicality entitled "Flannigan and the Messenger Boy," a sketch which combines music, dancing, singing, whistling and some very odd instruments. The Regal Trio furnish fun with their singing and talking trio. The novelty of the bill is Rem Brandt, a man who shoots pictures from a pistol; he shoots colors onto the canvas with firearms and gets most remarkable results. The Langweed Sisters have an amusing specialty consisting of dancing, singing and comedy work. There will be three performances Monday, at 2, 4 and 8.15, with the usual Sunday concerts

Dutilly—O'Reilly.

Miss Eva M. Dutilly and Patrick J. O'Reilly of Milford were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Thomas' church by Rev. F. A. Lane. Miss Ernestine M. Dutilly, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Charles O'Reilly of Milford was best man. The bride wore a pearl silk gown, trimmed with lace, and wore a black picture hat and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid was attired in blue silk, wore a black picture hat and carried roses. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents on Pine street and the couple left at noon for the West. They will be at home to their friends in Amherst after September 1st.

CRYSTAL WEDDING.

Palmer Grange Celebrates Anniversary of Two of its Members.

Palmer Grange, at its regular meeting last Friday evening, observed the fifteenth marriage anniversary of two of its members, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Jones. There was singing by male and mixed quartets, solo by Mr. Knight, reading of an original poem by Miss Hazel Thayer, presentation by F. E. Davis, and singing of "America" by the company. Refreshments were served and games were played until a late hour. Friends and relatives were present from the neighboring towns, and all enjoyed the evening to the full. Mr. and Mrs. Jones received many reminders of the occasion. A. R. Jenks and Miss Mildred Eaton ushered. The original poem, written by Mrs. Fred Collis:

Amid June's sweet-scented splendor,
When the birds sing light and gay,
To a happy youth and maiden
Came an all-important day.

And the wedding bells chimed softly,
As we listening heard them say:
"I will take" each one the other,
To walk with me life's way.

And the years that went before them
Seemed but to lead to this;
And the future showed but dimly
Thro' the cloud of rosy bliss.

'T was half-past five, June 25th,
In eighteen hundred ninety-four;
Just fifteen years have passed since then,
We wished them many more.

All months are not sweet-scented,
Some must be cold and gray;
Nor all days be as rosy
As the happy wedding day.

But as old Mother Nature
Needs the sunshine and the rain
To bring the perfect fruitage,
Her rich stores of fruit and grain,

So all of the joys and sorrows
That these fifteen years have brought,
Were but God's chosen elements
To bring perfect deed and thought.

Now again we meet to wish them
The best of life's good cheer;
And we pray that still together
They will meet the coming years.

And when the years in passing
Bring to their hair the gray,
May we, with their children's children,
Make them a golden wedding day.

At first he was unable to get in the room on account of the smoke, but finally succeeded in opening a window and then threw the stove out, where the fire was soon extinguished. Other articles in the house had caught from the blaze, but the fire in these was quickly extinguished, and the damage will be small.

Advertised Too Late—No Show.

Lewando's Bay State Shows visited Palmer last Saturday and pitched tents on the Lawrence lot on the Thorndike road. The advance agent did not appear in town until about the middle of Friday forenoon and the "paper" which he put up was not at all numerous, consequently the crowd at the afternoon performance was a minus quantity, so much so that no show was attempted. An effort to arouse interest was made about 3 in the afternoon by a street parade, but there was not enough attendants in the evening to warrant a performance, and all Palmer saw of the "circus" was the parade.

Notes.

The Thorndike and Bondsville teams will play in Bondsville next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. This game is expected to be an interesting one, as the Thorndike team has won every game so far.

Next Monday at 10 in the morning Thorndike and Bondsville will play at Bondsville, and as Bondsville is one game behind Thorndike a spirited contest is sure to result. At 3 in the afternoon Three Rivers and Palmer play at Palmer. Rogers and Cahill will be Three Rivers' battery, with Harvey and Dowd for Palmer. It is likely to be a hot game and should draw a large attendance.

To-morrow is an open date in the Palmer Town League, and the Palmer team will play the Trackers of Holyoke on the home grounds at 3 30 in the afternoon. Nelson and St John will be the Palmer battery. The Trackers have won eight out of eleven games played this season, and a good game is expected, as the Palmer boys are practicing every night and showing marked improvement. The other teams in the league will play as follows: Bondsville will play the Gilbertvilles at Bondsville; Thorndike will play in West Warren and Three Rivers in North Brookfield.

Manager "Bill" Donovan is to be congratulated on the zeal which he has displayed in furnishing games for the baseball fans in Bondsville, and they certainly have no kick coming as regards the number of games played on the home ground so far this season. But as regards the game played last Saturday they certainly have just occasion to murmur, and many a hot rooter was seen to hang his head in shame; that they looked for a place to hide it was equally apparent. As intimated in the communication last week, the unexpected happened, for the team from the Metropolis trimmed the Ponies to the tune of 17 to 11 There is not a person from Bondsville who witnessed the game but admitted that Palmer worked for and deserved the victory; that the Ponies deserved the defeat goes without saying. The only consolation the team has in the interest of baseball Palmer was entitled to win, and we take off our hats for the grit displayed in laying it on as thick as they did in the last inning. A close game is expected to-morrow with Gilbertville, but it will be as skim milk is to cream when the "Pride from Thorndike" make their courtesy here on Monday at 10. It is sizzling now, the question is, "Will the lid come off?"

MUSTN'T SELL PROPERTY.

Injunction Prohibiting Transfer of Certain Real Estate.

A temporary injunction has been issued by Judge F. G. Fessenden restraining Minnie E. Foskit of Monson from selling certain real estate in Monson and from transferring mortgages on the property until an accounting has been made. The injunction was sought by Judge T. W. Kenefick in a bill in equity entered in the superior court in Springfield Monday against Minnie E. Foskit. Mr Kenefick stated in the bill that on January 23, 1902, William A. Beebe, who then owned the property in question, conveyed the property to the Palmer savings bank. The property was subject to redemption on payment of $1,000. On January 20, 1904, Minerva J. Beebe conveyed the property, subject to the mortgage to the bank, to Lewis A. Conant, by a second mortgage of $300. By assignment the two mortgages have become the property of the defendant. The equity of redemption is now vested in Mr. Kenefick, who brings equity proceedings that an accounting may be made in order that the amount due the defendant may be ascertained.

Fay—Buffington.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Fay on Main street, when their daughter, Katherine, was married to Howard Arthur Buffington The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Andrews of the Congregational church, the single ring service being used. The ushers, Henry Johnson of Shelburne Falls and R. S. Baldwin Jr. of Brookline was matron of honor and Misses Caroline L Gates of Amherst and Vivian Reynolds of Monson were bridesmaids. The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with old lace; she wore a tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bride's gifts to her attendants were pararols and the ushers received card-cases from the groom Allan J. Buffington, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The house was prettily decorated with laurel, roses and ferns, the ceremony being performed before a large mirror banked with laurel and ferns. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Fay and Mrs. Charles R. Buffington assisted the bridal couple in receiving. Holmes at her residence on Academy Hill, on the afternoon of June the 24th. Miss Cushman and Mrs. Flynt sailed for Europe Wednesday from New York on the President Grant, to return in the fall. There were nine guests present. The table had in its center a complete representation of a steamship with all its details, including the stacks, life boats and everything to make it look realistic. Beside each plate were unique place cards of little steamer chairs. The dining room was very prettily decorated, the color scheme being green and white. At the conclusion of the dinner each lady was given a steamer which, when pulled, brought forth unique favors from the nine port-holes of the boat on the table. Each lady was also presented with a white gauze fan as a souvenir of the occasion. Many were the good wishes for the welfare of the two friends, and after wishing them a safe voyage the affair, which was enjoyed by all, was brought to a conclusion.

Boston Letter.

BOSTON, Jnne 30, 1909.

It was a brilliant sight in front of the state house this forenoon when the lancers rode up to escort Gov. Draper to Harvard commencement. They were on spirited horses, as a rule. They wore their bright red coats, with blue pantaloons, with blue epaulets, some of the epaulets being mixed with gold. Most of them had helmets with the square Prussian tops, like the chasseurs of olden time. White plumes made them conspicuous, if not distinguished and warlike (for that depends upon one's ideas of what is terrifying and invincible), and they were right on their military etiquet, waving swords, maneuvering and doing various military stunts which only such experts know how to perform. Of conrse they were the center of a woudering crowd. In due time officers entered the state house and escorted Gov. Draper down to the gay four-in-hand which conveyed him to the greatest University in the United States and so the military and the educational were brought in contact. This red-coated operation has been performed every commencement day, time out of mind. What would happen to the commonwealth or to the University if either party should fail to get the benefit of the performance must be left to the imagination, for the catastrophe will never be permitted to happen as long as the governor and the University realize how essential it is to the life-success of every Harvard graduate that he should get his sheepskin under the eye of a governor who has been escorted to the spot by the red-coated lancers. Massachusetts and Harvard might as well go ont of business if this display is not to be made perpetual. One year Harvard disliked it exceedingly, but only one. That was when Benjamin F. Butler was governor.

Harvard dominates everything here this week. From the front of Parker's hangs a big crimson flag with a large "H" on it. The papers yesterday had long advertisements of Harvard class dinners and the atmosphere exhales Harvard as a June rose fills the circumambient air with its fragrance. Other colleges stand no show although the good educational papers give dne space to Wellesley and other colleges which have their rightful demands upon the columns. There are graduates of other colleges which have graduates in the Transcript constituency, for instance, and they must have attention, but after all, Harvard is the great feature of the week and it seems as if Harvard was abont the whole show.

Some other colleges will have to pay more attention to the honest work which is done at Harvard if they do not like to have Harvard picking off their proper recruits. I have in mind a distinguished graduate of another Massachusetts college who says that his two sons have been sent to Harvard, instead of to his own alma mater (and that is considerably more convenient for them,) and he is glad, for their sake, that they went to Harvard. One reason, in his mind, is that he thinks Harvard has shifted from its former position and has now struck the serions note which young men ought to get if their college course is to amount to real preparation for life, and not be a mere place for play and lazy indulgence, if not of something worse. Harvard has changed in respect to its athletics. Rich men's sons do not have the pull they did formerly and it is coming to be the boast of Harvard that every man gets his deserts there, no matter how poor and friendless he may be at his entrance, and illustrations in point are given which seem to prove the claim made for a genuine democracy in the old university. Harvard offers exceptional opportunities for students who must work their own way through.

Acting under the law for the incorporation of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, the three incorporators have got together and elected themselves to office. They have admitted two others like them to membership in the corporation, and, report says, are about to open negotiations with John L. Billard to sell to their company the 109,948 shares of Boston and Maine stock which he owns and which has made all the trouble which has afflicted Massachusetts since the merger was proposed. Now that the bill has become law, there is nothing for the people to do but to await developments. It is interesting to note that, since the Legislature was prorogned, one of the speakers for the bill has said to me that he believed that the three incorporators were merely three figure-heads, and that he expected to see the New Haven Railroad Company step right to the front, as it has authority to do under the bill, become itself the Boston Railroad Holding Company and make the merger open and complete. Certainly it is not expected that the three incorporators will advance the money from their private pockets for the purchase of the Billard stock, and the entire $100,000 capital will not nearly buy the stock which is worth over ten times that amount, figured at par.

At the same time, with a large majority of Republicans and a majority of the Democrats voting for the merger bill, it is evidently impossible for the measure to become a partisan feature, unless the Democratic state convention repudiates the Democratic legislators, and that they are not likely to do. Members of both parties were kept well in hand by the master-minds which controlled the situation, and neither side was left so situated that it could get any political capital ont of the incident.

Returns are coming in fairly well under the law for the prevention of corrupt practices before the Legislature. It is evident, making due allowance for perjury and inefficiency in observing the law, that much good must be accomplished. There is a wholesome restraint for many people in the fact that they must make sworn returns of their expenditures as employers of legislative counsel and agents. The public, too, learns many things it would never know otherwise, the knowing of which is a part of the education of the voter before he goes into the voting booth. As one opens the file of returns entered thus far, almost the first thing he finds is the name of the Boston brewing association, followed by that of the Roessle brewery, Frank Jones, and others of that class. William B. Sullivan was their legislative employee and he charged the Roessle's $500, besides $88 55 for printing, the Frank Jones company $440 and $32 82 for printing. The Christian Science people paid well for their favorable standing, for William A Morse was given $500, Elder & Whitman $855 and Bates, Way & Abbott $500 William A. Thibodeau, acting for the Automobile Legal Association (whose letters "ALA" are seen frequently on automobiles), charged his customers $300 The master builders' association paid Elder & Whitman $500, and this association is one which has for years been strongly opposed to the movements of the labor men. Largest of all fees given thus far is the straight $1000 which ex-president George R. Jones of the state Senate charged the manufacturers' association in their fight, which they lost, for exemption, in some degree, of manufacturing stock from taxation which they claimed was excessive and unjust. On the same case Robert Luce got $500, so the manufacturers paid ont handsomely for their defeat, and Luce got valuable practice. John L. Bates was paid $300 by the Massachusetts state nurses' association and received smaller sums also. George L. Barnes of Weymouth, a young ex-legislator of activity and good presence, was paid $500 by the New England gas and coke company. The Public Transit Improvement association paid A. M. Lyman, Herbert Parker and George S. Rice $500 each. There remains more than half of the month yet for the returns and it is evident that there was a great deal of money spent at the legislature this year. Those who have much money and are petitioners for selfish legislation must expect to pay good fees if they get first class service. The big corporations, as at Washington and Albany, can hire the best brains and experiences, and then the mass of the people are expected to look out for themselves. It is a wonder that the people are not worse explicited by the money power, considering its strength, advantage and long experience in making laws.

One day in the municipal court of Boston this week fines of $525 were imposed upon teamsters for violating the new driving ordinances. It comes pretty tough for men who are not quick to get hold of the new rules, who have not learned which are the streets where teams can be driven in only one direction, and the various complications made for the protection of the public. But there is no apparent alternative, if the new rules are to amount to anything, and they have already been abundantly vindicated by their success in relieving the intolerable traffic conditions in the congested districts

Neither of the political parties is doing anything for the campaign beyond a little routine work. All the Republican state ticket will be renominated and it does not look now as if it made any difference whom the Democrats nominate LANDON.

In the Auto Ward.

They were recently showing "Jim" Corbett through one of the retreats for the insane in New York state.

"We will now visit the automobile ward," explained one of the guards.

"Meaning what?" interrogated the astonished actor-boxer.

"A ward in which we keep those whose afflictions are traceable to the auto craze," elucidated the guard. "The ward contains 60 inmates."

The outer oaken door swung open and through the interstices of the grated inner one Corbett saw two lone patients off in the far end of the ward.

"Thought there were 60 of them?" inquired "Jim."

"There are," assured the guard.

"I only see two of them—where are the other 58?" insisted Corbett.

"Under their beds, deluding themselves into the belief that they are repairing their machines."—Chicago InterOcean.

The Doctor Was Fooled.

An eminent physician had cured a little child of a dangerous illness. The grateful mother turned her steps toward the house of her son's savior. "Doctor," she said, "there are some things which cannot be repaid. I really don't know how to express my gratitude. I thought you would perhaps, be so kind as to accept this purse, embroidered by my own hands."

"Madam," replied the doctor coldly, "medicine is no trivial affair and our visits are to be rewarded only in money. Small presents serve to sustain friendships, but they do not sustain our families."

"But, doctor," said the lady alarmed and wounded, "speak—tell me the fee."

"Two hundred dollars, madam."

The lady opened the embroidered purse, took out five bank notes of $100 each, gave two to the doctor, put the remaining three back in the purse, bowed coldly and took her departure.

A Louisville (Ky.) police official tells of funny incident he witnessed a few afternoons ago aboard a street car. Among the passengers was an old colored mammy with snow-white kinky hair. He sat directly across the aisle from her, and his attention was called to the old woman when the conductor approached and asked for her fare. Instead of taking the coin from her knotted pocket handkerchief or extracting it from her shoe, as most negroes do, she began fingering among the kinks of her hair. He watched her for fully two minutes, and the conductor began to grow impatient. Finally the old darky found what she was looking for, and removing her fingers from her white wool handed the conductor a nickel. The coin had been hidden away in the kinks of her hair, and there is no telling how much more money she had there.

Socialism Put to the Test.

Charles Edward Russell, whose articles on "Soldiers of the common good," are now appearing in Everybody's magazine, was discussing socialism, and he told a story to illustrate his assertion that many who profess to believe in it have neither understanding nor sincerity.

Two casual acquaintances were discussing politics One announced that he had turned Socialist.

"I don't know what a Socialist is," said the other.

"A Socialist is one who believes in dividing up with the other fellow."

"Does that mean that if you had two farms you would give me one?"

"Sure I would."

"And if you had two houses?"

"I would give you one."

"And if you had two shirts, what would you do with them?"

"Ah, gwaun! you know I have two shirts."

The Young American Idea.

Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister, said at a dinner in Baltimore: "The spirit of business enterprise and speculation is what impresses me most profoundly in America. For instance, I was riding one day on the outskirts of Washington, and at a certain place I dismounted and got a little boy to hold my horse. I was gone about 10 minutes, and on my return I found the first boy gone, and another, a smaller one, standing at the horse's head.

"'How is this?' I said, 'You are not the boy I left my horse with.'

"'No, sir,' said the tiny urchin; 'I speckulated and bought the job off the other fellow for a dime.'

"Of course, after that," the minister ended," it was impossible for me to 'bear' the market."

A Lesson in Morals.

"Look here, soul!" exclaimed the angry parent, "I hear you were hetting on the races yesterday."

"Well, father, I only put up a few dollars that Flyaway would win."

"Haven't I told you it was wicked to gamble? Haven't I warned you against it? If I ever hear of your doing such a thing again I will thrash you good. Now you take this note down to Broker & Seller's office, and hurry up about it. I think this remarkably open winter is going to hurt the wheat crop, and I want to buy a few thousand bushels on margin. And don't you loiter on the way either."—The Commoner.

The aches and pains of a bad back
Are mostly due to sick kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
They have made many a happy home in Palmer.
Read what a grateful citizen says:

Mrs. E. J. Duncan, living on Park St., Palmer, Mass., says: "Mr. Duncan has to be on his feet a great deal of the time and I think his kidneys became weakened in this way. He complained a great deal of backache and had many other symptoms of kidney disease. Although he did not have much faith in proprietary medicines, he was induced to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and procured a box from Lyude and Gould's drug store. The first few doses relieved him and he grew better rapidly, as he continued taking the remedy. He has great confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and is always glad to recommend them."

Ladies' Aid Society's Annual Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its annual business meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. E. G. Childs, Tuesday afternoon. The reports of the various officers showed the society to be in a flourishing condition both financially and in other ways. The treasurer's report showed that the ladies had raised $369 78 since September, 1908 At the close of the meeting a delightful lunch was served on the lawn by the hostess. MRS. HAVE AND MRS. HAVENOT.

The Modest Little Home That Was Happy, Though Poor.

By AGNES DILLON.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Mrs. Lewis Adelbert Simms jeused a moment as the automobile deposited her on the walk before a flat building that, to say the least, was battered, though pathetically respectable looking.

"Dear me!" she said faintly. Then she turned sharply on the imperturbable driver. "Do you mean to say," she asked rather fretfully, "that this is 225 Rosemere court?"

"The same," said the hired driver. "Two twenty-five, please."

As Mrs. Simms opened the elaborate gold mesh purse she carried she was conscious of a bewildered surprise. Of course she had known Carrie had not married wealth, but Carrie's letters in the years during which they had not seen each other had been so cheerful! How any woman could be cheerful living on this little side street was beyond Betty Simms.

Still bewildered and holding her trailing skirts daintily, she entered the building, and another surprise met her. There was no elevator, and Mrs. Lewis Adelbert Simms was used to having elevators when she needed them. Apparently there was nothing to do but to climb, and to the fourth floor too! Each step added to her amazement.

It was impossible to picture Carrie as harassed by poverty. In their school days she had been one of the regal creatures the mere sight of whom called up visions of ermine and old lace, of lackeys and gold coin. They had all been sure Carrie would marry a millionaire. When she did marry she wrote Betty Simms, who had indeed married a millionaire, much to every one's surprise, being a small quiet, demure little creature of no apparent brilliance, one of her characteristic letters.

"Mother is furious," Carrie wrote cheerfully, "because Tom isn't rich. I can't make her see we shall be far too busy just being happy to have the mere matter of money count. As for that, some day Tom will be rich. He has the brains!"

And this was all Tom's brains had done for Carrie in six years! When she had written Carrie she would pass through her town and wanted to look her up the prompt reply and invitation to luncheon had not mentioned these three flights of stairs. Perhaps Carrie was so used to them she had not thought. Mrs. Simms pressed the button beside the door.

There was a clatter of feet down in the inside hall and a woman's voice in laughing protest, and the door opened to precipitate a small sized avalanche of small boy and barking, woolly dog almost into the astonished arms of the caller. Behind the avalanche stood Carrie.

"Betty at last!" she cried. "Anthony, let the lady in! Take Sub away. We call the dog Substitute because he's such a ridiculous imitation of a real hearty dog."

Mrs. Simms found herself drawn by her friend across the tiny hall into the living room, and there the two took a good look at each other. Carrie, the regal Carrie, stood clad in a blue and white wash shirt waist suit that would not be injured by entry into the kitchen. Above it the old brilliant, eager face, thinner, with hints of lines and with its interested, searching brown eyes, looked down as of old on Betty Simms in her Paris wrap and her trading gown. There was a compassion in Betty's eyes that shone forth unknown to her, and Carrie laughed her old gay laugh.

"You paid at least $40 for that love of a hat, Betty," she said, "but perhaps you won't mind taking it off and laying it on my $16.50 bed."

"It's a bird of paradise," said Betty mechanically as she struggled with the hatpins. The dresser silver was the same Carrie had had at school, with no additions. The dresser scarf was only hemstitched scrim, and the bedspread, though dainty, was of a flowered silkoline that Betty knew in her soul had been picked up for a few cents a yard.

Still dazed, she followed her hostess back into the little parlor. In spite of its smallness it looked bare. Not a superfluous article adorned its walls. The mantel boasted a single ornament—a jar of quaint pottery. The books on the table, however, were plentiful. The single small rug on the waxed floor was an oriental. Through the arch the dining room table showed, weathered oak, artistic, but the cheapest of woods.

"Tell me all about yourself, Betty," her hostess was begging.

For an instant Mrs. Lewis Adelbert Simms groped for words. "Why," she laughed, a trifle ruefully, "there isn't anything to tell! I just got married, and life goes on, and there are lots of parties and dinners and things, and I always seem to be in a terrible rush, or else Lewis is, and we never have time for anything!"

"I see," said her hostess, a little quietly, her great eyes taking in the somewhat expressionless face of the other. "Will you excuse me while I put lunch on the table—unless you want to come into the kitchen with me?"

She smiled as if giving an invitation to come into the conservatory, and Betty Simms followed and, sitting on a wooden chair, watched Carrie's deft movement from cupboard to refrigerator and to the stove.

"Why," she said involuntarily, "you act as if you like doing this, Carrie Peabody!"

Carrie paused on her way to the table. "I don't mind," she said. "It's only a means to an end. He wants you to take him, Betty."

Mrs. Simms looked into the face of small Anthony clutching her gown and, lifting him up, was surprised to have him cuddle down contentedly as one used to being held and made much of.

Sub, the woolly dog, followed, and many emotions chased themselves through the head of Mrs. Simms. To her credit, not once did she think of the possible wrinkling and spoiling of her gown. When before in her life had her arms been full of woolly dog and little boy? It was a new sensation.

None of her friends seemed as intimately acquainted with their own children as Carrie was with hers. Never before at luncheon had Mrs. Simms so much as seen a child, let alone touched one. Yet somehow Anthony did not seem out of place here nor in the way. He seemed part of the household and to take his place naturally.

It was a very simple luncheon, though a dainty one, and it tasted amazingly good to the visitor, who was rather silent. She was trying to reconcile the cheerful face of Carrie Peabody with the account Carrie was giving of her life.

"It has been hard on Tom," she was saying. "The company he was with when we married failed, and that ended putting his invention through And when he did get another place typhoid took him, you know, and it was months well, we got through somehow. I had a few hundreds of my own saved for some emergency, and I concluded the emergency had arrived And things have kept coming up Tom's brother's trouble and then this small boy of ours, and with it all we've been, as I wrote you, Betty, poor very poor."

"But," said the woman, listening, struggling to adjust the facts before her "but you seem so happy, Carrie" There was a hint of envy in her tone

"Why shouldn't I be?" asked the woman in the blue wash gown. Anthony on her knee. "Some time it will be better, when Tom gets a firm hold on things And I have him and Anthony, and we all care truly about each other, and because we aren't rich enough to go outside to find distraction and amusement we've learned to depend on each other, and we're very contented doing it, Betty We're very happy in this little cheap flat. Why, I suppose we're just as happy as you and Lewis, with all your money and what it brings into your lives."

Across the face of the listening woman there was a faraway expression that was tinged with a little bitterness. It was as if she were looking into her past and seeing many things.

"Carrie," she spoke suddenly, curiously, "I'd give all it has brought me and ever bids fair to bring me for one minute of the perfect companionship poverty has brought you and Tom. And for Anthony yes, and for the woolly dog that loves you a lot"

"I'm sorry about the stairs," Carrie told her guest as she watched her depart a little later to the patting into middle below.

"Oh," said Betty, "I never thought of them! I I'm thinking about some thing else. Stairs really don't matter much, after all."

And the curve of the descent swallowed up the bird of paradise as Mrs Lewis Adelbert Simms went back with a strange reluctance to the world of elevators and unlimited credit.

Dictionary Readers.

That the natives of Nigeria are capable of advanced forms of education is apparently proved by this little incident told by Constance Larymore in "A Resident's Wife in Nigeria:"

"My husband told me that in the course of the patrol they passed through a valley where the inhabitants of the rocks and hills above apparently made their homes in holes and caves. One member of the party idly asked what was the scientific name for cave dwellers, the word having slipped his memory for the moment. No one appeared to be able to supply the word. But then the native interpreter, plodding along behind, came up, saying: 'Pardon me, sir. Don't you mean troglodytes?'

"The Englishman, amazed, asked where he had ever heard such a word, and 'George' replied placidly, 'I was reading a dictionary one day and saw it.'

"I cannot imagine myself reading a German or Italian dictionary for pleasure and storing in my mind for future use conversationally a specially unusual scientific term. I only wish I could!"

Like Mistress, Like Maid.

"Have you ever noticed," asked the society woman, "that a lady's maid always acquires the same voice, over the telephone at least, that her mistress has? I don't know whether it is unconscious or deliberate, but I have noticed for a long time that whenever I ring up a friend I am answered by what I think is her own voice, but when I venture to say, 'Oh, good morning, Gertrude,' behold it isn't Gertrude at all, nor Grace, nor Beatrice, but her very courteous maid. If, on the other hand, I say, 'I should like to speak to Miss Millions,' then it proves to be my dearest friend, who is, of course, chilly because I have mistaken her melodious voice for that of the maid.

"Yes, they even change their voices with a change of mistresses. No, I don't know how they do it. I suppose it is the habit of being so adaptable. I should think some of them might even graduate on to the stage and do character work."—New York Press.

Guarding a Nail.

A gentleman in Jerusalem told me that he found a Turkish soldier on guard in some part of the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, where it was not usual for a sentry to be, and inquired of him why he was there.

He pointed to a nail in the wall and replied, "It is my duty to watch that nail."

Asked why, he explained that the Lathis or the Greeks—I forget which—had driven the nail with the view of hanging a picture; that a rival sect had furiously objected, saying that it was an interference with their property and wanted to pull out the nail; that thereupon the Turkish government had intervened and set him to watch the nail and see that no picture was hung upon it and that it was not pulled out.

To allow the picture to be hung would have been to admit the claims of those who drove in the nail. To allow it to be pulled out would have been to admit the claims of those who objected to the driving in of the nail. Therefore the nail must be preserved and the picture must not be hung, and to see that this was so an armed sentry must watch day and night. For aught I know he may be watching still.—Rider Haggard's "A Winter Pilgrimage."

Traced by a Bluebottle Fly.

The great objection to the use of poison for rats is that they retire to their homes and die there, to become a nuisance and a menace to health. Friends of the writer were compelled to have the floor and wainscoting of their dining room removed for this reason. A wiser man, knowing that a pair of poisoned rats had got under his floor, summoned not a carpenter, but a naturalist, to his aid. They knew that the rats were under the floor, but the difficulty was to fix the spot. There seemed to the owner of the house no alternative to the removal of the whole floor; hence his appeal to the nature detective. The latter would not hear of the floor coming up. He cried out for a bluebottle fly. One was captured unhurt and turned loose in the room. After a little preliminary hawking the bluebottle darted to the floor and remained on one spot, like a pointer which has found game.

"Your rats are under there," said the naturalist. They cut down through that board, and there were the rats.—New York Mail.

It is great cleverness to know how to conceal our cleverness.—La Rochefoucauld.

TUMOR OF FOUR YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

South Bend, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They said that only an operation could help me. I am very glad that I followed a friend's advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it has made me a strong and well woman, and I shall recommend it as long as I live."—Mrs. MAY FRY, Lindley, Ind.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

We never publish a testimonial without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we are sure it is genuine. Such testimony should create confidence in all suffering women.

WILL MOVE ROUNDHOUSE.

Ware River Engine Hostlery to Go East, 'Tis Said.

NORTH MAIN STREET WILL REJOICE.

Road Officials Have Said House Will Not Be Rebuilt Where It Is Now Located.

There seems to be a good prospect that the Ware River railroad engine house, located on North Main street, the roof of which fell in a number of weeks ago, will be moved to some other location and not rebuilt on the present site. Officials of the road who are supposed to know have stated, but not officially, that it would be moved. The new location is understood to be east of the Boston and Albany freight house, where the railroad company owns a piece of land which can be made to do for the purpose. It is understood that plans for the new structure are already being drawn.

This decision on the part of the railroad company, if the report is true, will be a welcome one to property owners in the vicinity of the present roundhouse, where conditions have become well nigh intolerable. Directly in the rear of the building and less than 20 feet distant is the house of L. E. Chandler; next on either side are the residences of C E Fish and Mrs Lyman Snow, both within 100 feet of the roundhouse Across the street are the residences of J. F. Holbrook, H. H. Paine, C. B. Fiske and Mrs Walter Winter. All suffer much inconvenience and annoyance from the noise connected with the roundhouse and the smoke and gas from the locomotives cleaned and housed there. At times the smoke is so dense and disagreeable as to drive people from the piazzas into the house, while at other times the same result is accomplished by the noise of escaping steam and the "blowing off" of the locomotives.

West of the roundhouse are the coal bunkers of the road, and there is much trouble there also, the locomotives standing there for long periods during coaling and after, steam sizzling and blowing off, gas escaping in large quantities, and other disagreeable features. When the wind is toward Main street the residents along that section earnestly wish the locomotives in any other locality. Closest are the residences of R. B Francis and Mrs. H. P. Holden on the railroad side, with those of C F. Smith, G. E. Buck and E. G. Hastings across the street, all of which are within the "zone" affected.

Complaint has been made to the railroad officials, but with little apparent effect. For a few days there would be a little less annoyance, but the change was not of long standing. Locomotives from the main line come to the roundhouse pit, located at the east side, and while the fires are being cleaned the roar of escaping steam, the hum of the "blower" and the chug of the air pump combine to make sleep in that locality on summer evenings with windows open a negative quantity. The trouble has been much worse of recent years. When the roundhouse was first established there were but two locomotives, connected with the Ware River branch, housed there. They were put in at a decent time of night and remained like good children until the next morning. There are now at least three locomotives every night, and at numerous times others are brought to the pit, a later addition to the plant, for repairs of various sorts. A considerable improvement in the conditions has been manifest since the freight trains have ceased to take water at the tank house west of the crossing, and if the roundhouse is moved in accordance with the report, residents in that section may again get a good night's sleep and clear their lungs of some of the smoke and their ears of much of the noise they are now forced to endure.

Several weeks ago a portion of the roof dropped in one night on account of old age. The fall so racked the walls that there is not one of them but is twisted and must come down; if rebuilt there, work must begin at the foundations. Under these conditions interested citizens began a campaign for the removal to some other locality away from the residence section. Letters were written the railroad officials at Boston by private citizens and at the instigation of the selectmen by the town counsel, Hon. T. W. Kenefick. Apparently these have had some effect, if the report of removal is true.

BLAZE ON THE FOURTH.

Fire Late at Night, But Little Damage Done. Balloon the Cause.

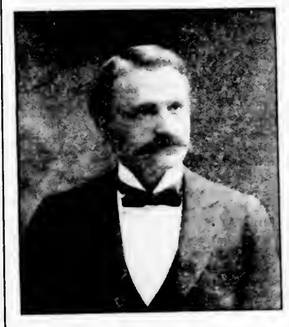
The Fourth of July—celebrated this year on the fifth—would hardly be suitably celebrated without a fire alarm, and one came Monday night about 10 30 from box 57 A small hot air balloon had descended on the roof of the house on Pleasant street occupied by F. L. Gunn, and the alcohol-soaked sponge which it carried had ignited the woodwork. It had not been going long when discovered, but had burned almost through one rafter and would have been doing good work in a few moments more. The fire was put out with a chemical extinguisher. There was no one in the house, and the blaze was discovered by Mr Gunn, who fortunately happened to come just at that time.

Fireworks Go Off at Ware.

Considerable excitement was furnished for a time in Ware Monday, when a quantity of fireworks in the grocery store of W. J. Jarek on Water street caught fire in some way. The chief of the fire department, T. C. Gleason, and John O'Brien, driver, and other members of the department were sitting in front of the engine house on Water street, not far from the store, and heard the noise of exploding fireworks, followed by screams as people rushed from the building. Discovering that the store was ablaze, Chief Gleason rang in an alarm and two lengths of hose were laid Rockets and fireworks of all descriptions flew in all directions from the windows of the store. The building was considerably damaged, as was also the stock.

Auto Wrecked; Going Too Fast.

A large touring car, going at the rate of about 40 miles an hour, came to grief on the embankment under the Boston and Albany carhouse, the east side of the underpass, in North Wilbraham Monday afternoon. The car was a high-powered machine and when going around the curve struck the embankment. The six occupants of the car were badly shaken up, but none of them injured. The front wheel on the left side of the car was completely wrecked, and the front of the car somewhat damaged.



PASTOR TO NEW FIELD.

Rev. V. H. Deming of North Wilbraham Read Resignation Last Sunday.

Rev. Vernon H Deming, pastor of Grace church in North Wilbraham for the past nine years, has resigned to accept a call to the eastern part of the state, and wishes to terminate his present pastorate by September 1. The resignation was read to the congregation Sunday morning by the clerk, Earl M. Scott, and was as follows:

Dear Brethren:—

I find I have undertaken one of the hardest tasks of my ministry in writing the following message. I confidently believe, after much prayer for guidance, that God would have me bring my ministry among you to a close in the near future, though I most earnestly hope and pray that its results may continue and abide. Nearly nine years ago you intrusted the work to my care; years not unmarked by spiritual blessing and growth; years which to my family and myself have been among the pleasantest of our lives, though attended by sickness and weakness in the home. In all of this you have shown your sympathy, love and patience, and we have loved you, as though you were our very own. We have sympathized with you in your sorrows and rejoiced with you in your joys. We have earnestly tried to lead you both by precept and example, nearer to our blessed Lord.

During my pastorate with you I have received from time to time opportunities to go elsewhere. These I have refused. Recently, however, I received one from the eastern part of the state, which I feel I must accept, for the following reasons: First, the call was unanimous; second, it will afford a larger opportunity for service; third, it will enable me to help my boys to an education, which I could not do on our present salary; fourth, we are badly pressed for room, in our present parsonage; fifth, I believe, also, that another man can do the work among you with equal, if not greater success, than I. With your consent, therefore, I would like to have my resignation take effect at the close of the month of August, and ask that you will co-operate with me in arranging for a council, which may be held at our mutual convenience. Affectionately your pastor,

VERNON H DEMING

The trustees of the Ware Savings Bank have organized as follows: President, Lewis N. Gilbert; vice presidents, William C. Eaton, J. H. Grenville Gilbert, Charles C. Hitchcock, Frank M. At a meeting of the school committee Tuesday afternoon, Miss Myrtle A. Mosier of West Berkshire, Vt., was appointed teacher of Latin in the high school to succeed Miss Bertha Pierce, resigned. Miss Mosier is a graduate of Middlebury college in the class of 1907, and has taught the past two years in the high school at Brushton, N Y. The salary for the position this year is $650. The committee voted to award the contract for reshingling the old South-street school building to Amidee Bonsquet, whose bid for the job was $214.

Arthur Collette, who is employed by George W. Dunham, was seriously injured Tuesday morning on the macadam road near D. F. Howard's grain mill. Mr. Collette had started toward Gilbertville with his brother, Ulric, to deliver a cow that Mr. Dunham had sold. The animal became frightened by a dog and as it pulled on the rope Mr. Collette was dragged out of the wagon and fell upon the hard road in such a way as to fracture his right leg near the thigh. He was taken by his brother and others to his home on Maple street, and attended by Dr. M. W. Pearson and Dr. D M. Ryan. He was removed to a hospital in Worcester in the afternoon.

DAM CASE SETTLED.

Controversy Between Otis and Ludlow Companies Ends.

OTIS COMPANY GIVEN THE DECISION.

Gets Substantial Check for Damages. Case Has Been In Courts for Several Years.

The Red Bridge dam case, which has been in the courts for several years, has been settled and an agreement was filed in the registry of deeds Tuesday to that effect.

The case was an interesting one and involved a number of fine points of law. The Ludlow Manufacturing Company began the construction of a dam at Red Bridge on the Chicopee river, on a water privilege owned by the corporation. About the same time the Otis Company began a dam on a privilege owned by it on the same stream a short distance below its mills in Three Rivers. This was completed first and an electric power plant installed. When the plant of the Ludlow company was completed the water held in check by its dam backed up until it anhmerged and rendered useless the wheels of the Otis Company. And then the courts were resorted to in an endeavor to ascertain the legal rights in the matter. The case was tried several times in one court and another and was finally decided in favor of the Otis Company, which a few weeks ago received a check of generous proportions in settlement of the case according to the finding of the court.

Savings Banks' Rates of Interest—Proposed C. E. World Building—New Business Buildings—Memorial to George T. Angell—Other Matters.

BOSTON, July 7, 1909.

Very likely most of the depositors in the savings banks are calculating that, with the improvement in business conditions, their dividends are going to increase, so that they will have more money wherewith to meet the constant rise of prices of the necessaries of life, while salaries stand still and wages do not rise nearly as fast as the profits of business. But such depositors are going to be disappointed. In a talk this week with one of the officials in the savings bank department, he said that the tendency of interest on savings bank deposits was downward. In explanation he called attention to a few words in the last annual report of the department, reading as follows: "Increases and decreases in dividend rates depend almost entirely upon the fluctuations of the interest rate on loans, which constitute nearly two-thirds of the assets of the savings banks. The income from bond investments fluctuates but very slightly, and the income from loans on real estate is almost as constant. It is the fluctuations in the rates of interest on loans on personal security which produce increases or decreases in the dividends." The fact is, said the official in further explanation, that money is plenty now and the rate of interest on loans on personal securities is tending lower. Consequently, as the report shows, the savings banks are getting less interest than when business was not as good, and that reduces the dividends they pay to their depositors. All through the hard times, says the official, the rate of interest held up better than would have been thought for a serious crisis. In 1905 the banks reached their lowest average for earnings, or 4.59 per cent. In 1906 they reached their lowest average dividend, or 3.69 per cent. In 1907 there were 98 banks which paid 4 per cent dividends, and in 1908 there were 155 The latter was the largest number since 1898 and showed how the banks kept right along after the crisis of 1907. But now the tendency is downward, and it is not expected that as many will pay 4 per cent as in 1908. The bank officials are making their inspection of the savings banks right along, and though they do not give out the figures of any bank, yet this is a general fact about them taken as a whole, that they are paying smaller dividends.

Boston is gradually building up a group of buildings upon the filled land of the Back Bay which will make the city famous around the world. There has been carried to Minneapolis this week, to the National Christian Endeavor Convention there, an architects' elevation and plan of the new world building of this organization. The subscriptions have not reached the $1,000,000 which was proposed when the scheme was started, nor probably half that amount, and it is one of the problems for this week's meeting to see if they can put the sum higher. But the lot for the building has been bought on the southwest corner of Huntington avenue and Longwood avenue. The building will have a front on each avenue, with a rounding elevation at the corner. There will be four stories above the row of stores which will be accommodated on the first floor. The architects' elevation makes an extremely handsome structure, with columns extending to over three stories and make a harmonious whole. Just after crossing the railroad bridge on Huntington avenue comes the exhibition building of the Charitable Mechanics Association. Further along is Chickering hall; then comes Horticultural hall; across Massachusetts avenue is Symphony hall; further on is Jordan hall, and in the vicinity further out are Mrs. Jack Gardner's art palace, the new art museum, Harvard University Medical School, Tufts College Medical School, Simmons College, the Girls' Latin School, the New England Conservatory of Music, and the children's hospital. Other prominent buildings still add their chaste architectural grace to the vicinity, and it will be one of the notable features of Boston. It is right on the Fenway,—a part of it is,—and that leads direct to the Charles river, only a short distance away, and large resources are being spent in beautifying that portion of the city so that the avennes, trees, drives, lights by night, power boats and other craft by day will combine to make as handsome a picture of a city beautiful as is in this part of the world. Across the river the tasteful building of the shoe and leather exhibition adds very much to the architectural effect and will add to Boston's reputation as a very fine city to the eye.

Boston is experiencing a great addition to its business capacity which seems to be in progress this season more than ever. Visitors will notice that an unusually large number of great steel frame buildings are in process of erection, but they will not notice, unless they take extra pains, that the foundations of these buildings go remarkably deep. Boston is adding an underground city to its capacity for business. Two and three or four stories underground, as well as the regulation number at the top, increase the city's opportunities for doing business as much, nearly, as if these extra stories were above ground. Ventilation can be secured by machinery and the use of electric fans, and the available room for Boston's business is growing with every new story added to the underground city. Of course this puts additional servitude upon the streets and so the population becomes so dense that plenty of people take to the middle of the street rather than dawdle along on the sidewalk. Boston is forced to spread and the process is in progress, as well as progress upward and downward.

"Well, Robert," said an old legislator the other day to Robert Taylor, the elevator man nearest to the Governor's chamber, "how do you do these days?" "Pretty well, sir," was Taylor's reply, "I have my ups and downs."

One Boston movement of the week will doubtless have warm approval of the people of Massachusetts, at whatever distance from the Hub, and that is the movement to erect a so-called "Humane" building as a memorial to the late George T. Angell, the distinguished organizer of the effort to prevent cruelty to animals. The directors of the society have issued a memorial signed by the committee on the subject, consisting of Edward H. Clement of the Boston Transcript, chairman, Nathaniel T. Kidder and Charles S. Rackemann. These are prominent men and their appeal will doubtless bring in many replies. If any one wishes to give something for the memorial, or to learn about it, let him write to the "Secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," 19 Milk street, Boston, and he will hear something to his advantage. The society

PALMER NEWS.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING.

Called for Week From To-morrow to Legalize Recent Bond Issue.

A special town meeting is called for a week from to-morrow, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, to legalize the issue of bonds voted at the annual town meeting for the purpose of raising money for the addition to the high school. It was supposed, when the vote was taken, that every care had been used to have all votes connected with the bond issue exactly as they should be, but a slight error was made in the wording of the motion. The motion was to raise $18,000 to build and equip an addition to the high school building. It has been discovered however that the statutes of Massachusetts do not permit towns to borrow money with which to "equip" schoolhouses for a longer period then ten years; as the vote was to bond the town for 18 years, the bonds were refused by the successful bidders for them when the exact wording of the vote was learned. The meeting which has been called will be asked to alter the previous vote and provide for borrowing money on bonds for building purposes only.

inspected Auto Fire Truck.

The board of engineers of the fire district, with members of the prudential committee, visited West Springfield yesterday afternoon and were shown the fire truck which the department of that place uses. They returned enthusiastic over the possibilities of such a piece of apparatus and its fire fighting efficiency. The apparatus carries a 40-gallon chemical extinguisher and 200 feet of hose for the same, two pony extinguishers, axes, door opener, etc., and can be fitted with a combination ladder for reaching the second story, although the West Springfield truck does not have one. Six or eight men are easily accommodated. In West Springfield men are stationed in the engine house continually, and their average time of getting ready to start is six seconds; in fact, they usually have to wait, after getting ready, for the completion of the round on the signal gong so as to know where to go. The apparatus cost West Springfield $3000. A fine 60-horse power auto which the owner wished to change for another car was purchased, and the fitting up was done locally.

Forest Lake.

There has never been a time in the history of summer parks when the patrons have been offered a more elaborate programme than is now given them at this popular resort. The bill for the week of July 12 is no exception. This is "The Maid and the Man," a complicated farcical juggle full of ridiculous situations. The plot revolves about one Mrs. Eleanor Matsle, a dashing widow, and Miss Millie Matsle, her daughter; Cuthbert Claxton, Josh Claxton and Solomon Short. Mrs. Matsle elopes with Josh Claxton, Miss Matsle follows suit by eloping with Cuthbert Claxton (Josh's father); they meet and the situations and complications follow fast and furious. Solomon Short appears on the scene and gets into all sorts of trouble, likewise Mrs. Jane Pennywise and others. There are numerous musical interpolations and prettily executed dances, also several of the latest popular songs.

Pole Locations Granted.

The selectmen at their meeting Wednesday evening granted the Central Massachusetts Electric Company pole locations on High street in Thorndike, Pleasant and Ruggles streets in Three Rivers, and on the Ware road in Palmer Center. The New England Telegraph and Telephone Company was also given locations on Central, Pleasant and Park streets in Palmer, the latter being a ratification of present locations. The Central and Church street locations are for an outlet for the company's trunk or through wires, which are to be taken off Main street when the poles there are removed to make way for the paving. The local wires are to go under ground, but the trunk lines cannot be made to work in the condnits, so an outlet above ground had to be provided.

Smash on the C. V. Road.

There was a head-on collision on the Central Vermont railroad at South Windham Tuesday afternoon, due to the failure of two trains to pass each other on the same track without either getting out of the way. An extra passenger train of 23 coaches was running north, and when it attempted to stop at South Windham to let the train leaving Palmer at 1 20 pass, the brakes failed to work and the train ran by the station. Before it could stop and back it met the down train. The bumpers of several of the cars were badly smashed and some of the train crew received a severe shaking up, Conductor Geer and Baggage Master Saunders being laid off a couple of days in consequence, although their injuries were not serions.

Horses Feed in Cemeteries.

The cemetery commissioners have been troubled with horses getting into some of the cemeteries at night and feeding, incidentally doing much damage by tramping over newly-made or seeded ground, rolling and digging up the soil in many places. Much time and money has been spent on the cemeteries in an attempt to beautify and care for them, and the owners of the offending animals may be called on to settle the bill for the damage done.

Young Woman gets Broken Ankle.

Miss Jennie E. Brainerd, living on the road to Blanchardville, received a broken ankle Wednesday afternoon while operating a horse hayrake. While driving near the highway a passing automobile frightened the horse, which sprang; the rein broke and Miss Brainerd was unable to control the animal, which ran, throwing her off the rake and breaking an ankle. Word has been received of the death in Skowhegan, Me., recently, of John M Washburn, a native of Palmer, at the age of 58. He is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. M. D. Gillette of Madison, Ct., and three sons, R. F, Merton and Nelson, of Skowhegan.

Patrons of the Springfield branch of the street railway will be glad to know that a waiting room is being built at Ludlow after "lo, these many years." Eastern Hampden people do not intend to have much use for a waiting room there, but now and then in the winter a car from Springfield dumps its load of passengers ont there to wait for a belated Palmer car, and then standing aronnd in the snow and wind, or rain and mnd is not all that it might be in the way of pleasnre. At such times the waiting room now being built will be appreciated by the waiters.

And the philologist pattered off glibly:—

"I will againbny the atabal. Yon are asweyed. Yet this is no blushet's bobance nor am I a cndden, either. Thongh the atabal is dern, still will I againbny it."

Then he translated:—

"I will recover the drnm. Yon are amazed? Yet this is no yonng girl's boasting nor am I a fool, either. Thongh the drnm is hidden, still will I recover it."

Drexler, Johnson, St. John, Foley and Shearer did good work with the stick, St. John made a star catch of a pop fly and Rice gathered in a difficnlt fly in short center. The score:

The management is to be congratulated on the attendance and the manner in which the crowd was handled A meeting of the board of directors was held the middle of this week, and the report of the officials was very gratifying. Monsan's Fourth of July.

Monday's Independence Day celebration claimed two victims in Monson with serions injuries. Michael Monahan was painfully injnred by the premature explosion of a cannon cracker in his hand. He bad lighted the cracker in the honse and was endeavoring to throw it out the door when it exploded, tearing his hand badly about the base of the thumb. Dr. C. W. Jackson, who was called, found it necessary to take several stitches to close the wonnd.

James Livingstone, who lives on "the green," received serions injnries by the bnrsting of a toy cannon. He was loading the cannon at the time of the accident and ramming in a charge of powder vigorously with an iron ram-rod. In some way the rod struck a spark and the cannon bnrst. Livingstone received two bad wounds in the left leg and a piece of the cannon was driven into his right tbigh, part of it imbedding itself in the bone; considerable powder was also blown into one wrist. He will be fortunate if serious results are not realized. He was attended by Dr. C. W. Jackson.

The Fourth of Jnly celebration was one of the quietest for many years in Monson. Some little celebration was indulged in late Snnday night and early Monday morning. Several Poles with a brass band were especially jubilant, but beyond the ringing of the bells on Ellis Nos. 1 and 2 mills and the customary firing of explosives, there was no unusual disturbance nor as much of it as there generally is.

The usual evening displays of fireworks were seen about town at various points. The inhabitants at the quarry had the best collection wbich was seen from all parts of the village. Several parties walked np on East Hill, where the local pieces, as well as those of Palmer and reflections from Springfield way, were seen.

Exciting Chase After Horse Thief.

An unknown man, accused of horse stealing and kidnapping, led his pursners a lively chase in the west part of the town Wednesday. He snceeeded in making his escape.

The man hired a rig at Griswold's livery stable in Longmeadow Satnrday for the day. He failed to return, and the owner of the rig started out to find him. He traced the team to Hampden, where it was said that the stranger had invited Myron Soper, a boy about 10 years old, to take a ride Sunday afternoon. Griswold followed the rig and fonnd it had been in Albert Ballard's barn Sunday nigbt and Samuel Harridean's Monday night. Tnesday the team started toward Indian Orchard.

The telephone was resorted to and residents in the southwest part of the town were notified that the rig was going in that direction and were asked to look out for it. Later it was seen by Clayton Lyon about two miles sonthwest of the village. He and his hired man hitched up and started in pursuit, and followed the team towards the village. When near William Meachan's Lyon shonted at the man, who knew he was being chased and leaped out of his rig, escaping to the woods and his whereabouts is nnknown.

Mr. Griswold will spare no time or expense to capture the man, althongh he bas the team back. The horse showed signs of hard nsage, bnt the boy said he had been nsed well bnt was nnable to give any information of value.

Tuesday's heavy thunder shower demonstrated the fact that the new disposal of surface water on Academy hill is not altogether satisfactory. The C. V. railroad put a large cast iron culvert under the bridge last fall, thns sending the surface water from the Congregational church and intervening space further down the hill instead of letting it down into the cut where the railroad runs. The manholes at the foot of the hill are not large enough to take the increased amount of water and in consequence the sidewalks are flooded and covered with several inches of mud. It wonld be a judicious expenditure to make more adequate disposal of the water as the results at present are most disagreeable to the many pedestrians on Main street.

Joseph St. George, constable for the past three years, has handed his resignation to the selectmen and returned the insignia of his office to Town Clerk William F. Duncan. It is nnderstood that the action is the resnlt of some unpleasant incidents of the Fourth of Jnly celebration.

Fonrth of Jnly passed off quietly in Warren, very little damage being done and few accidents being reported. There was no celebration in Warren, bnt in West Warren there were two ball games and the Polish National Society dedicated its new ball on Main street with fitting exercises and a dance last evening.

An Amateur Conjurer.

During a little pedestrian trip a gentleman came nnexpectedly npon a country race course and on one portion of the ground found a thimblerig establishment in full work. Notwithstanding the remonstrance of his companion, the gentleman, who was a bit of a madcap, insisted on watching the game.

"Now, would the gent like to wager a crown he could find the pea?" remarked the expert.

"Yes," was the reply.

The money was on both sides deposited, and the pedestrian, lifting up the thimble, pointed out the required pea and took the stakes.

A second bet, "double or quits," ended, to the surprise of the expert, in the same result.

Then a third wager, "a pound or nothing," steadied the nerves of the loser, and the trick was accomplished with great caution. The gentleman lifted up the thimble and showed the pea, at the same time pocketing the stakes.

"S'help me," etc., "I didn't put it there!" exclaimed the bewildered artist.

"No, but I always carry my own pea," rejoined the man who had come out right as he went on his way with the spoils of war.—London Tit-Bits.

In Modern Egypt.

Douglas Sloden's book on Egypt contains some curious anecdotes. For instance: "My doctor was called to see an Egyptian who was in a very low state. 'What is the matter?' he asked. 'I think it is only depression. I have been a fool and lost a law case. I would not backsheesh the other man's lawyer, and he backsheeshed mine.' Later on when another Egyptian told my friend that he had won a law case my friend said, 'I suppose you backsheeshed the other man's lawyer?' The Egyptian gave a beautiful smile and said, 'How did you know?'"

And again: "I was at Luxor when they were recruiting for the army. If a young man was found to be physically fit his relations were plunged in grief. Professional mourners were hired to squat outside the police station where the recruiting took place, yelling and weeping. If, on the other hand, he was rejected as undersized or a weakling or tainted with a loathsome disease, his relations and friends flew to him rejoicing and kissed him and hung on his neck."

"Gnes" of Whisky.

Forty "goes" of whisky had been consumed by the licensed victualer, and still he was sober—at least so he told the city coroner. "Goes" is a common term in this connection, but it lacks the full appropriateness to the situation of its Scottish equivalent in the story of another big drink told by Dean Ramsay. It was at a party near Arbroath, held to celebrate the reconciliation of two farmers who had long been enemies. When the party at last broke up, at a morning hour, the penurious lady of the house, who had not been able to sleep a wink for anxiety, called over the stairs to the servant:

"How many bottles of whisky have they used, Betty?"

"I dinna ken, mem," was the answer, "but they've druncken six gang o' water."

To the poor girl, who had to "gang" to the well for the qualifying fluid, these were "goes" indeed.—London Chronicle.

Expert Figuring.

A well known actor tells a story of a ne'er-do-well in a little New England town where he has often spent his summers. "I was walking down the main street one day," said he, "when I saw old Silas grinning from ear to ear. I hardly thought that he was that glad to see me. So after speaking to him I said: 'Why the smile that won't come off, Silas? What has happened to make you so happy this morning?' 'I've been a-gittin' married this mornin',' was the unexpected reply. 'Married! You?' I exclaimed. 'Why, Silas, what on earth have you done that for? You know you can't even support yourself as it is.' 'Waal,' said Silas, 'you see, it's this way: I ken purty near support myself, an' I kind of figured out that she could finish up the job.'"—Argonaut.

and the American Humane Education society, which is joined in the movement, have already $29,000 as a beginner, and therefore it is certain that something will be done. The Massachnsetts society publishes a little monthly paper, full of things to make people think and to help train children to be thoughtful of animals, and this movement is one of the recognized philanthropies of the times, working all over the country far more than is generally nnderstood.

Does any one remember that there was once an Andover theological seminary? Well, it is trying to get a permanent location in Cambridge for its proposed buildings, following the decision that it onght to be located in Cambridge. Meanwhile, the lack of students continues as conspicnous as ever, and it is necessary that the seminary be anchored as soon as possible.

Men knowing what was doing, vagnely, inside the Snffolk grand jnry lately, have been wondering whether an explosion would occnr. Three important matters, involving men high np in business and social circles, were before the jury, for that much leaked ont from the room, or is alleged to have leaked ont, and there was eager expectancy until the jnry reported. Then "no bill" was the word in every case for which the public was watching Therefore it remains to be seen whether the present grand jury will do anything, or whether the rnmors of the last few days were all false alarms. Perhaps good gnessers will tell their friends who come to Bostou, but the Boston papers have kept still about a great deal of sensational matter which they have had in their offices ready to print if facts sufficient developed. But the facts did not come ont, and so the stories did not come ont either.

By the renomination of Gas and Electric Light Commissioner Alonzo B. Weed of Newton, to-day, Gov. Draper has settled any qnestion which might have arisen why he did not renominate him last week, considering that his term expired July 1, on the same date as Chairman Hall of the railroad commission, State Forester Rane and several other high state officials who were then renominated so that there was no delay. Mr. Weed was put in to take the place of Samuel W. George of Haverhill, and his snrroundings were such that doubtless the gas and electric companies assumed that he wonld be inclined their way rather than toward the people. But, since he has been in office, perhaps of association with that people's man, Gen. Morris Schaff, he has sympathized with the popular side of the issues, and so the public are well cared for in this commission. Snch men are a public boom.

In an address at Vassar college Joseph Jefferson once said that a national theater in this country is an impossibility. Politics, said he, would sooner or later get into it and ruin it. "They would have a Republican tragedian and a Democratic comedian," he added.

POST NUMBER EIGHT

By BEATRICE TUCKER.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

During the Spanish-American war my regiment of United States infantry occupied a single position in Cuba for quite awhile. We were not very near an enemy and kept out no vedettes or pickets, the colonel being satisfied with the usual chain of sentinels. There was one sentry beat overlooking a valley from which every man posted at the evening relief disappeared. No cry, no sound of any kind, was heard at post No. 8, but the sentry placed there was not found when the corporal of the guard took a man to relieve him, nor was he ever heard of afterward. Some concluded that an enemy crawled up from below, stabbed him and took his body away. Some concluded that the post was haunted and the sentry was carried away by a ghost.

When the first man disappeared the officer of the guard reported the matter to the colonel, who, thinking that it would be better that the next man to stand post ou No. 8 should not know of the occurrence, ordered the officer to keep the matter a secret and if there were inquiries about the missing man among his comrades to give out that he had been ordered away on a special service. So the second man did not know of the mystery of the first, nor the third of the second, nor the fourth of the third. The fourth man was the last to vanish, for after he had gone the regiment was ordered to the front.

I was a member of Company C, and we knew more about the disappearances than the officers thought we did, but we didn't know what had become of the sentries. It was the prevailing opinion that the men were murdered by hostile Spanish citizens, but with what object we were ignorant. After the war closed I came north with the rest of the command, but eight years later went to Cuba on business, and there one day, while passing a sugar plantation, who should I see sitting before a workman's cabin but John Henderson, the last man who had disappeared from sentry post No. 8. At first he pretended not to know me, but I looked him square in the eye and told him he couldn't fool me. Then he owned up and told me the following story:

"When placed on post and left by the retreating relief I stood for awhile uncertain whether to risk death by some unearthly means or by being shot for deserting my beat. I knew that three men had attempted to hold it against natural or supernatural enemies and failed. While I was deliberating I heard a girl's laugh and, looking down, saw a merry face and two black eyes peering up at me. The girl had a basket on her arm full of flowers and began to pelt me with them. I supposed she was simply passing that way and didn't connect her with the ghost who had spirited away the other sentries. I seized one or two of the posies and threw them back at her. She was too pretty to keep at a distance, and I invited her to come up and sit with me on the slope. It wasn't long before I had my arm around her and stole a kiss.

"She spoke some English and, pointing to a house below, told me she was on her way to a dance to take place there. We soon heard the sound of music, and the girl begged me to go down with her, have a dance and get back before the relief came. I was tempted and fell. I went with her, danced several times and was thinking of returning when I was surrounded by the men in the room and made a prisoner.

"They were about to take me out to shoot me when the girl who had arranged for my capture stood in the door and jabbered Spanish at them with constantly growing irritation. I didn't know then what she said, but learned afterward that, having given them three victims, she wished the fourth to be spared. Finally she prevailed, partly by threats to expose them to our troops above and partly by her influence over them. I was released and, accompanied by the girl, started up to camp. I had plenty of time to get there, but was dallying with her, she showing plainly enough that she had gone daft on me. I tried to tear myself away from her, but couldn't. I knew she had betrayed three other men, but her preference for me caught me, and while I was trying to get away from her I heard the relief visit my post. Then I knew I was too late, for if I went to camp I would be shot for being absent on my post.

"That threw the whole matter into the hands of the girl. It was the same as having sold my soul to the devil. I deserted, and we went away together. She deserted, too, for she never went back home. Her people were Spaniards, and the men who had been bent on shooting me were Spaniards. They lived about there with their families, and had the girl told on them, as she threatened to do, our colonel would have arrested and shot them. They had only consented to let me go on her promise that she would keep me from getting back to the command. Of course, not understanding Spanish, I didn't know this at the time or I should have been forewarned."

Henderson had married the girl and they had several children. In that country women fade early, and upon an introduction I found the wife homely enough to use for a scarecrow. I have remembered the incident since as a warning to all men not to be led away from their duty by a pretty face. Henderson was living in terror, conscious of being a deserter, and all because he had listened to a siren.

DAFFODILS IN TOWN.

They Brought Back Memories of Home and True Love.

By HENRIETTA CRAWFORD.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Everybody was sipping tea and nibbling cakes save Mildred. For her tea and cakes had no charm, perhaps because she had poured the one and dispensed the other steadily for the past hour.

She leaned back in her chair behind the tea table absently watching the little crowd of fashionably dressed men and women that were moving about the parlors, yet conscious nevertheless that the man beside her was observing her and enjoying her experience from his own standpoint, which was so different from her own that she often wondered how he could find anything in her to interest him.

In a low voice he was telling her about the people before her eyes—how the woman in gray velvet had recently come into a fortune, how another woman in rather shabby silk with wonderful silver fox furs had lost hers, how Mrs. Poynter had been Mrs. Somebody-else before divorce released her and how the girl in blue was sadly puzzled as to whether she would be happier with an American because she loved him or with an English eldest son because he was heir to a title.

She listened carelessly, scarcely replying. In reality her mind was busy with its own affairs. What did she care about these people, most of whom she had not seen before and might not see again? And what did they care about her?

She was merely their hostess' country cousin who poured tea and to whom Hills Hubbard was somewhat attentive. Cousin Nell had seen that her frock was appropriate, and she herself had been long enough in the gay world to learn that the majority judges one by one's raiment mainly. Yet Hills Hubbard seemed to judge her in different wise.

"You must be very nice to him," Cousin Nell had advised the first day Mildred was in the house.

"And why?" the girl had inquired.

"Because he is a good match, as good as there is to be had. That counts very much in my world, Mildred. It may be that you will charm him, being a type that he is unacquainted with."

Certainly it seemed that she had charmed him. Since the first day she met him he had been attentive to her, sending her flowers, taking her to ride in his motor and to lunch at the best places. Cousin Nell was delighted. And Mildred thought it fascinating business to be thus sought after by a man whom so many girls had tried unsuccessfully to capture.

She had been quite frank with him from the first in spite of Cousin Nell, telling him that her father was only a poor country doctor and this was the first time she had been asked to visit her cousin. He had seemed not to mind. Perhaps he had so much money himself that he did not care whether the woman he married had a dowry or not.

As she leaned back in her chair she was wondering how it would seem to always have plenty of money, to buy one's frocks at the best shops, to live in a house where the work was done as by magic, to go about in a blue and gold motor and be able to hear all the best music.

Just that afternoon Cousin Nell had said when she came in to inspect her toilet:

"You understand, Mildred, that Mr. Hubbard will have something to say to you before you go home. There is but one answer for you to make, and I am sure he expects that one."

"But—but I'm not certain I care for him enough." Mildred had stammered. Nell had stared at her.

"My dear child! Do you think that any one in these days marries for love alone?"

"I didn't know," the girl said humbly. Then she thought of her cousin's elderly husband, who was seldom visible save at breakfast time, and the hitherto concealed reason for Nell's strange marriage was suddenly revealed to her.

Mildred had indeed experienced much since coming into her cousin's house. None of the golden rules which her parents had taught her were applicable here. Other ideals were cherished, other aims kept in sight. At first it had been very mystifying to the girl to find that the teachings of her whole lifetime were of no account. It was as if she had taken great pains to acquire Latin only to find that French was demanded of her.

Her father and mother had married for love. Money they knew to be a great good which one could yet be happy without. The poorest person was as good as the wealthiest, provided he was of moral character. Yet, after all, when one was constantly meeting strangers how could one know more about them than their appearance revealed? Who cared whether Mrs. Poynter's first husband was living?

She was the wife of a notable rich man and very agreeable. In Harlin she would have been looked upon with suspicion, but here she was courted. Yes, money was a wonderful thing. It brought one so much. Even if she did not love Mr. Hubbard she could no doubt be very happy with him. To be able to wear a dress like that gray velvet and black furs with long silver hairs in them, each one of which represented a purseful of money, and rubies like Mrs. Ogden's!

The girl drew a long breath and stirred uneasily. What would her father and mother say? What would Tom think? She bit her lip as the memory of his brave yet tender face possessed her. She could almost hear him saying:

"Now, look here, Daffy-Down-Dilly, you are going up to town to visit your fine cousin, and she'll have some fellow picked out for you, I know. He'll be rich and—and different, and that will end my chance, which always was mighty poor, wasn't it, dear? If it wasn't you'd say one word, and then I wouldn't feel so entirely down and out as I will be if you go without saying it."

She had not said the word, and so she was quite free as far as Tom was concerned to marry Hills Hubbard if she chose. With a start she came back to reality and the sound of his voice.

"You can understand that everybody is watching Miss Steuben with a great deal of interest. But there is no doubt in my mind that the Englishman will win out."

"What makes you think so?" Mildred asked.

"Because. That's a woman's reason, I know; but, as I say, it involves a good deal. The American, you see, has only his business prospects and for the present an average living. The Englishman has a fine old home, ancestry of the best, acres and tenants and a coronet about to descend upon his aristocratic head."

Mildred sighed and looked again at the girl in blue. She was very pretty as she stood with her back to a great mass of daffodils particularly, but now something about them set her heart to beating quickly with memories of home. A month later there would be a great showing of them in the little garden she and her mother tended. The dear, dear things! Nell had ordered them simply because they looked well against the wall paper of her drawing room, but to Mildred's girlish fancy they were vital, appealing. They meant home, the country, springtime—yes, and Tom, walking toward her, his face full of joy at sight of her.

Oh, they had no business to be here in this hot, crowded room, jostled by furs and velvets, simple, open air blossoms that they were! No one apparently was aware of them save herself and the girl in blue, who had drawn one from the jar and was pulling it to pieces.

A woman came across the room, set her cup down upon the table, smiled at Mildred and leaned toward Hills Hubbard.

"I have something to tell you which I just now heard on the best authority," she said. "You have lost your wager, my dear boy. Love wins. Miss Bertha Steuben marries the American after all."

"Is that possible?" he exclaimed. "I would not have believed it of her."

"Nor I. Thank you, no more tea, my dear Miss Verrel. I am just leaving." She made her adieus and passed on gayly. Mildred's eyes, with a new expression in them, were again on the girl in blue.

He turned sharply.

"You would do it yourself?"

"Yes," Mildred said.

He studied her a moment.

"Yes, I believe you would," he said, "but in your case there are no parallel circumstances. May I come tomorrow when you are alone, dear, and explain to you what I mean?"

Mildred turned white, but she faced him bravely.

"No," she gasped. "No. It would be of no use. You see, I have just made up my mind to go home tomorrow. It's the best place for me, I think, and they want me, father and my mother and"— She stopped abruptly, with a vivid blush.

"Ah, I see!" Hills Hubbard said. He looked very straight before him for an instant.

In Mildred's ears were ringing the absurd old nursery rhyme with which Tom had teased her before she set forth to visit her cousin Nell:

Daffy-Down-Dilly has gone up to town
